"You're a Sweetheart" is slated to be the Christmas attraction at the Roxy and "Love and Hisses" will be the New Year's film fare.

The Paramount on Wednesday will open with "True Confession," which will continue until Dec. 29 when "Wells Fargo" embarks on an indefinite engagement. Headline band names will flank the picture billing.

At the Strand, "First Lady" is down to start Dec. 22 with "Submarine D-1" tentatively slated to begin New Year's Day.

"Hitting a New High," Lily Pons' latest, is set to be the Rivoli's Christmas Day opening attraction. It's down for a holdover.

meeting of the M.P.P.D.A. late this week or early next.

Virtually every major company head has considered the cost problem in relation to his own company in Hollywood during recent weeks. That these sessions have failed to satisfy financial mentors within the industry is evident in their own words and in the increasing executive sentiment here for a cooperative effort to tackle what is now looked upon as an industry, rather than a company, problem.

The Press Photographers Ass'n of New York will hold its ninth annual entertainment and dance Dec. 18 at the Commodore Hotel.

Actors Tentatively Agree on Time Pact

The Screen Actors' Guild reached a tentative agreement with the March of Time on Saturday, following prolonged negotiations between the two on whether the reel should become a signatory to the guild "closed shop" contract.

A statement by Aubrey Blair, secretary-treasurer of the junior guild, related that "two or three points" are still in dispute and will be submitted to the guild's board of directors in Hollywood for settlement, but added that the guild "looked forward to the same harmonious relationship with March of Time" which has been achieved with other eastern producers. The reel is the last eastern producer of consequence to reach an agreement with the guild.

It is understood that the guild's agreement exempts work of a newsreel nature from the contract, but includes all other types of March of Time production work.

The eastern branch of the guild will hold its first membership meeting at the Hotel Astor today, and will have organizational plans detailed to it by Blair, who plans to return to Hollywood tomorrow.

Will Query Players On Agent Relations

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—The Screen Actors' Guild is undertaking a survey to determine from its members their relations with agents and other managerial representatives.

Ken Thomson, executive secretary, is drawing up a questionnaire to be submitted to the players in an effort to find out what conditions of player-agent contact are objectionable, with the view of attempting to adjust them through a set of rules under which terms of managerial contracts and the like might be standardized.

Listed among the questions to be asked will be, for instance, the amount of commission charged, what other fees are paid, and what assistance in obtaining roles is given the player by the agent.

Seattle Lavonia Strike

Following a four-hour strike at the Lavonia in Brooklyn the demands of its employes, who are members of Local 54 of Service Employes in Amusement and Cultural Buildings, were met by the management. The theatre workers struck for 33⅓ per cent wage increase, a 42-hour week, time and a half for overtime, a week's vacation with pay and a six-day week.

Action Sought Upon Racine's Games Ban

RACINE, Wis., Dec. 12.—Alderman Kenneth Kersten has requested the Common Council to file his proposed ordinance banning Bank Nights, which already has had two readings. Indications are that the pigeon-holed measure is slated for defeat. Kersten declared that his original measure had been aimed solely at Bank Night, but that it had since been amended to include Bingo and other chance games.

Kenosha's proposed ordinance drafted along the same lines as the local measure has also been voted down by the Common Council on the opinion that it would not stand a court test.

G.B. Lines Up Seven For Monthly Release

Seven pictures for release at the rate of one a month, starting in January, have been set by G. B., according to Arthur Lee, vice-president. In addition, two other pictures, "Nonstop New York" and "Look Out for Love," are being dated for this month.

Included in the seven features are two Jessie Matthews and two Nova Pilbeam starring vehicles. The two Matthews films are "Sailing Along" and "Asking for Trouble." The latter is near completion and work on the third has already been started. The two Pilbeams, "The Girl Was Young" and "False Witness," are being prepared by Alfred Hitchcock.

Cameras have begun to turn on "Bank Holiday," tentatively titled. "The Show Goes On" is the second Anna Neagle production from Herbert Wilcox. "I Was a Spy" is to be reissued.

Under the plan the subscriber would pay for Muzak service on a monthly subscription basis.

None of the Warner brothers will be here for the meeting, it was learned. Harry M., president, and Jack L., vice-president in charge of production, are on the coast, while Albert is being detained in New York on other business.

Over the weekend, clerks were counting signed proxies at the offices of the Corporation Trust Co., where the session will be held tomorrow. Stockholders as of Nov. 3 will be eligible to vote.

The six directors who will be up for reelection constitute the majority of the board.

Seeks New Station In North Carolina

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Application for a construction permit for a new broadcasting station, to operate daytime only on 1,500 kilocycles with 100 watts power, has been filed with the F. C. C. by Jonas Weiland, Goldsboro, N. C.

Applications also have been filed by KYW, Philadelphia, for increase of power from 10,000 to 50,000 watts, and WOC, Davenport, Ia., for change of frequency from 1,370 to 1,390 kilocycles and increase of night power from 100 to 250 watts.

The commission also made known its hearings for the current week. On December 16 an examiner's hearing would be held on the application of WLAK, Lakeland, Fla., for increase of day power from 100 to 250 watts, and on the same date the commission would hear arguments on the applications of the Press-Union Publishing Co. for a 1,200-kilocycle station at Atlantic City, 100 watts power night, 250 watts day; Ann Arbor Broadcasting Co. for a 1,550-kilocycle, 1,000-watt station at Ann Arbor; Summit Radio Corp. for a 1,530-kilocycle, 1,000-watt station at Akron, and George W. K. C. Air Business Ahead of Last Year

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 12.—The six broadcasting stations here will finish 1937 satisfactorily ahead of 1936. A preliminary survey discloses that in only one case will sales volume fall below last year, and in this instance, that of one of the non-chain stations, the figure will be only slightly off. Other stations report increases ranging from eight to 20 per cent. Stations with chain connections report that there is little difference in the gains shown by national and local advertising: both show approximately the same increase.

One tendency noted during the year is purchase of time by local branches and distributors (usually spot announcements) to tie in with a chain program advertising the same product.

limited financial resources. The corporation is obliged to rely solely upon the revenue derived from the license fees. The plan to provide the country with a few high powered stations has, however, already found vindication in the effect it is reported to have had on some of the conferees at the Havana parley.

General Foods Will Air Pirates' Games

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12.—The exclusive rights to broadcast wire accounts of all the Pittsburgh Pirates' baseball games away from home next summer have been sold to General Foods and they will use a WJAS outlet, with Rosey Rowswell at the mike. This is the first year that one concern has been given that privilege. In the past, WWSW also detailed the play-by-play descriptions; in fact, the station was the first to originate the idea. WWSW already had the Atlantic Refining Co. lined up again as a sponsor when informed that bidding would be opened for the exclusive. General Foods won out on the prices submitted.

Financiers Subject Of Mutual Program

"Famous Fortunes," a new dramatic series tracing the lives of American financial barons, will be presented each Tuesday from 7:45 to 8 P. M. beginning Feb. 8 over the Mutual network. The General Shoe Corp., Nashville, will sponsor.

The following stations will carry the series: CKLW, KSO, WSM, WLW, KWK, WMT, KTAT, WGN, KTOK, KFEL, WCAE and WOR, with the series originating in the studios of WOR. The scripts are by Margaret de Mott, and the narrator will be Mark Hawley. The agency controlling the account is Badger, Browning and Hershey.

Urges New Stations Along Mexico Border

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Establishment of broadcasting stations in communities along the Mexican border which now are largely dependent upon Mexican stations, a number of which are operated by interests barred from the United States, has been recommended to the F. C. C. by Examiner Melvin H. Dalberg in a favorable report on the application of Mervel M. Valentine for a construction permit at Laredo, Texas.

"In view of the fact that such stations as supply radio broadcasting service of a primary nature to the City of Laredo are located in the Republic of Mexico and that the nature of these broadcasts is not satisfactory or appropriate to meet the demands of the population sought to be served by this applicant," the examiner held, "there appears to be a need for the local facilities sought herein."

Investigation of the application showed that Laredo is at a considerable distance from other American stations but that, across the border and in the immediate vicinity there are three powerful Mexican stations.

Tomorrow Is Deadline; Most Stations In

With the A. F. of M. deadline tomorrow, optimism prevailed at Federation headquarters and at the office of Emile Gough, Hearst Radio, Inc., official and secretary of the I. R. N. A. yesterday, indicating that a majority of the 293 network affiliates have already signed and forwarded their copies of the plan of settlement and Schedule A.

Joseph Weber, Federation president, said yesterday that he could not yet estimate accurately how many stations have already forwarded the settlement document, due to the fact that Ernst & Ernst, I. R. N. A. accountants, and the A. F. of M. had not yet made a final tally, but he hazarded a guess that a "great many more" than half of the 293 expected contracts have already been received.

Gough said yesterday that a complete tally would be made at a meeting in his office tomorrow or possibly

Radio Begs Trouble

By MARTIN QUIGLEY

RADIO in certain of its principal manifestations seems intent upon buying itself a headache. National Broadcasting Company's presentation on Sunday evening of Mae West for Chase and Sanborn is an example. The coffee merchants, counselled by persons experienced in writing trick advertising lines who have suddenly been metamorphosed into Belascos and Ziegfelds, might not be expected to know better, but somewhere within the confines of the genius of the great broadcasting system there certainly should have been someone capable of preventing this blunder.

Failure to have accomplished this will leave spokesmen for radio looking decidedly ridiculous when called upon to face the bar of critical public opinion, an eventuality which is certain to arrive if there is persistence in policies which permit the broadcast of a typical Mae West performance into the homes of millions of persons throughout the nation, and on a Sunday evening at that.

These spokesmen will hardly be able to profess ignorance of the police court attentions which have been accorded to past professional activities by Chase and Sanborn's Sunday evening star, which activities

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 13.—The possibility that provision may be made for David O. Selznick to acquire an owner-membership in United Artists in the event that a new releasing contract is reached with the producer was widely reported here today, although lacking confirmation.

That United Artists will make a determined bid for the retention of Selznick in the company's producer ranks, as reported exclusively by MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Saturday, was confirmed here today by an official spokesman for the company. Taylor and Joan Crawford Get M-G-M Men All Awhirl

It was a busy day for the M-G-M publicity department yesterday. Howard Strickling, Milton Weiss and Mel Heyman got the brunt of it. In fact, Strickling got more than the brunt. He got intestinal flu and departed for the coast on the Century pretty well broken up.

The cause of it all was the return from England on the Queen Mary of Robert Taylor and Lionel Barrymore, who appeared in "A Yank at Oxford," and Jack Conway, who directed the picture.

On the other hand, Joan Crawford arrived from the coast and was besieged by newspaper men, as was Taylor. The actress's husband, Franchot Tone, is due next week and both M-G-M stars will spend a few weeks here before returning to Hollywood to resume work at the studio.

Strickling arrived from the coast Sunday and caught cold on the train. At 5:30 A. M. yesterday he was at the pier with Weiss and Heyman to meet the Queen Mary, which docked a half hour later. Taylor was mobbed by cameramen and newsmen and the M-G-M crowd had all it could do to shake off autograph hunters.

Barrymore Gets Interference

The day was spent behind closed doors at the Sherry-Netherlands until about 5 P. M. Then Taylor and Strickling dodged autograph hunters at the Grand Central by using a back entrance and elevator. Barrymore came through the train gates the regular way, but was surrounded by friends so that the autograph seekers couldn't get to him.

On the same train with Taylor, Barrymore and Strickling were Don Milo, stand-in for Taylor, and John Woolfenden, who handled publicity on the picture in England. He was sent over from the studio especially on the assignment.

Conway left earlier in the day for Baltimore, where he will spend two days and then depart for the coast. He had been gone three months.

Harry Ham, English representative for Selznick-International, who arrived yesterday on the Queen Mary, also left on the same train.

Taylor is expected to return to England in March for another film. Conway said he may go back next summer after he sees a script for the next picture he may direct there.

Supreme Court Hears Erpi Patents Action

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The U. S. Supreme Court today heard arguments in the patent infringement suits brought by Western Electric, Erpi, et al, against General Talking Pictures Corp., involving the use in talking film equipment of amplifiers carrying license notices restricting their use to radio amateur experimental and broadcasting reception.

The lower courts held that General Talking Pictures had infringed patents carried in the so-called patent pool of the radio industry.

In its argument before the Supreme Court the company contended that the owner of a patent cannot restrict the use of a device made under the patent after the device has passed into the hands of a purchaser in the ordinary channels of trade and has been fully paid for. It was further contended that a license notice cannot place an enforceable restriction upon a purchaser.

FILL THOSE EMPTY SEATS

FROM THE PROJECTION ROOM

The heart of your business is the projection room. You deliver from there what the patrons pay for, the thing you are selling, the picture on the screen.

Audiences today are much more critical. They get around. In 5000 theaters high intensity projection is giving movie goers a new standard of picture quality which they will expect to see in your theater.

If you want to build steady patronage, to fill your house regularly, here is the quickest, surest way to do it.

With SIMPLIFIED HIGH INTENSITY projection you can have two to three times as much light on the screen as you get from low intensity — yet at a price you can easily afford. This greatly improved lighting and projection can be covered by only one more admission per show.

This is the way to fill the empty seats. Write for the new, free, illustrated book—"The Eternal Triangle In Picture Projection."

Ohio Operators Must Certify Tax Returns

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13.—Under a new requirement of the recent consolidation of the Ohio sales tax and admission tax departments, exhibitors hereafter will be required to notarize their monthly statements, which must show the opening and closing numbers of tickets in all cases. Sales tax inspectors who blanket the state will check the theatres at various intervals.

The admission tax yield for 1937 is estimated at $1,600,000, of which exhibitors are paying 65 per cent, with purveyors of other types of amusements contributing the remaining 35 per cent.

State officials report a number of evasions in filing monthly statements of the three per cent tax on admissions, but the penalty of 10 per cent, plus one per cent per month will be rigidly enforced in the future, with a revocation of the theatre license as the extreme penalty in the more serious violations.

As part of its new clearing house function the Committee on Motion Pictures in Education plans to coordinate the work of other centers interested in films.

Fabian, Copia File RKO Plan Objection

Fabian Operating Corp. and Copia Realty Corp., who have filed claims against RKO based upon two guaranteed leases made with RKO Proctor Corp. in 1930, filed objections in the U. S. District Court here yesterday to the report of Special Master George W. Alger which approved the proposed RKO plan of reorganization.

The claimants contended that the plan discriminates unfairly in favor of general creditors whose claims have already accrued. They asserted that the number of consents from the class of creditors whose claims have not yet matured is below the required percentage of 66-2/3. They also raised the point that Section 77-B would violate the Fifth Amendment of the U. S. Constitution if their contention were not upheld.

the next day of several members of the I. R. N. A. negotiating committee. Those who definitely will attend, he said, are Samuel Rosenbaum of Philadelphia and John Shepard, 3rd, of the Yankee and Colonial networks of New England.

Concerning the license to be issued to transcription and recording companies, Weber said that the license will not be issued or its contents made public until the next meeting of the Federation's International Council, scheduled for January. He indicated, however, that a special meeting of the board might be called before that time.

Weber said also that he expected to receive the signed agreements for the network key stations today. The key stations are WEAF, WJZ, WABC, and WOR in New York; WMAQ, WENR, WBBM and WGN in Chicago; KNX, KHJ and another NBC outlet, at present KFI, used by NBC in Los Angeles.

It is expected that the Federation will declare the plan of settlement operative a week or so after tomorrow's dead line.

Order Service Fees On Pickup of Bands

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—NBC, CBS and Mutual today served notice that after Jan. 15 music from hotel and night club orchestras could only be picked up on sustaining programs on payment of a service charge of $100 per week.

The network officials stated that they had been giving away valuable time free and felt it only fair that expenses should be covered. Hotel men said the action is unwarranted, citing the recent order from the musicians' union allowing orchestras to play but six nights a week. The hotel owners said the orchestra leaders would have to assume the service charge.

Charge Not New in New York

Bands broadcasting from hotels and night clubs in New York have been paying a weekly service charge to the stations for the past three years. The situation was brought about when Nat Abramson organized the WOR artists' service and went into competition with NBC and CBS which maintained band departments, selling the units to the local hotels and night clubs and charging stiff prices for lines to the point of origin. When Abramson's competition, which offered bands at a lower line rate, proved too much, NBC and CBS formed an agreement with WOR and all three now charge a flat rate of $100 upward, depending on the location.

Local bands also must pay a price of $3 per man per broadcast, the benefits of which go to Musician's Union Emergency Fund for the relief of unemployed musicians.

Renew Robinson's "Big Town"

initially created the characterization which the coffee merchants invited the housewives and their families to listen to on Sunday evening. Nor the avalanche of articulate criticism which has descended upon the motion picture industry as the result of Miss West's single-idea monologue.

These spokesmen might be informed now, so as to escape the shock of having the information conveyed to them under more formal circumstances, that some of the material palmed off by Miss West on Sunday evening is by no means new to the members of the various motion picture censorship boards because they have been cutting it out for years. The broadcast was a nice salvaging operation for Miss West because it gave her an opportunity to use certain other material for which in Hollywood there is no longer a market for reasons which it has been assumed were quite well known to all persons with a trace of knowledge of recent developments in the amusement business.

The motion picture industry would probably welcome radio to a share in the headaches created by the Mae West characterization if it were not for the fact that headaches are not cured by sharing with others. If they were, radio would no longer need to aver its blessings to motion pictures. The contribution would be proven abundantly.

The West presentation was a bad taste travesty on the Adam and Eve story from the Book of Genesis, a grand idea to start with in a broadcast for a nation with perhaps sixty or seventy million enrolled church members. With this as its springboard it dove deeply into a morass of the familiar double-entendre patter with here and there that bovine emphasis which Miss West labors so industriously to convey. Chase and Sanborn, devoted to dating their coffee, should have had a look at the teeth of some of this material.

Radio lives and must live if it is to continue a great institution of American life under the blessing of free speech. It just happens that among the chief media of expression radio has at best only a tenuous hold on its freedom of expression by virtue of the fact that its use of the air is already policed by a Federal commission.

This Federal commission necessarily stands subject to the influence of any and all pressure groups that may wish to make it their business to put radio in a straightjacket.

Persistence in a policy which admits of material of the character of Miss West's presentation on Sunday evening is not merely exposing radio to the jeopardy of a straightjacket; it is asking for it.

New Shows on the Air

"The Voice of Firestone"

Without the benefit of the fanfare accorded many less worthy musical programs, "The Voice of Firestone" continues to please with 30 minutes of choice orchestral and vocal entertainment. The symphonic orchestra is under the direction of Alfred Wallenstein, one of the few first rate symphonic conductors who can reconcile classical and popular music, dexterously offering them side by side without cheapening the quality of the former and, of course, always enhancing the latter.

Last night's guest artists were Vera Brodsky, Charles Kullmann and The Charioteers. Miss Brodsky, whose keyboard artistry is rapidly bringing her to the forefront among concert pianists, pleased with a few moments of "The Carioca."

Kullmann offered "The Road to Mandalay" and "The Prize Song" from "Die Meistersinger." The Charioteers swung "Bob White" and rendered a spiritual. The orchestra, in addition to contributing support to the vocalists, offered a very interesting Jerome Kern medley and closed with "Vieni, Vieni."

To Test News Sending Over Air Telephony

from the Press Wireless transmitter at Hicksville, L. I.

The transmission will be purely for test purposes at the beginning, and will be staged under the Press Wireless experimental license. If successful, a permanent license will be sought from the F. C. C. in order to provide a new and cheaper method of transmitting news. Up to the present time all news services save one have been sending their messages over land lines. The one exception is Peck Television.

Continental has invited radio stations throughout the country to listen in on the transmission periods and transcribe the news during the experiment. Stations have been asked to notify Continental as to the strength of the signal and fidelity of reception.

News to be used in the test will be typical of the service Continental is now offering to out-of-town stations on a commercial basis, consisting primarily of local angle news breaking in New York. The new supplementary coverage is being offered at a monthly retainer fee with exclusive rights to any one station in any one city. The value of this new method of news transmission over that telegraphic code transmission, it is claimed, is that it does not require a trained operator at the receiving end, is approximately three times as fast and is much cheaper.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The F.C.C. today made public orders requiring the licenses of WLTH, Brooklyn, to paint and light its antenna tower in conformity with regulations recently adopted by the commission.

The tower was found by the commission to be a possible menace to air navigation as now painted and illuminated, and the station was given 10 days in which to paint it with alternate bands of international orange and white and install two 100 watt lamps for night marking.

NBC was mum about yesterday's arrival of Arturo Toscanini under orders from the maestro himself, who cabled he wanted no publicity. Thereupon the maestro contrived to hide from the headlines by charging upon several newspaper photographers who snapped his picture. . . . Wayne Randal, NBC publicity chief, has given up his office to Clay Morgan and is now back with the boys and girls in his department, taking over Vance Babb's office in the press department proper. Morgan's office in turn has been taken over by William Hedges, new NBC vice-president.

"First Lady" Dropped Pending Court Trial

A motion for a temporary injunction brought by Vaughn DeLeath to restrain Kate Smith, Ted Collins, her manager, and CBS from using the title "First Lady of the Air" was withdrawn in the N. Y. County Supreme Court yesterday when Miss Smith agreed not to use the title pending trial. Justice Philip J. McCook, who heard arugment on the motion before the agreement was reached, stated that he would set the case down for an early trial.

Reuben Caidin, attorney for Miss DeLeath, told the court that his client was the first woman vocalist to be heard over the radio. She has been using the title since 1932.

Myron Engelman, Miss Smith's attorney, contended that she had been awarded the title by numerous popularity contests. Miss Smith adopted the title on Nov. 4 this year. Justice McCook indicated that one of the questions to be determined at the trial would be whether the title went to the star who appeared first or the one who was first in popularity.

Bernie Signs Lehr, Other on Tire Show

Herman Bernie yesterday signed Lew Lehr, the Nicholas Bros., Buddy Clark and Jane Pickens to 13-week contracts, with options, for the new series of programs starting Jan. 12 over CBS for the U. S. Tire Co., which will star Ben Bernie.

Following the capture of Shanghai, he covered the 71 miles to Nanking on foot and carrying his equipment in nine days. Schenck and other M-G-M officials declined to amplify this statement, with the result that its probable significance was the subject of much local speculation. A Selznick aide, in refusing to comment, gave as his reason the fact that Selznick himself has never publicly admitted that negotiations for a deal with M-G-M were in progress.

Discuss Chicago 1% Tax with Officials

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Theatre operators conferred today with city officials regarding the city's proposal that a one per cent tax on gross receipts replace the present sliding scale of license fees levied according to the number of seats.

It is estimated that the new tax plan would increase the city's revenue from the theatre source from $130,000 to $600,000. City officials claim such a tax would not be unfair.

English Plan For Separate Quota Killed

Producers Lose in Fight For Approval

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The proposal for separate quotas as part of the new Films Bill was killed finally today by the House of Commons Films Act Committee by a vote of 34 to 14.

The producers last night made a vigorous effort to carry the proposal, declaring that there was complete unity among all members of the Film Group of the F.B.I. The sponsors of a reciprocity plan and the advocates of separate quotas made conciliatory gestures toward each other. Despite this move to bury the hatchet, Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, offered no agreement, and the committee voted down the amendment.

Stanley offered a new amendment

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.—An official of Grand National stated today that financing had been arranged for forthcoming product. No details were given pending a formal statement to be made this week after the actual signing of the agreement.

Under the proposed agreement, it was stated, no changes will be made in the production program or the executive setup. The amount of money was not indicated, but it was said that it will be sufficient to carry the studio production costs.

Three pictures, including the James Cagney vehicle, are on the January schedule, but it is possible more will be started.

Writ Won by Paramount in Phila. Appeal

Lower Court Overruled In Boycott Case

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—Paramount today won its injunction action against independents' boycott methods in a ruling handed down in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The ruling, written by Judge Joseph Buffington and concurred in by Judges J. Warren Davis and John Biggs, Jr., overrules U. S. District Judge Oliver B. Dickinson, who earlier dismissed Paramount's suit.

The strike and the boycott which led to the court action has been settled. Paramount has been pressing the case for a precedent ruling and the concensus of opinion is that the company and other majors have scored a signal victory.

In the original suit Judge Dickinson held that the business of Paramount in sending films over state lines did not come under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act interpretation of "interstate commerce." The circuit

Chicago has been agreed upon as the 1938 convention city for the M.P.T.O.A., Walter Vincent, treasurer of the organization, stated yesterday. The date of the meeting has not been set yet but it is customarily held in the early spring.

The midwestern city was chosen due to the fact that the south or Pacific Coast have captured the M.P.-T.O.A. conventions for the past four or five years without variation. Northern and midwestern affiliates of the M.P.T.O.A. urged the choice of a convention site of greater convenience to their memberships.

Korda-Selznick Talks Continuing

Alexander Korda has delayed his departure from the coast until the latter part of the week to confer further with David O. Selznick on the possibility of continuing with U. A. beyond two pictures for which the producer has already committted himself.

At the time Korda and Samuel Goldwyn were negotiating for the purchase of the U. A. stock held by Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford for $6,000,000, Selznick stated he would not remain with the company if the deal eventuated. When the deal collapsed negotiations were resumed.

Reports from the coast yesterday were that Louis B. Mayer and Al Lichtman, who recently returned from England, are endeavoring to have Selznick rejoin M-G-M next year. Lichtman worked on the original deal with Selznick a year ago and might better the terms to have the producer switch over.

Meanwhile, writers at Selznick International are now preparing scripts for "Merry, Merry Maidens" and "Freedom of the Press," the final two on the U. A. schedule. Selznick is not rushing the pictures, since no release dates have to be met.

Departures Deferred

Marcel Hellman, producer for Criterion Films, has canceled reservations to sail for home today on the Queen Mary. Korda also was to have sailed and indications are that bookings will be made to return home on the Normandie, which will leave here the latter part of next week.

Maurice Silverstone, head of U. A. activities in England and the United Kingdom, will probably return from Hollywood with Korda and accompany the London Films' head to England.

Home office executives at U. A. are confident Selznick will continue with the company and that a new producing and releasing arrangement will be signed in 10 days.

George J. Schaefer, vice-president and general manager, is on the coast for the reported purpose of sitting in on the Selznick talks.

"Sacred" Finishes Run

"Nothing Sacred" tonight finishes a third week at the Music Hall. William Wellman, who directed "A Star Is Born," likewise handled the megaphone on "Nothing Sacred." Earlier in the year, "A Star Is Born" ran 21 days and it was only because of prior bookings that U. A. withdrew the picture.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Nicholas M. Schenck, en route to New York, was too ill to leave his private car here tonight. He declared he was pleased with his coast trip and said he had no comment to make at this time regarding the plans of David O. Selznick, but that an announcement would be made soon.

Court Approves New Madison Bond Plan

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 14.—With the approval here by Federal Judge F. A. Geiger of the reorganization plan for the Capitol Investment Co., owner of the Capitol theatre and store building at Madison, Wis., the company will issue new bonds totalling $717,000 in lieu of the present first and second mortgage bonds.

Of the new bond issue, $417,000 will be first mortgage bonds and $300,000 second mortgage bonds.

The court also signed an order to show cause why a master should not be appointed to take up consideration of a change in the lease covering the location of the theatre entrance and two stores in the building.

Shuberts File Reply

Lee and Jacob Shubert yesterday filed in the U. S. District Court here their answer to the $4,000 suit brought against them by the Keith Massachusetts Corp. on two alleged promissory notes. Dec. 20 was set as the date for a hearing on the petition of the company officers and other creditors for a reorganization of the company under Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act.

Resume M. & R. Hearing

The taking of depositions here in the anti-trust suit brought by Morse & Rothenberg, Boston independents, against major distributors, the Maine & New Hampshire and M. A. Shea circuits will be resumed in January after an adjournment to be taken on Friday. Neil F. Agnew, Paramount vice-president in charge of distribution, was queried in the proceedings yesterday. His testimony related for the most part to national and local sales practices.

judges disagreed with this finding and held that the independents, with their plans for picketing, and patroling the streets with sound trucks, urging the public not to attend Paramount films, constituted a conspiracy in violation of the Sherman law.

In directing Judge Dickinson to reinstate the suit and grant Paramount's injunction, Judge Buffington's lengthy ruling said in part:

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Man Proof"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.—"Man Proof" is directly pointed to engage the attention of feminine audiences. Tastefully presented, its story told with restrained dignity, it adapts the triangle romance drama premise. Too sophisticated to arouse the attention of the masses, the film is a class offering done in the style which is characteristic of M-G-M in treating such a theme.

Myrna Loy and Rosalind Russell are rivals for the affections of fortune hunting Walter Pidgeon; Miss Loy does not give up the contest when he chooses to marry wealthy Rosalind Russell. Although her mother, Nana Bryant, seeks to throw Miss Loy into association with Franchot Tone and to have her occupy herself so that she will forget Pidgeon, the woman who lost is still determined to triumph over the woman who won. In various ways she contrives to enjoy the company of willing Pidgeon who is not loath to deceive his wife. Eventually Miss Russell finds them together and the concrete evidence sustains the suspicion that has long bothered her and impels her to denounce Pidgeon. Her actions, plus Pidgeon's confession that his attachment for Miss Loy was but a passing fancy, convinces her that she has been fighting a losing struggle. She turns to Tone as a solace for her disillusionment.

Dialogue is the interpretative medium. Yet in speaking their lines and acting Miss Loy, Miss Russell and Pidgeon are convincing in rather difficult roles. Comedy contrast to the triangle drama is capably handled by Tone and Nana Bryant. Rita Johnson, Ruth Hussey, Leonard Penn, John Miljan, William Stack and Oscar O'Shea are acceptable in supporting roles. Based on a story by Fanny Heaslip Lea which Vincent Lawrence, Waldemar Young and George Oppenheimer transcribed, "Man Proof" was intelligently directed by Richard Thorpe.

A woman's show, exploitation should be pointed to attract the attention of that portion of audiences.

Running time, 78 minutes. "A."

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.—Highly sensational in character, "Daughter of Shanghai" is a throwback to the old 10, 20 and 30-cent melodrama, the kind that used to have the gallery gods cheering the heroes and hissing the villains. Returning Anna May Wong to the screen, it features her with Philip Ahn as the only heroic characters in the company of a platoon of heavies.

The plot has to do with the experiences encountered by the pair in breaking up an alien smuggling ring. Their adventures take them from San Francisco to a tropical island. In the swank dens of the smugglers, in a ribald honky tonk, in taxicabs, airplanes and aboard ship, the perils they face are seemingly insurmountable, yet they triumph over all.

Based on a story by Garnett Weston, which he and Gladys Unger adapted, theme content is highly theatrical. So is Robert Florey's direction. The players, too, perform in highly theatrical style. Though cast as an avenging angel, Miss Wong is given several opportunities to display her physical charm. Philip Ahn works hard trying to make his role of Chinese undercover government investigator look plausible. Charles Bickford, Larry Crabbe, J. Carrol Naish, Evelyn Brent, Fred Kohler are as realistic menances as anyone could want and Cecil Cunningham is a surprise one.

Running time, 60 minutes. "A."

whereby films not registered for the distributors' quota would be available for double credit under the exhibitors' quota. He said the aim of the amendment is to prevent underselling by American distributors. The effect of the proposal is seen as an extra inducement to counteract the possibility of underselling.

Sir Adrian Baillie, sponsoring the separate quotas, declared his belief that the Stanley suggestion would not prevent underselling.

The Stanley proposal is seen as important to American interests, since its effect would be that British producers would seek release through British distributors, who would not need to acquire the distributors' quota and would be able to offer films as double quota value.

Emanuel Files Plans

HARRISBURG, Dec. 14.—Final plans for a new first run house to be erected by Jay Emanuel as the eighth in his circuit have been filed with Building Inspector J. B. O'Brien. They call for a larger house than originally contemplated. Emanuel has taken a long-time lease on the Russ Estate Bldg. and will spend $100,000.

Court Fight Starts On WIBM Exclusive

OMAHA, Dec. 14.—"We are only beginning to fight to establish the principle that it is not only a station's right, but a station's duty to broadcast public, non-profit events of general interest," says John J. Gillin, Jr., manager of WOW.

Gillin referred specifically to a national cornhusking contest held Nov. 4 at Marshall, Mo.

WOW's news editor, Foster May, and two engineers, Paul McDonald and Joe Herold, were each fined $10 and costs in a justice of the peace court at Miami, Mo., Dec. 8, on trespassing charges which developed during the contest. The cases have been appealed to the District Court and a hearing will be held early in January at Marshall.

The trespassing charges were originally preferred by WIBM, Topeka, which maintained that station had sole broadcast rights at the contest. The WOW men drove their mobile unit onto a concession ground near the scene the night before to test equipment.

War In China Is Reel Men's Toughest Job

man, who was aboard the U. S. gunboat Panay when she was bombed and sunk by Japanese fliers.

An unconfirmed report from International News Service last night said that Alley was believed to have been sighted on the shore of the Yangtse River, and other reports had it that the survivors of the sinking ship were boarding rescue boats. Both Movietone offices and Universal's headquarters here were wiring frantically via every possible route, in an attempt to ascertain the whereabouts—or the fate—of their cameramen, and the other reels, although they had no men on the Panay, are deeply concerned for the safety of the two men.

The third newsreel man unaccounted for late last night was Arthur Menken, Paramount cameraman, reported yesterday by the Associated Press in a dispatch from Shanghai to have been "detained" by the Japanese army at Nanking. According to the report, his camera and films of the battle of Nanking were seized by the Japanese military. Paramount had no confirmation of the report last night.

Indicative of the obstacles faced by the cameramen was the passage from a letter received recently by Menken's parents here, in which he revealed that it took 10 days to travel from Shanghai to Nanking "through back country," at night only, and that he lived almost entirely on sweet potatoes.

Incident But One of Many

These are only the most recent in a long series of incidents in which American newsreel cameramen have been involved. The men were all in constant danger during the fierce fighting which raged through a great part of Shanghai, but without exception they stuck to their cameras.

When bombs blasted into a horrible wreck the two department stores in Shanghai, several cameramen narrowly missed being among the victims. Japanese bombers tore down on a British car carrying diplomatic representatives, and several cameramen, in a car immediately behind, jumped from their car and ran for their lives across an open field.

The Sino-Japanese "incident" is being covered completely by the newsreel cameramen, but the danger is great, the "incidents" multiply, and the home offices of the reels are in a continuous state of fear for their men in the field in this latest "assignment."

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 14.—It's a girl at the Tony Sterns. He is assistant chief booker for Warners.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 27
(20th Century-Fox)

This latest issue of the reel ranges from gruesome tragedy, diplomacy, weather phenomena and screwball comedy to a slam bang professional football game, all done in first rate manner. The comment by Lowell Thomas, Lew Lehr and Ed Thorgersen is also the usual lucid stuff.

The reel opens with the crash of an army plane at Langley Field in Virginia. Shots of King George VI receiving presents from residents of the Duchy of Cornwall follows. Buffalo digs out after a blizzard and the cavalry at Fort Ethan Allen in Vermont does its annual maneuvers in the snow.

Names in the News offers Gov. Alfred M. Landon stating he will not run in 1940, a glimpse of Joseph P. Kennedy, Lady Anne Cavendish who is rumored to be the next Queen of the Belgians, the Finnish Ambassador, Eero Jarnefelt, on his way to the White House to pay his country's annual installment on the war debt and General Pershing pinning medals on nine C.M.T.C. soldiers.

Lehr turns the full blast of his unique English on the products exhibited at an inventor's convention. Thorgersen describes last week's football game between the Washington Redskins and the Chicago Bears.

Running time, 9 mins. P.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 225
(M-G-M)

The Panay sinking serves as the lead for this issue. Around scenes of the ship are inserted the current diplomatic apologies in convincing documentation. The Japanese Ambassador, Hirosi Saito, expresses his country's regrets and there are also shots of Cordell Hull, President Roosevelt and activities on the Panay as she once steamed up the Yangtze. The snowstorm in Buffalo is also offered aside from the departmental material.

News Snapshots offers a fire in a Washington store, an inventors' convention, Gov. Alfred M. Landon putting to flight 1940 presidential rumors and night dog racing in Florida.

The Woman's Page gives eye-opening glimpses of new modes in lingerie and corsets on attractive models.

The Chicago Bears - Washington Redskins pro football game concludes with many spectacular shots of the scoring plays.

It is well-balanced and diversified material.

Running time, 9 mins. P.

Issue No. 38
(Paramount)

Paramount News made a swift effort to gather available material on the incidents connected with the sinking of the U. S. Gunboat Panay both from the Chinese and Washington angles. In the clip Ambassador Saito makes "most profound apologies." Comment by Gabriel Heatter adds interest to the subject. It is easily the highlight of the reel.

Washington news, with comment by Gregory Abbott, includes Alfred M. Landon's statement that he will not run in 1940; views of a department store fire in which firemen had plenty of trouble, and General Pershing awarding C.M.T.C. medals to boys who have distinguished themselves.

King George VI is shown receiving an ovation from his subjects on a tour of the Duchy of Cornwall, but he is not the most exciting figure on the screen these days.

Dizzy Dean's impersonation of Santa Claus at Miami, with commentary by Mark Hawley, is timely as well as novel. The reel winds up with the Washington Redskins winning from the Chicago Bears.

Running time, 9 mins. J.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 42
(RKO)

This release is lively and interesting. Although it runs about 100 feet less than the average number, it includes two outstanding examples of good camera news coverage. Its treatment of the consequences of the Panay sinking near Nanking by Japanese bombers is impartial in manner and free of hysteria. The reel's shots of the crash of an Army bomber at Langley Field, Va., during maneuvers are also exceptionally good camera reporting. Not only the crash of the burning plane has been caught but the reel also shows one of the occupants thrown clear of the ship and its motor hurtling several hundred feet ahead of the plane.

The balance of the material consists of blizzard scenes in Buffalo; winter artillery maneuvers at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.; a small town business "boom" in New Jersey resulting from the discovery of a new mineral water; greyhound racing at Miami, and some good pictures of the scoring plays in the Washington Redskins - Chicago Bears pro grid game.

The editing and narration of this material is well handled and contributes its full share to a good release.

Running time, 8 mins. K.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 9, No. 623
(Universal)

News pictures pertinent to the bombing and sinking of the U. S. gunboat Panay near Nanking naturally form the featured sequence of this issue of the reel, which is lively and interesting in a diversified fashion, including football, a blizzard, a five-alarm fire and a fatal plane crash.

The reel, whose Norman Alley is among the missing from the Panay, pulls no punches either in caption material or in accompanying dialogue. It becomes virtually an indictment of Japan, and uses the "expression of regret" in sarcastic vein. Shown are shots of Cordell Hull, Ambassador Saito and other Washington scenes.

There is a thrill in the spectacular shots of an army flier crashing to death at Langley Field, his plane bursting into flames, and in the five-alarm fire which gutted the Hahn store in Washington. Lively action is included in the army maneuvers in the snow at Burlington, Vt., and the Redskins' victory over the Bears in the pro-football windup on a frozen Chicago field. The full power of Buffalo's severe blizzard is well pictured. Gadget inventors display their wares in Los Angeles, Dizzy Dean acts as a sunny Santa Claus in Florida, and the new speed film catches night dog racing at Miami without aid of additional lighting.

Running time, 9½ mins. A.

Ban F. D. R. Speech

Shanghai, Dec. 14.—The censor board of the Shanghai Municipal Council has ordered President Roosevelt's recent Chicago speech against "aggressor nations" eliminated from local news reel showings.

The board contended that the presentation of the material would be "inadvisable in view of the local situation."

news events carried by the reels. Audience interest in such material as that provided by the Japanese invasion of China, clashes on the labor front, football games and other events of widespread national interest indicates, time and time again, that the one-reel release fails to satisfy the public appetite for screen news, they state.

A. J. Richard, Paramount News editor, believes that the two-reel release is inevitable.

"I am convinced," he said, "that the American public wants its screen news in the fullest possible measure; that the newsreel industry soon will find its 10-minute screen limitation breaking down seems almost a certainty."

Philadelphia Decision Seen As Important

Is Likely to Have Effect On Trade Interference

The decision of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia directing the issuance to Paramount of an injunction restraining exhibitors from projecting a "buyers' strike" against the company was interpreted by film attorneys here yesterday as being of widespread significance to the industry. The decision was handed down by the court on Tuesday, reversing a lower court decision.

Local attorneys studying the ruling declared that it established the principle that buyers may not band together to affect competition and interstate commerce any more than can sellers. They also asserted that the decision would be significant as a precedent in the event that Minneapolis exhibitors, who were enjoined by the U. S. District Court there from similar "strike" activities, carry their appeal from the decision to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in their territory.

In addition, the ruling is regarded by film attorneys as probably having some effect on the course of action which the Federal Trade Commission will take on Allied State's complaint against Paramount. The complaint was based upon the trade practices

Odlum Going West For Studio Confab

Floyd B. Odlum, head of Atlas Corp., will leave for Hollywood early next week to confer with Leo Spitz and other RKO officials on the new RKO studio setup. Odlum will remain on the coast over the holidays.

Although it is reliably understood here that no definite arrangements have been completed it is understood that further efforts will be made to have Pandro S. Berman assume complete charge of the studio. This failing, Berman would continue in charge of "A" production and a new studio head would be designated from among a number who have conferred with Spitz during recent weeks.

It is regarded as likely here that a new RKO theatre head to succeed Nate J. Blumberg, whose resignation will be effective Jan. 1, will also be designated during the coast conferences. Ned E. Depinet, vice-president, is already on the coast and A. H. McCausland, trustee's representative in RKO, is expected to accompany Odlum west.

Sardou Objects to Alger's RKO Report

George Sardou, a minority RKO stockholder, yesterday filed six exceptions to the report of Special Master George W. Alger which approved the proposed RKO plan of reorganization. Sardou alleged that the allowance of 460,000 shares of common stock on the Rockefeller Center claim was "excessive and unconscionable." He asked that the report of Special Master Thomas D. Thacher, who originally held hearings on the claim, be filed and consummated by the court.

Sardou urged that a physical appraisal of current assets be made before the common stockholders equity is cut in half. Allowances of common stock to debenture holders and general creditors also were attacked. The proposed underwriting agreement between Atlas Corp. proponents of the plan, and RKO for additional capital should be made public and subjected to the court's scrutiny, Sardou said.

Federal Judge William Bondy is scheduled to hold a hearing of Special Master Alger's report Dec. 21.

Notes Surplus Among English Reel Houses

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The surplus in the British news theatre field was reflected in the annual shareholders' meeting of Capital and Provincial Theatres, when shareholders refused to pass the accounts and demanded an investigating committee.

The company has recorded a profit of $24,535, but has had to sublet two of its theatres in Portsmouth and Tooting. Chairman Norman Hulbert, pleaded for the resolution not to be adopted, but was threatened with the filing of an application for liquidation. Hulbert cited the competition they were facing, with seven newsreel houses within half a mile of Piccadilly Circus.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Mannequin"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.—This Joseph L. Mankiewicz production of a modern story of Katharine Brush is a highly marketable product. The plot is refreshingly out of the prevalent pattern and well within the range of plausibility. Spencer Tracy and Allan Curtis give brilliant performances as the men in the case and Joan Crawford rises to their example, while Elizabeth Risdon, Oscar O'Shea and Leo Gorcey make miniature masterpieces of minor roles. The dialogue is notably speakable and interest holds continuously. The picture should draw well and satisfy thoroughly in almost any kind of theatre or community.

Tracy is a Hester St. product risen to riches, who finds himself attracted to Miss Crawford whom he meets on the night of her marriage to Curtis. When Curtis turns out to be no good Tracy befriends the couple. Curtis then urges Miss Crawford to divorce him and marry Tracy temporarily to obtain a portion of his fortune for him to share after divorcing Tracy and rejoining him. She rejects the proposal, but does divorce Curtis and marry Tracy. Curtis then attempts to force the consummation of the proposed plot and is on the point of succeeding when Tracy loses his money, whereupon Curtis loses interest and Miss Crawford is free to remain as Tracy's wife.

"Mannequin" gets its title from a brief sequence in which Miss Crawford is employed as a model. Other backgrounds are Hester St. tenements, swank penthouses, backstage, shipboard, various restaurants and foreign capitals. The screenplay by Lawrence Hazard is a finely fashioned document. Miss Crawford sings an appropriate song number by Edward Ward, Bob Wright and Chet Forest.

Running time, 92 minutes. "G."

"She's Got Everything"

(RKO)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.—What might be described as the wave of slightly insane comedy romance goes on apace, and this particular example cannot be accounted more than a fair-sized ripple in the wave. Certainly it is no breaker, however vigorously the cast pursues its art.

"She's Got Everything," which is a title open to reviewer punning with respect to the film, is a comedy romance, with all the accent on comedy and comedians who are better than their material. Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern are teamed in the leads, aided materially by Victor Moore and Helen Broderick, and immaterially by Parkyakarkus and Billy Gilbert. The Parkyakarkus cracks are too obviously built up and do not crackle.

There is a comic idea in the original story and screenplay, the work of Joseph Hoffman and Monroe Shaff and Harry Segall, respectively, but it somehow fails to jell on the screen. Miss Sothern, suddenly broke on the death of her father, gets a job as wealthy coffee-man Raymond's secretary, through Moore, "horse broker." Moore becomes self-appointed leader for a gang of Sothern creditors, including Parkyakarkus and Gilbert, and engineers a plan whereby Miss Sothern should marry Raymond to pay off the debts.

Everything goes swimmingly at a resort, until Moore is hounded by the creditors and sees the need for quick action. He calls for Raymond, but when the latter arrives he learns of the plan and breaks the engagement. The reconciliation is only effected after a hectic auto chase and a wedding on a swaying truck through city streets.

Pneumonia Picture To Play Music Hall

A single-reel film, "A New Day," presented by the U. S. Public Health Service and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., sponsored by the New York City Dep't of Health, and produced by the Jam Handy Co., was previewed yesterday at the Music Hall, and will begin a week's run at the theatre today. It will be available for general booking on Dec. 22.

The film, through a dramatic story, serves to emphasize the vital importance of seeking medical advice as early as possible in illness which may lead to pneumonia, and stresses the value of the new serums now available in obtaining cures for the various types of pneumonia which are responsible for thousands of deaths in New York alone each year. The picture, which runs 12 minutes, has been happily cast with experienced film players and possesses a strong dramatic quality, which cannot fail to arouse the interest and response of audiences. Expert production has made it a worthwhile dramatic effort. Theatres may obtain the film by applying to the Motion Picture Bureau of Metropolitan Life at 1 Madison Ave. Part of the Health Dep't campaign to wipe out fatalities from pneumonia, the film merits the cooperation of every theatre owner, and affords an opportunity to make a substantial contribution to public welfare. DUPLICATING FILMS

No Radio Ban Is Possible, Says Vincent

No industry-wide ban on the appearances of film stars on radio programs is possible or warranted, Walter Vincent, chairman of the M. P. T. O. A. radio committee, stated yesterday in disclosing that the theatre owners' committee does not plan to intervene in connection with the increasing number of Hollywood personalities and programs appearing on the air.

Vincent revealed, however, that he had conferred with M-G-M officials on that company's air program and was convinced that the company's aims were primarily concerned with the development of an arrangement under which it would have control over the radio appearances of its players and the material used in the broadcasts. He indicated that, while he had not conferred with Warners, he believed that company's aims were similar to M-G-M's.

Says Good Programs Help

Vincent said that while there was no question that inexpertly prepared radio programs and casts did a definite injury to players, films and, consequently, to theatres, there was equally no question that properly executed broadcasts could be of aid to all three. The development of Hollywood broadcasts capable of actually aiding theatre business will come, Vincent believes, from the experience of sponsoring producer-distributor companies with their air activities and the subsequent box-office performances of such pictures as the broadcasts have attempted to exploit.

He pointed out that with most pictures being played on percentage producer-distributors should be quick to learn from their actual receipts whether a picture has been aided or injured by radio exploitation and why.

"The use of film stars and film material on the air cannot be stopped completely," Vincent said. "For this committee to attempt to oppose it would be like Mrs. Partington's effort to sweep back the Atlantic Ocean with a broom. However, this industry's judicious and helpful use of radio must come from the experience with the medium which is now being gained."

Brennan Will Head CBS Frisco Studio

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—First of a series of moves designed to materially increase CBS radio production in San Francisco will be the transfer from Hollywood Jan. 1 of Tom Breneman, veteran western network artist-producer, as production manager for the new CBS studios now being erected here.

By the time the new plant is ready for occupancy, on the roof of the Palace Hotel some time in February, the chain expects to have 10 new programs under production. Two already have been scheduled—a daily skit series and "Toast of the Town," Sunday night variety show sponsored by Roma Wine Co.

British Industry to Fight Broadcasting

LONDON, Dec. 15.—A concerted move has been started here by the film industry to prevent radio broadcasts from theatres, film houses and studios and similar places.

The Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n will join other trade organizations and theatrical musical hall interests in a joint discussion of the competitive problem which has arisen. The exhibitors also plan a meeting with the Middlesex County Council to discuss saloon shows.

Brokers Start Suit Over Salt Broadcast

Ernest A. Arnold and Walter W. Frese, security brokers who do business as Arnold & Frese, filed suit in the N. Y. County Supreme Court yesterday against NBC; General Foods Corp. and Benton & Bowles, advertising agency, for alleged libelous reference to the plaintiff in the Diamond Crystal Salt Co. broadcast over WJZ on Nov. 7.

The plaintiffs will ask Justice William H. Black today for an examination of David Sarnoff, NBC president; Clarence Francis, president of General Foods, and A. Hobler, president of Benton & Bowles, for the purpose of assisting the plaintiffs in drawing their complaint.

In his petition for the examination, Frese alleged that there is no other firm of security dealers with a name similar to that of his firm and that during the broadcast the plaintiff was depicted as "being broke" and "obtaining money and absconding therewith."

Music Firms' Trade Rules Made Public

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—New proposed trade practice rules for the popular music publishing industry, embodying the ban on song plugging which comprised the only provision of the code submitted by the Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n., on which hearings were held Oct. 4, last, but adding two additional rules, one banning the making of exclusive agreements and the other prohibiting rebates and other price differentials, were made public tonight by the Federal Trade Commission. A public hearing will be held Jan. 4.

The three proposed rules, it was stated, have been given tentative approval by the commission. The association's proposed rule applying to Robinson-Patman anti-price discrimination act to the industry, was rejected, apparently because it is a statute, compliance with which is mandatory, and needs no acceptance by any industry. The proposed price discrimination provisions cover matters involved in the Robinson-Patman Act, but are so worded as to apply directly to the music publishing industry.

Bans Hiring and Sale

The new code would make it an unfair trade practice for any member of the industry engaged in interstate commerce to give or offer to give anything to any orchestra or band leader, performer, dancer, singer or musician for using the publisher's works without the knowledge and consent of the employer of such person or where plugging would tend to restrict competition, as provided for in the original proposals of the association.

The first of the two new rules would make it an unfair practice for any member of the industry to lease or make a sale or contract for the sale of music for use or resale under any condition, agreement or understanding that the lessee or purchaser shall not use or deal in the product of competitors, where the effect may be to lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly.

The second new rule embodies the provisions of the Robinson-Patman Act by prohibiting the payment or acceptance of brokerage, commission, etc., except for services rendered; barring the payment of advertising or promotional allowances for the benefit of one customer unless similar allowances are made to all other customers; prohibiting discrimination in favor of one purchaser against another, and prohibiting discrimination in price contrary to Section Two of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act.

Radio Does Part in Flood in California

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—Northern California radio stations were pressed into emergency service, broadcasting rescue bulletins for the Red Cross, during the height of the recent three-day gale.

Incidents rivaling radio's rescue efforts during the Ohio River Valley floods last January were numerous. The Geyserville Red Cross in the Russian River delta region, where more than 100 square miles were under water, stayed in constant telephone communication with the area's most powerful sender, San Francisco's 50,000 watter, KPO.

Rescue instructions were aired at frequent intervals to the homes of isolated residents, separated by more than a mile of water from rescuers. Although cut off from phone contact, many of the homes still had power for operation of radio sets.

Lichtman Is Given a New Loew Contract

his doctor. He did not appear at the office yesterday, but will be at his desk this morning. It was learned that his two children have been down with the grip for several days at their Great Neck home. Schenck was not advised of this until he reached home. He and his family will leave for Miami shortly after Christmas.

Asked about new five-year contracts for David Bernstein, vice-president and treasurer of Loew's, and J. Robert Rubin, general counsel, Schenck asserted that the contracts of these executives have some time to run and there was no immediate need of renewal, although this would be done in due time.

When he arrived at Grand Central and was met by this reporter, Schenck handed out a typewritten statement, the same one he gave out to the press at the time he left the coast. The Loew executive head explained that the statement was issued because "one of the trade papers on the coast carried a story that our organization depended on one man. This is the answer to it," he said.

Reticent on Selznick

Queried on the progress of negotiations with David O. Selznick, Schenck said: "I can't tell you anything about it yet. We are still working with him and for all I know the contract may never be signed."

Schenck then said he had been doing all the talking with Selznick, refuting reports that other M-G-M executives had been handling negotiations.

The Loew president expressed satisfaction with his coast visit and said he expected Lichtman to return in about 10 days.

Rubin, it was also learned yesterday, has been bothered with a cold and was absent from his office for a day and a half.

At the station to meet Schenck were C. C. Moskowitz, Marvin Schenck and Bert Nayfack.

Freed on Sunday Charge

A coincidental case found a news dealer freed for selling newspapers on Sunday. The case was part of an enforcement drive for all blue laws.

Atlas RKO Interest Is Cited in Report

Atlas Corporation's holdings in RKO are cited as one of two "principal special situations in which the investment company is interested at the present time" in the annual report of Floyd B. Odlum, president, to stockholders.

The company's RKO holdings include $2,222,597 face amount of debentures and 278,393 shares of common stock, representing a gain of $94,000 face amount of debentures and 14,900 shares of common since Jan. 31, last. The statement does not reflect the Atlas participation in an investment syndicate's option to acquire RCA's remaining holdings of RKO securities. The Atlas participation in the $6,000,000 option, which will be exercised in part prior to its expiration on Dec. 31, amounts to $2,610,000.

Odlum's report noted that Atlas had received no income from its RKO investment during the fiscal year, but that its share in the earnings of the company "will be given expression in the final reorganization...which, it is expected, will not be long delayed."

The report showed that the net asset value of Atlas common stock was approximately $13.36 a share on October 31, compared with $18.77 on the same date last year and $18.17 on July 31.

Burlesque Artists Win Four A Ruling

The council of the Associated Actors & Artistes of America, parent A. F. of L. entertainers' union, ruled yesterday that the American Federation of Actors had encroached on the jurisdiction of the Burlesque Artists Ass'n in extending its organizing moves into that field following the banning by License Commissioner Paul Moss of New York theatre use of the term "burlesque."

The council directed the A. F. A. to turn over all dues and records which have come into its possession since June 1 through its incursion on B. A. A. domain to a committee consisting of Frank Gillmore, Four A president; Paul Dullzell, executive secretary of Actors' Equity, and Gene Greenfield, Four A vice-president. A. F. A. officials were censured for statements made during the controversy and the union was directed to comply with the orders issued by the Four A council yesterday by Dec. 23. A report on the disposition of the case is scheduled to be made to the Four A council by its committee on Jan. 10.

The council will consider further A. F. A. jurisdictional claims in the night club field, affecting Chorus Equity, on Jan. 17.

Cochrane plans to return to the advertising agency field with an established New York organization after the first of the year.

Joseph, who is reported to be Cochran's successor, was film editor of the Chicago Herald and Examiner for a number of years and was associated with Balaban & Katz in advertising and publicity posts thereafter. He became associated with RKO as supervisor of theatre advertising and publicity in the middle west about five years ago.

Radio Competition Stirs Up ITOA Men

Radio competition to theatres highlighted a meeting of the I. T. O. A. at Gottlieb's restaurant yesterday with independent exhibitors expressing the opinion that affiliated theatres were being hurt as much as unaffiliated houses. It was felt generally that now is the time for major circuit heads to act in eliminating air shows produced with film stars.

Harry Brandt, president, acted as chairman of the meeting. It is expected that another move on giveaways and games will develop in the next few weeks. A large attendance turned out.

"Truth" Holds Despite Chill In Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Dec. 15. — Cold weather hit grosses during the week and only two first runs stayed in the profit column. "The Awful Truth," in its second week at the Alvin, was one of these. The $9,000 take, about half the first week gross, was still $2,500 over normal.

"Stage Door," which played eight days at the Penn, turned in $13,500. This was also $2,500 to the good. The other three first runs found the going rough.

employed by the company which gave rise to the exhibitors' "strike."

Copies of the Circuit Court's decision studied in New York yesterday reveal that the use of "peaceful persuasion," as employed in the later stages of the Philadelphia "strike" are held by the court to be as illegal as the employment of force or coercion in a "buyers' strike" or boycott.

The decision stated that what the exhibitors attempted to do by force in the first place, and later by "peaceful persuasion," "could not be done without the interference and stoppage of the free flow of interstate commerce."

Of the exhibitor organization's claims to accomplishing its ends by individual, rather than joint, action, the decision says: "The evidence, when fairly construed, makes it plain that the appellees (exhibitors) had formed a combination or conspiracy and were acting together as a unit and are still so acting."

The decision states that only unqualifiedly individual action could escape violation of the anti-trust laws.

Philadelphia, Dec. 15.—Independent exhibitor leaders here do not regard the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals' decision in favor of Paramount as affecting the exhibitors' legal rights to protect their interests in future contests with distributors.

Ben M. Golder, attorney for the U. M. P. T. O., speaking for the exhibitors, said: "This case has not taken from the exhibitor any right which he heretofore had; to wit, collective bargaining and the right to cooperative action. I feel that the result of the entire situation is one of great benefit to the individual exhibitor and to exhibitors generally. Henceforth, armed with the knowledge that they have a right to cooperate and do not need to use any illegal methods, they are in a better position to recognize the value of concerted action for their mutual benefit."

Legion of Decency Objects To Mae West's Air Program

The National Legion of Decency addressed a letter of protest yesterday to NBC, Standard Brands, Inc., for Chase & Sanborn, and the J. Walter Thompson Agency over "the low moral character of the material offered in the radio appearance last Sunday evening of Miss Mae West."

The protest marks the first instance of an expression of Legion of Decency concern over a radio program, the organization's efforts, heretofore, having been confined to the objectionable in films. Justifying its concern over the Mae West broadcast, the Legion's letter, which was signed by Mary Harden Looram, asserts that its efforts to discourage the use of such material in motion pictures "are seriously embarrassed by your radio broadcast."

The letter follows:

Gentlemen:

The National Legion of Decency has always directed its efforts and confined itself to the realm of motion pictures. We feel that in this particular case, however, we have a certain equity which justifies the protest we are hereby registering.

The Legion of Decency wishes respectfully to present its protest over the low moral character of the material offered in the radio appearance Sunday evening of Miss Mae West.

This agency is profoundly distressed over various incidents of this broadcast. These comprise a character of public entertainment against which this agency has made repeated and emphatic protests.

We are shocked to observe that, apparently, the factors responsible for this broadcast are not to be depended upon for the cooperation which has been so generally extended to the objectives of the National Legion of Decency. The implications of this broadcast are of particular concern to us because the characterizations and material which has been presented by Miss West in various of her motion picture appearances constitute for us a matter of grave worry and concern. Our efforts to discourage such presentations are seriously embarrassed by your radio broadcast.

The National Legion of Decency will appreciate an expression from you as to your intentions for the future use of material of the character which is herewith objected to.

Very truly yours,
MARY HARDEN LOORAM,
National Legion of Decency, 485 Madison Ave., New York City.

Final Protest On RKO Plan Goes to Bondy

Objections Mainly from Minority Holders

That opposition to the RKO plan of reorganization is limited to minority stockholder and creditor groups was revealed yesterday with the presentation to Federal Judge William Bondy of the final objections to the plan.

With the expiration yesterday of the time allotted for the filing of objections, none of the secured or unsecured creditors' committees whose assents to the plan are essential to its approval by the court, is on record as opposed to its adoption. Judge Bondy is scheduled to begin hearings on the objections to the plan Tuesday. With the opposition limited to groups and individuals representing only a small fraction of the claims against RKO, and their objections being centered upon points which already have received the approval of Special Master George W. Alger, an early confirmation of the plan without change in its basic provisions is regarded in reorganization circles as highly probable.

The last objections to the plan filed yesterday were those of the Independent Stockholders' Protective Committee; Edward J. Hickey, a

Ampa Members Turn Out to Honor Vogel

More than 300 members of Ampa turned out yesterday for the luncheon at the International Casino in honor of A-Mike Vogel, newly appointed editor of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Being an old Ampa member and knowing what sometimes happens to members who try to make serious speeches, Vogel started off with something that sounded like a political oration. He was stopped by Paul Lazarus, Jr., who was pinch-hitting for Ralph Rolan. He resumed in a semi-serious vein and let the hecklers have their fling. When it was over he received general congratulations.

Fillmore Hyde, editor of Cue, discussed the conflict between advertising and editorial departments over film reviews.

Susan Kaaren and Harriet Hoctor were introduced.

Labor Board Orders Metro Case Hearing

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—The National Labor Relations Board today, in an order issued from Washington, directed the Los Angeles Regional Labor Relations Board to conduct a hearing on charges of James E. Shaw, studio electrician, that he was discharged from M-G-M last March 12 because of union activities.

The local board some time ago refused to hold a hearing on the case and referred the matter to Washington. Shaw, a member of Local 37 of the I.A.T.S.E., claimed he lost his job because of his activity in organizing the "37 White Rats," an intramural organization of I.A. members seeking the return of autonomy to four locals of the I.A. here. Under the order of the National Board, the local unit must hold a hearing and call witnesses from M-G-M to ascertain why Shaw was discharged and whether he should be reinstated with full back pay.

Chicago Suit Awaits Philadelphia Result

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Before filing proposed suit against B. & K. charging monopoly Allied will watch the decision in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia as major companies' counselors there state that duals damage public morals, cause cut-throat competition and are harmful to the industry as a whole.

According to Aaron Saperstein, the majors take almost the opposite stand in the situation here, thus dictating the release policy to suit their needs.

Through Aldermen A. G. Lindell and Thomas J. Terrell a new ordinance will be proposed next week asking that duals be abolished because of the injury to health and morals.

Washington stockholder; the U. S. National Bank of Denver, and Ernest W. Stirn, a Milwaukee stockholder.

The objections filed yesterday, like those filed earlier, centered principally upon the proposal to settle Rockefeller Center's $9,150,000 claim against RKO by the issuance to the former of 460,000 shares of new RKO common stock and the reduction of stockholders' equities by one-half. Scattered objections and contentions were included in the papers filed yesterday directed at less vital features of the plan.

Earlier objectors to the plan included Iva MacPherson and an associated group of Boston stockholders; George Sardou, a stockholder, and George L. Schein, New York stockholder.

No objections to the plan have been made by the principal stockholders' committee, the secured creditors' committee, Rockefeller Center or the holders of the largest individual secured claims, such as the Karl Hoblitzelle interests. Atlas Corp., proponent of the plan, with Lehman Bros. and RCA, control more than 84 per cent of the RKO debentures outstanding and more than 47 per cent of the outstanding common stock. None of these three has filed objections to the plan.

Both points may be settled today, but before Monday in any event. Floyd Odlum, Atlas Corp. head, leaves for the coast on Monday to confer on the new RKO studio and theatre setups, and the deal is scheduled to be concluded prior to his departure.

Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros., with their associates, acquired 605,731 shares of RKO common and $4,893,327 face amount of RKO debentures from RCA for $5,000,000 two years ago, and obtained their option to purchase for $6,000,000 a like amount of common stock and debentures, constituting the remainder of RCA's holdings, up to Dec. 31 next. It is this option, less the securities to be picked up at this time, which will be extended to Dec. 31, 1938.

Lew Lehr steals the show with his bit on wood nymphs. The pictures were taken in Florida's Cypress Gardens with the comic providing a line of chatter that will garner plenty of laughs.

The balance of the reel has the usual assortment of items, which include: J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of Currency, delivering a Christmas message at Washington; children visiting Santa's workshop at Shenandoah Caverns, Va.; school children at work and play in Oklahoma City, the educational building precariously surrounded by oil wells; a glimpse of the World's Fair in miniature; the Buffalo roundup at Yellowstone Park.

Fashions, the latest in footwear for evening wear and for the beach, are on parade; 14 new Navy air bombers take off from San Diego for a 3,080-mile non-stop flight to Coco Solo, Panama; Johnny Revolta putting the lucky ball in the $10,000 Miami Biltmore open golf tourney; and simon pures socking away in a squared-ring in Boston for a glorious slugfest.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 226
(M-G-M)

There seems to have been a scarcity of exciting events for the newsreels these past few days. The editors of this reel, however, have gotten up a good issue which includes several interesting topics.

A flood in northern California occupies first place. It is vivid, well cut material. The second clip is a resume of Senate opinion on the Chinese conflict. Senators Bone, Shipstead and Bridges are seen and heard in brief speeches which urge the removal of American forces from the Orient.

Snapshots offer glimpses of a model of the forthcoming World's Fair, the renewal of an arbitration pact by the American Newspaper Publishers' Ass'n, and motorized military equipment maneuvers in Kentucky.

The Woman's Page is composed of shots of various female celebrities parading their fashionable clothes aboard the Normandie shortly before she sailed. Ed Sullivan presents the Daily News crowns to Myrna Loy and Clark Gable. The sporting division shows the highlights of the Miami-Biltmore golf tournament at Coral Gables.

Paramount News
No. 39
(Paramount)

It has been a dull news period the past few days, as indicated in Paramount's latest issue. The editors were rather hard put to gather a lively combination of material.

The reel opens with shots of the Miami golf tournament, won by Johnny Revolta, whose skillful putting is caught on the screen. Pictured is the unusual case of the Pennsylvania father of eight who is in jail because he refused to permit his son to be vaccinated, and consequently the lad cannot attend school. Japanese throngs are seen hailing German, Italian and Japanese speakers on the occasion of Japan's entry into the anti-Communist three-nation bloc.

Some of the terrible things that can happen in an amateur hour are caught, as the reel pictures the latest craze to hit England. An effective bit catches the thanks of a New Orleans boy, to save whose sight a 63-year old man sacrificed the sight of one eye. The brilliant engineering feat which is the new Lincoln Tunnel in New York is seen prior to its opening to traffic, and the issue ends with a staged but attractive Christmas greeting from the reel to the public.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 43
(RKO)

The midweek newsreel issues are notorious consumers of the feature stuff which editors hold in reserve to get out a reel when news "breaks" are either scarce or non-existent. This release should give the feature department plenty to do in the way of replenishing the reserve.

The subjects, in the order of their appearance in the reel, are some flood scenes from Northern California; tryouts of New York City's new snow removal equipment at Lake Placid; the boys' choir of a New York church in a rendition of "Stille Nacht"; Secretary of Agriculture Wallace addressing the American Farm Bureau at Chicago; election campaign scenes in Moscow prior to the Soviet's first "secret" ballot; Southbury, Conn., citizens expressing their disapproval of a Nazi camp within the town boundaries; the University of Washington crew in training; progress of construction work on the Grand Coulee Dam, and scenes from the Miami Biltmore open golf tournament.

Running time, 8 mins. K.

Universal News
(Vol. 9, No. 624)
(Universal)

Novelties make up the bulk of the latest Universal Newsreel issue, four of them being labeled exclusive. Only four of the 10 subjects can be classified as news, but there is enough variety and the treatment is smart enough to make the reel interesting.

Several knockouts in the All-American amateur boxing bouts at Boston furnish a lively start. Then the inhabitants of Sebastopol in "sunny" California are shown rowing and splashing around in a widespread flood. Louisville's icy coating with slipping automobiles and airport attendants skidding are something of a surprise. Revolta winning the Miami Biltmore open golf tournament with the spectators attired in summer clothes make audiences feel comfortable—also envious.

Somebody discovered and photographed the Cave Women of America, clad in leopard skins, initiating a new member, but they're the mildest looking cave women that ever reached a screen. There's plenty of suspense in scenes of workmen hoisting the new seven-ton hands for the Metropolitan Tower clock while a Universal camera man lies on a plank with an Eyemo camera up near the top of the building. Graham McNamee enlivens a style show of woolen bathing suits, Santa Claus leads a group of children into a Shenandoah, Va., cave, a puppy show is presented, and ski experts do their stuff in Madison Square Garden.

Allowance Denied in Roxy Case Decision

The petition of the Tipton Bondholders' Protective Committee for an allowance of $5,000 as fee in the Roxy reorganization was denied by Judge Francis G. Caffey in the U. S. District Court here yesterday. Judge Caffey ruled that the committee had traded in first mortgage bonds and that he therefore was compelled to disallow their request.

In a written opinion Judge Caffey revealed that several members of the Tipton Committee had purchased and sold Roxy bonds at a profit of $2,160. The committee's request for $361 for disbursements was allowed, however. Judge Caffey cautioned other petitioners that the allowance of disbursements in this case was not be "regarded as a precedent." The ruling came somewhat as a surprise as the committee took a leading part in the hearing before Special Master Addison S. Pratt. The Tipton Committee originally objected to the plan, but later approved it when an amendment raising the rate of interest was submitted.

which would specifically allow the employment of child actors under permit, argued that the Schneider amendment would not react to the disadvantage of the film industry, later to find that no provision had been made for the exemption of child talent.

The opposition was led by Representative Dockweiler (Dem. Cal.) who asserted it would prohibit the employment of such children as Shirley Temple because the film industry has been held by the courts to be in interstate commerce. Supporters of the amendment, however, declared film production is purely intrastate.

Dockweiler later attempted to secure recognition to offer an amendment specifically exempting picture production from the legislation but was unable to do so. He will make further efforts tomorrow.

As the House adjourned the situation was so confused that no one could be found who would attempt to say whether films were covered by either the measure itself or any of the amendments adopted.

Monogram Franchise Men to Meet Mar. 1

W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram, has set March 1 as the tentative date for a meeting of franchise holders on the coast. The session will be followed by a series of regional conclaves in May, Johnston said.

Next year's program, according to present plans, call for 48 features, of which 16 will be westerns. Production budgets will be increased 25 per cent next season, Johnston added. It was estimated that 4,538 theatres are playing Monogram product.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Prescription for Romance"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—The title of this undertaking is more than commonly descriptive. That is to say, it is a picture written, produced, directed and acted in complete compliance with the currently favored prescription for what is habitually described as "light, frothy entertainment." Under that circumstance it could not well be remarkable. Standard is fairer word for it. The names involved are Wendy Barrie, Kent Taylor, Mischa Auer, Dorothea Kent, Frank Jenks, Henry Hunter and Bert Roach, with Auer and a dog, not named in the cast, providing the principal laughs.

Taylor plays a detective sent to Budapest to bring back Hunter, absconder, who has taken refuge with Miss Barrie, American doctor studying in that city. Auer is a count living by his wits and Jenks a newspaper man. Both attach themselves to the search for Hunter, which is ultimately successful. Detective and doctor fall in love of course while all this is going on and probably marry afterward.

Edmund Grainger produced the picture with Sylan Simon directing. The story is by John Reinhardt and Robert Neville, the screen play by James Mulhauser, Robert T. Shannon and Albert R. Perkins. It is neither the greatest not the least of the season's practically innumerable ventures in the same general classification.

Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Exiled to Shanghai"

(Republic)

Audiences viewing "Exiled to Shanghai" should be kept in a constantly smiling and mildly excited state. It is one of those gay, light dramas, a bit far-fetched, but otherwise cleverly fashioned for the ultimate in inocuous amusement.

Wallace Ford contributes a good performance as a newsreel cameraman with an unquenchable verve that carries him through adventure, business difficulties and romance. June Travis, Dean Jagger, Arthur Lake and William Bakewell are good in the support.

Ford gets into difficulties with his reel when he photographs Miss Travis, a slogan contest winner. He unknowingly passes her off as a sweepstakes winner. Various complications ensue. In a humorous manner Ford quits his job. A short time later he naively joins up with Bakewell, a phony television promoter. Through Ford's initiative and contacts, Bakewell gets Jonathan Hale, the newsreel head, to invest in the phony corporation. Ford uncovers the fraud when an incident, vaguely disguised, resembling the recent dirigible disaster is televised. A newsreel of an ordinary landing was substituted. Entanglements with the police, the friendly enmity between Jagger and Ford and a sketchy romance are also worked in to keep interest up while the main theme unfolds. Eventually Ford marries Miss Travis and Jagger finds himself televising the war in China while the loving pair watch in a theatre.

It is a bit on the pseudo-scientific side. Nick Grinde directed. Many stock shots are used. Wellyn Totman did the screenplay. The supporting cast includes Sarah Padden, Syd Saylor, Johnny Arthur and Minerva Urecal.

Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

'Sacred,' 'Submarine' and 'Truth' Leading Grossers

"Nothing Sacred," "The Awful Truth" and "Submarine D-1" appeared to be the leaders in the nation's key city box-office parade last week, with special mention due to "The Awful Truth" because of the strength it is displaying in holdover engagements in numerous spots.

"Nothing Sacred" led in Detroit, Kansas City, Cleveland and Philadelphia, "Submarine D-1" was the leader in Milwaukee, ran strong in Cleveland and led in Cincinnati, while "The Awful Truth showed continued strength in a third Denver week, in Detroit, a fourth Minneapolis week, led in Seattle in a third week and was held again, in the fourth Cincinnati week, second Pittsburgh stanza, second San Francisco week. The film is in its fifth week in Hartford and Springfield, fourth week in Los Angeles, played five weeks in Toronto, four in Columbus, and is in its sixth week in Cleveland.

Chicago's lead went to "Conquest" with "Back in Circulation" at the State-Lake the only other film to better par, by $1,300. "A Damsel in Distress" was high in Denver, where "Nothing Sacred" was strong. "Stand-In," aided by a stage show, was behind "Nothing Sacred" at Detroit. "Double Wedding " topped average by $4,100 at Loew's Capitol in Washington, where "Stage Door" was fair in the second week.

"Navy Blue and Gold" at $9,000 at the Minneapolis Orpheum was one of the few to better par in the Twin Cities. "Submarine D-1," with Merry-Go-Round of 1938," was the only bill to better average in Milwaukee. "Submarine D-1," over the $6,500 average by $1,500 at Keith's in Cincinnati, was best in a light week. "Stage Door" ran behind "The Awful Truth" in Pittsburgh, where grosses also were generally weak. "Navy Blue and Gold" and "Big Time Girl" displayed good strength in Philadelphia. Only "The Last Gangster" was able to top average in Oklahoma City by $700. "The Firefly" topped San Francisco grosses, going $3,000 over the Warfield average. Kansas City houses were generally weak, behind "Nothing Sacred." 'Stage Door" and "Annapolis Salute" went $2,700 over par at the College in New Haven and consequently the bill was held.

No Decision on Form Of Chicago Taxation

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Unable to agree among themselves regarding their proposal to the City Council of a plan for increasing theatre license fees in Chicago, theatremen are continuing meetings to work out a suitable solution. Independent exhibitors thus far have been unable to get B. & K. to agree to the fee plan as B. & K., with the largest theatres under their control, feel that the tax arrangement which Allied proposes is unfair to them.

In the meantime, the City Council is considering the licensing of race-track bookies as in Omaha and Los Angeles with the hope that this revenue would help meet the greater portion of the budget deficit.

Warn Reels to Abide By Pact with Union

The International Photographers' Union, Local 644, has issued a warning to newsreels to cease the practice of using material supplied by free lance non-union photographers. The warning came from Charles W. Downs, union business agent.

Downs said that under the two-year union deal with the reels, they are prohibited from using free lance material or purchasing films. He declared that the union recognized the fact that in the case of disasters and similar events, the use of free lance or bought material was necessary, but "now they are abusing the privilege." Two other practices to which the union is objecting, said Downs, is the use of newsreel photographers on commercial films and the exchanging of prints by the newsreel companies, which he contends results in the use of fewer cameramen, and which he called "unethical." Downs said that the union may demand that its label be placed on the reels.

Decency Move For Air Urged By Churchman

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Initiation of a movement to clean up broadcasting, similar to the Legion of Decency sponsored by the Catholic Church to improve films, was agitated last night by Rev. Dr. Maurice S. Sheehy, head of the Department of Religion of Catholic University, in an address before the Newman Club of George Washington University.

Declaring that the recent broadcast appearance of Mae West was the "low spot in all broadcasting history," Dr. Sheehy urged that complaints be filed with the F.C.C. against the Chase & Sanborn Co.

That concern, he said, put the program on over the protest of its own actors and after he had written a warning that "if Mae West indulges in her usual risque line next Sunday, the Catholic press and a national Catholic organization will appeal for a boycott of this program."

Calls Law Inadequate

"The Federal statute on broadcasting is so vague that it is innocuous," Dr. Sheehy asserted. "True, if the members of the F.C.C. wish to protect people from such filth as Chase & Sanborn purveyed last Sunday night, they can do so. But do they?

"Under the direction of a committee of Bishops, the Legion of Decency has done much to raise the moral standard of the movies, basing its action upon the assumption that there are still enough decent people, Jewish, Protestant and Catholic, to rally to its cause. I suggest that we petition this organization to extend its efforts to the field of radio."

To Air "Snow White" Start

strenuously object to. There is nothing that Mae West can give a radio audience and, in fact, it is pretty difficult to conceive that there is anything she can give any audience.

No thoughtful man but would agree that certain motion picture personalities are also to an even greater degree radio personalities, and that their appearance helps rather than hurts their box-office draw, yet, on the other hand, there are splendid screen personalities that on the radio are just nothing at all.

I am glad for your editorial and action. I congratulate you.

Radio Industry—

Mr. Martin Quigley:

By this means may I congratulate you on your courageous editorial appearing in the December 14th issue of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Not only is the topic very timely but well done. Radio, because of its phenomenal growth, has too often threatened to go beyond the boundaries of public acceptance.

Unless we in Radio realize this, we must be prepared to have an autocratic censorship forced upon us. We do not want this to happen.

CBS Extends Paley's Deal For One Year

CBS has amended William S. Paley's contract providing that his term of employment as president of the Columbia Broadcasting System is to end Dec. 31, 1940, instead of Dec. 31, 1939.

Singer Edict Applies Only To Road Units

President Joseph N. Weber, who Tuesday night issued an edict to non-union singers to join the American Federation of Actors if they desired to continue working with union bands, said yesterday that his edict was applicable only to traveling bands, and not to the entertainment business as a whole, as was reported in several newspapers yesterday.

Entertainment circles were disturbed yesterday because of the "misunderstanding." Without mentioning the name of the orchestra leader who was credited in yesterday's newspapers with making public the edict, Weber termed him "a fool," who was motivated primarily by the publicity he might derive from the story.

The false report was that Weber's edict applied to all singers on commercial and sustaining radio programs, singers with jazz bands and all actors who use music as a part of their entertainment medium. These number approximately 10,000.

Reveals Letter Contents

Explaining his edict referred only to traveling orchestras which employ non-union entertainers, Weber made public the contents of the letter which caused the alarm, and which, he reiterated, applied only to orchestras which travel about the country, usually carrying singers and other performers who comprise a unit of entertainers.

The letter, which Weber explained was dictated by him, but sent to Federation members by National Federation Treasurer Harry Brenton, whose office is in Boston, follows:

"Kindly be advised that if actors, singers or other entertainers are carried by your orchestra, they must be members of the American Federation of Actors. If they are not, they must immediately become such if they desire to continue to perform with your orchestra. Union orchestras cannot carry or play with non-union entertainers. This order conforms to Standing Resolution No. 13 of the American Federation of Musicians. The matter is very important."

Standing Resolution of the A. F. of M. rules is as follows, it was learned:

"A member of the Federation following another trade must become and remain a member of the union of such other trades if same is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. If a member of the A. F. of M. employs or assists in employing men who follow another trade or profession he must employ or assist in employing union men if such other trade is organized and affiliated with the American Federation of Labor."

Weber explained that all entertainers had been organized recently by the A. F. of L., of which the American Federation of Actors is now a part.

Extended A. F. M. Deadline

Because a majority of the 293 I.R.N.A. stations have proved their desire to accept the A. F. of M.'s plan of settlement and are now negotiating with locals throughout the country, Joseph N. Weber, president of the Federation, yesterday extended the deadline to Dec. 22, to permit the stations time in which to complete their negotiations.

Signed contracts from the stations are being received at union headquarters in a steady daily flow, he said.

Hurlbutt Was Riding

Washington, Dec. 16.—For three years Jimmy Hurlbutt, news editor of WJSV, has been chasing Washington fires in the fond hope of finding one big enough and lasting enough for a special flame-by-flame broadcast.

On Sunday a Washington shoe store was destroyed by what was termed the "biggest fire in years."

WJSV put on an on-the-scene broadcast; most of the fire-fighting equipment of the Capital battled the blaze, and practically all of Washington's population turned out to watch—except Hurlbutt. It was his day off, and he had gone for a long drive in the country.

"The Awful Truth" pulled $4,000 at the RKO Grand, where it was in its fourth downtown week, and held for another seven days. "Alcatraz Island" came within a whisper of the $6,500 par at the RKO Lyric, but statements from the other houses were not particularly cheerful reading.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 16.—"Submarine D-1," with "Merry-Go-Round of 1938," was the only attraction to top par with $6,000 at the Warner, just $1,000 to the good.

Reputation of McNinch Hurt By West Show

Broadcast Aids Demand For Radio Probe

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The violently unfavorable reaction to the Mae West broadcast on the Chase and Sanborn hour last Sunday evening has served to climax a growing disatisfaction with the failure of Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the F.C.C., to do the cleanup job for which he was transferred from the Federal Power Commission.

Thus far, it was declared here today, McNinch has done nothing other than to restate some of the old orders of the commission. His failure to meet Representative MacFarlane of Texas half way when the Congressman asked for an explanation of the Payne disbarment from the recent Segal-Smith trial also has served to add supporters to the Congressional resolutions which are seeking an investigation of the radio situation.

The entire Catholic community of the nation is being exhorted by church leaders and organizations here to make an effective protest against the West type of programs. Dr. Maurice S. Sheehy, head of the Department of Religion at Catholic University, has written to all Catholic editors asking editorial support.

Protests Increasing Over West Program

Protests against the Mae West broadcast of last Sunday evening for Chase & Sanborn continued to spread yesterday, emanating from the press and educators in widely separated parts of the country. Telegrams and letters voicing disapproval from women's clubs and similar organizations were received at the offices of NBC.

Meanwhile, Stanley Resor, presi-

Court Affirms Order Against Consolidated

Refinance Plan Declared Null and Void

DOVER, Del., Dec. 17.—The State Supreme Court in special session here today handed down a decision affirming a decree of the chancellor in declaring null and void and granting a permanent injunction against the proposed amendment to the certificate of incorporation of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., in litigation brought against the company by Norman Johnson, New York, a preferred stockholder. Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott handed down the opinion in Chancery Court at Wilmington last September.

The corporation had sought by the proposed amendment to change its currently outstanding 400,000 shares of $2 dividend cumulative preferred stock into 500,000 shares of $1 dividend cumulative preferred stock and 100,000 shares of the new common stock. The old common, 524,937 shares, was to have been converted into 349,982 shares of new common on a ratio of two-thirds of a new share for each share of old. Also the plan provided that dividends in arrears to the extent

Bank Night Killed By Mo. High Court

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 17.—The Missouri Supreme Court today held Bank Night to be illegal under the State Lottery Law thus reversing the decision of Judge Marion D. Waltner of Circuit Court here last year in the case of State vs. R. W. McEwan, Bank Night distributor. The opinion written by H. J. Westhues, commissioner, and concurred in by members of the Supreme Court stated:

"The courts would be blind indeed if they could not see that the scheme described is a deliberate plan to evade the lottery statutes. The scheme has

Redmond Gets New Reel Suit Verdict

Damages in the suit of Jack Redmond, a professional golfer, for alleged violation of the Civil Rights Law against Columbia, were raised from six cents to $1,500 by a four to one vote of the Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday. No opinion was rendered by the court. Justice Ferdinand Pecora rendered a verdict in Redmond's favor in May, but restricted the judgment to a nominal amount because Redmond proved no damages.

The action was based on the use of clips from a Fox Movietone Newsreel in the Columbia short "Golfing Rhythm." Redmond contended that the use of his picture and name in the film and advertising material without his consent violated Sections 50 and 51 of the New York Civil Rights Law.

Columbia charged that Redmond had sought publicity in the newsreel and that the subsequent short had aided rather than harmed him. Redmond pointed out that Sidney Franklyn, a bull fighter, had previously been awarded $5,000, in a similar action.

Insiders' Outlook

By A-MIKE VOGEL

MUCH has been said about the testimonials tendered Abe Blank and Si Fabian, these few days back. But something remains to be said and that has to do with the community standing of the honored guests as indicated by the cooperation of officialdom, state and local, and conservative leading citizens who hastened to ring loud the welkin.

An exhibitor who is regarded highly by his neighbors usually rates the same in the trade. The reverse is not necessarily true. The theatreman's business associates may turn out in large numbers from near and far to give him the "jolly good fellow" routine. If the home folks are not around to chime in on the chorus, somebody is kidding someone.

In Des Moines, there were governors, bishops, mayors, prominent locals, special editions, banners and bunting, the open door for visitors and what not in honor of Abe Blank's twenty-fifth exhibition anniversary. A few days later, Albany spread the same sort of a dish for Si Fabian's twentieth. The industry may have originated these celebrations, but the home folks took them over.

Abe and Si of course are to be toasted for their accomplishments in the span of years they have served themselves and the industry. But as warm a toast is justified for the constructive work they have done in elevating the theatre in their communities.

Pictures projected within the conventionally cold surroundings of a 10 A. M. home office screening must perforce stand strictly upon their own merits. There is no helping hand from pre-sold paying audiences to sway professional critical opinion, even when critics are willing to be swayed. There is nothing but the picture itself.

This observer has just come away from such a screening of Warners' "Tovarich" and is pleased to bestow high compliment upon the Anatole Litvak production in saying the picture creates a warm glow.

Now, warm glows are not to be had for the asking. They are not frequently to be met with in a deliberately contrived entertainment.

A flaming sunset, yes. Field of ripening grain stirred gently by a vagrant wind, a toddling child at play, Rockefeller Center after dark—all create this infrequent quickening of the senses. When makers of motion pictures turn out a production that calls forth a similar emotion, they have attained a high expression of pure entertainment. "Tovarich" is that kind of an attraction.

We have just gotten around to Doug Churchill's comments on the imbroglio between the industry and radio commentators. Much of what he has to say about the controversy cannot be denied. But in choosing to criticize producers who have good reason to hold a tight rein on irresponsible writers dependent upon Hollywood publicity for their livings, Mr. Churchill fails to come quite near enough to the target to register a complete bull's eye.

"The producers," The Times correspondent writes, "are in the peculiar position of being dependent upon something for which they pay nothing and then dictating what kind of publicity they receive."

Mr. Churchill should know there are over 400 accredited correspondents in Hollywood representing publications in various parts of the world. These writers are paid out of revenues received from sale of advertising space.

Theatres advertise in newspapers, and heavily. Because of long and dubious custom, for which there is no good reason today, theatres are forced to pay a higher rate than other local advertisers. That pays and more for all the publicity Mr. Churchill thinks they get for nothing.

all the elements of a lottery and is just as harmful as if it were limited to those purchasing tickets. We hold that sufficient consideration exists in the scheme to come within the terms of our statute which makes it a felony to establish or aid in establishing any lottery, gift, enterprise or scheme of drawing in the nature of a lottery. One cannot sit by his fireside and take part therein. He must be present and swell the crowd. Such persons naturally get enthusiastic and the gambling spirit is quickened, stakes rise from week to week and pictures become of little importance."

Westhues said that to follow the cases cited in defense of Bank Night would be a policy that would "only tend to force legislatures to constantly enact new laws to meet the ever increasing cunning devices to evade existing laws. Anyone who deliberately attempts to evade the letter and spirit of the law is not entitled to the strictest construction of the law in his favor."

The test case concerned the promotion of Bank Night by McEwan in the Ashland here on June 18, 1935. In reversing the Circuit Court the Supreme Court sent the case back for trial.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Rosalie"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 17.—Big is quite literally the word for "Rosalie." It is spacious, populous and long. All the dimensional superlatives in the adjectival arsenal apply with complete accuracy. The production is both gigantic and collossal in the pure sense of those words and it may very well turn out to be great as well, in somewhat the sense that "The Great Ziegfeld," which it resembles, was great, although it makes no pretense of having the story meat that distinguished that production. The narrative content of "Rosalie" is in the pattern of musical comedy as Ziegfeld produced it, inconsequential stuff on which to string song, dance, spectacle and humor. The cast and production personnel engaged in the fabrication of these materials are of the best. It would seem to follow as night the day that unless sheer magnitude and splendor have lost their power to impress and please since the Great Glorifier passed on, his henchman, William Anthony McGuire's retracing of his late mentor's footsteps will roll up a substantial take.

Nelson Eddy sings the role of the West Point cadet and grid star enamoured of Princess Eleanor Powell, of Romanza, whose father, King Frank Morgan, betrothes her to Prince Tom Rutherford for reasons of state and Queen Edna May Oliver. Cadet Ray Bolger accompanies Eddy and Lady in Waiting Ilona Massey attends Princess Powell throughout the romantic complications. King Morgan plays at ventriloquism in something like the Bergen manner and Billy Gilbert takes down second comedy honors as a sneezy Balkan army officer.

Eddy's singing is robust and tender in turn and his numbers well within popular comprehension. Miss Powell dances somewhat more effectively than of late under more elaborate production circumstances. Morgan's king recalls his triumph in "The Affairs of Cellini" except when he's burdened with the regrettable dummy. Ray Bolger has quite a stint of comic dialogue and manages to get in some highly satisfactory stepping. Miss Oliver gets little chance to do her stuff. Miss Massey flashes a voice quite likely to carry her far and a personality that may strike public fancy this way or that but in either case definitely.

Albertina Rasch adds substantially to her already eminent artistic stature by the polished proficiency of dances and ensembles employing immense groups in consummately coordinated routines. Words and music by Cole Porter of course require no further endorsement.

W. S. Van Dyke's direction is notable for holding reasonably taut the attenuated thread of a necessarily intermittent narrative and Producer McGuire's screenplay from the Ziegfeld original by himself and Guy Bolton is continuously coherent and sometimes unique.

It may be in order, from the exhibitor point of view, to remark that the football completion given the picture in early press reference is based solely upon an introductory sequence which might very well be dispensed with now that the same company's "Navy Blue and Gold" has covered that subject so altogether admirably. It may be pertinent, too, to mention that the treatment of West Point life and tradition in "Rosalie" is typical musical comedy treatment and not at all the considered attention given Annapolis in the other film.

Running time, 122 minutes. "G."

There are very few children in the industry, he said, and those who do work are fully protected by the studios and by California law.

dent of J. Walter Thompson Co., the advertising agency handling the broadcasts, wrote a letter to NBC accepting responsibility for the broadcast, expressing regret that it had given offense, and giving assurance that a similar situation would not again occur. Lenox Lohr, president of NBC, in a response to Resor's letter, declared his organization shared both the regret and responsibility for the broadcast.

An outspoken protest was voiced by The Brooklyn Tablet, weekly publication of the Brooklyn Catholic diocese. The skit was called "a cheap travesty, with the notorious Mae West in a featured role, on the Garden of Eden." Editorially, the publication called it "an open insult to every Christian in the country."

Another protest came from Manhattan College, which will publish an editorial in the next issue of Quadrangle, the student publication, protesting the broadcast and urging the Catholic Church to establish some sort of regulation of the air, similar to the Legion of Decency. The Catholic Women's Club of Westchester was another group voicing objection.

Leaders of the Legion of Decency in Tulsa, Okla., also voiced objection to the broadcast and urged the necessity of some means of exercising a "cleansing" influence on radio.

Resor Letter Specific

Resor declared, in his letter to NBC:

"On behalf of our client, Chase & Sanborn, we wish to express our deepest regret that the program broadcast Sunday night, Dec. 12, gave offense to any one. Obviously, the whole purpose of these broadcasts is to afford wholesome entertainment.

"These programs, over a period of eight years, are evidence of this. The script of this feature of the broadcast was our responsibility. It was a mistake, and we can assure the public at large that the same mistake will not be made again."

Lohr's reply was as follows:

"We appreciate your expression of concern about the broadcast of December 12, against which criticism has been directed. We share with you the regret you express as we share also the responsibility in this incident.

"Our interests are entirely mutual in striving to give to the American public the type of wholesome entertainment which it wants, and which it has every right to expect. The National Broadcasting Company can be counted upon to intensify its efforts to this end."

McCarthy The Wooden Takes Radio Honors

Wins Editors' Poll of Motion Picture Daily

By JACK BANNER

Suspected of being radio's outstanding attraction virtually since the beginning of his now historic tiffs with W. C. Fields on the Chase and Sanborn Hour, and now known to be the rightful radio champion of 1937 is Charlie McCarthy, the amazing hunk of pine to which Edgar Bergen has given such enjoyable voice.

The saucy little ventriloquist's dummy has been so declared by a majority of the more than 400 radio editors who were consulted in determining the results of MOTION PICTURE DAILY's second annual radio popularity poll. In unseating Jack Benny, winner of the championship in last year's MOTION PICTURE DAILY poll, the loquacious dummy scores memorably, for he has been before the microphone only since December of 1936, when Rudy Vallee introduced him to the listening public.

The balloting was conducted by MOTION PICTURE DAILY on behalf of Fame: The Box Office Check-Up, which will appear early next year and

Shelved Wage Bill Relieves Industry

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Film interests were greatly relieved yesterday when Administration forces admittedly had little hope of the wage and hour bill receiving new consideration during the coming session of Congress, as a result of the action of the House Friday night in sending it back to the Labor Committee by a vote of 216 to 198.

While it was generally conceded

Schnitzer Starts Warner Job Today

Having completed all product deals in his territory two weeks ahead of time, Edward M. Schnitzer, eastern district manager for Republic, today will join Warners in a similar post. He had been scheduled to take over his new job on Jan. 1.

Schnitzer will supervise Warner sales in New York, New Jersey, Albany, Buffalo, New Haven and Boston.

No successor has been appointed to fill the Schnitzer vacancy at Republic. J. J. Milstein, general sales manager, cut his cross-country tour short and hurried back from Chicago Friday. He stated that he has not given the matter any thought. However, a new district sales head will be named after the first of the year, he said.

No Fun for Her

Oklahoma City, Dec. 19.—The "Barnyard Boys" radio program, a 6:30 A.M. affair, may please many of Oklahoma City's early risers, but to Mrs. Avery Harris it is just a pain.

Of all the noises emanating from the radio station, which she alleges disturb her, those of the "Barnyard Boys" program are the most disagreeable, Mrs. Harris told a jury from the witness stand in District Judge Frank Douglass' courtroom.

She lives right next door to Station KTOK, and she and her husband are suing KTOK for $8,000, alleging inconvenience, loss of sleep, loss of peace of mind and depreciation of the value of their house.

Joseph Lee, station manager, said it's all a mistake; that his station has only four midget loud speakers, and that he doesn't see how the noise, if the neighbors want to call it that, could bother anyone.

H. C. Eggleston, who said he had been a real estate man here for 18 years, testified that the Harris property was worth $2,500 before KTOK was built last year and that it is worth only $1,500 now.

"Bicycling" On Increase, Report Shows

Other Violations Up in Year, Bureau Says

"Bicycling" and other forms of film copyright violations in the exhibition end of the industry are on the increase, it is revealed in the annual report of the Copyright Protection Bureau, covering the period from Oct. 31, 1936, to Oct. 31, 1937.

The report, released on Saturday by Jack H. Levin, director of the Copyright Protection Bureau, also disclosed that the organization was active during the period in the investigation of film exhibitions under non-theatrical auspices in 33 states.

Of the increase in copyright violations, in general, and on bicycling, in particular, the report states that, "with approximately the same number of theatres investigated under practically identical methods as in each of past recent years, one or more violations were found in 12.03 per cent of the theatres where investigations were completed. This is in excess of the 9.3 per cent of irregularities disclosed during the fiscal year 1936, but still considerably under the 44.6 per cent for the years 1930 and 1931. In addition to the increase of Charnas recently returned from the coast with Albert Warner and conferred with Harry M. and Jack L. Shortly after his arrival, he sold out his interest in the Criterion to Moss.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 19.—Darryl Zanuck and his corps of writers, directors, composers and technical assistants have again turned out quality musical comedy entertainment which has wide commercial possibilities in "Love and Hisses." Built of popular ingredients, it compares more than favorably with the previous Walter Winchell-Ben Bernie presentation, "Wake Up and Live." Although it lacks the element of personal surprise that characterized the first appearance of that pair, it packs surprises of its own that fully discount the apparent shortcoming.

The chief surprise is Simone Simon. As an actress she is considerably improved, but it was her singing that handed the preview audience a wallop and provoked intense applause. Her rendition of an operatic aria from "Lakme" as well as modern numbers considerably enhance her value as a screen personality and it may be expected that the public will demand that in future films she be given further opportunities to sing. Another surprise is Joan Davis playing Winchell's Girl Friday. Her comedy talents have already won popularity for her but nevertheless she adds much zip and zest to this production. It may be too that Zanuck has unearthed a new singing and dancing star in Ruth Terry. The audience was highly appreciative of her efforts.

The light and interesting story is a repetition of the Winchell-Bernie feud. Bernie plans to present Miss Simon as his latest singing sensation. In collusion with Bert Lahr, Georges Rene Vant, Chick Chandler and Charles Williams they trick Winchell, who believes Miss Simon is another person until he builds her up. Winchell falls for the gag. As musical interludes intervene there comes a suggestion of romance involving Miss Simon with Dick Baldwin, an amateur songwriter. Miss Simon confesses the ruse to Winchell when she fears she will lose her boy friend. In turn Winchell gags Bernie into believing that he is to be taken for a ride by Douglas Fowley and Robert Battier, a pair of gangsters. It is his turn to laugh when Bernie is dumped into his own night club. Then there ensues the spectacularly mounted parade of musical dancing specialties which feature Miss Simon, Miss Terry, The Brewster Twins and The Peters Sisters. The later trio's serio-burlesque contribution brought down the house.

With Miss Simon rising to the heights and Winchell and Bernie probably making their farewell co-starring appearance in films and with the rest of the cast acting up to the standards of what is expected of those who appear in a first class 20th Century-Fox musical film, it can be anticipated that "Love and Hisses" will attract healthy grosses.

It is based on a story by Art Arthur who collaborated with Curtis Kenyon on the screenplay. The yarn is crowded with engaging dialogue and tricky situations. Musical embellishment provided by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel is cleverly inserted to pep up the continuity and dances are arranged by Nick Castle and Geneva Sawyers.

Sidney Lanfield's direction is marked with shrewd finesse, permitting Winchell and Bernie to dominate the early sequences while giving Bert Lahr and Miss Davis many chances to be funny. He never forgets to impress upon the audience that Miss Simon has a voice. When he turns to glamour in the finale he does it masterfully.

Showmen who like to exploit a picture have a wealth of material to work with in "Love and Hisses."

Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"All American Sweetheart"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 19.—Audiences will find little in this film to interest them and exhibitors cannot hope to do much with it commercially. As the title indicates, "All American Sweetheart" is a collegiate story. Based on a story by Robert E. Kent which Grace Neville, Fred Niblo, Jr., and Michael Simmons adapted and which Lambert Hillyer directed, it may appeal to some segments of youthful patronage. Scott Colton, Patricia Farr and Jimmy Eagles are featured supported by Gene Morgan, Arthur Loft, Joe Twerp, Ruth Hilliard, Donald Briggs, Louis D. Pron, Allen Brook and Frank C. Wilson.

Student Colton prefers to study rather than indulge in athletics. A star oarsman, he quits the crew. Miss Farr, however, takes it upon herself to make everything so uncomfortable for him that he is forced to return to the crew in time to win the big race. Wound in and around the romance of the story, is a bit of theatrical drama that has Colton mixed up in a gambling scrape in which he saves the reputation of the girl's brother and crew coxswain, Eagles.

At best, the film is a secondary Saturday afternoon attraction.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Wise Girl"

(RKO)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 19.—A theme which is not new basically has been endowed with such expert performances and tinged with such a lively flair in both dialogue and situations that "Wise Girl" emerges as first class screen fare for any audience.

Actually it is a comedy romance in the modern trend, set, with excellent production values, in Greenwich Village, but behind it is a human interest story of a man trying to make a home for two youngsters, only to be stymied by an attempt to take the two children from him. The film is replete with laughs, played to the hilt by Miriam Hopkins, Ray Milland, Walter Abel and Guinn Williams. The two youngsters, Betty Philson and Marianna Strelby, come close to stealing the picture. The showman can sell the featured names, promise excellent comedy romance entertainment and be assured of audience enjoyment.

The screenplay was prepared by Allan Scott, who wrote the original in collaboration with Charles Norman. Leigh Jason, who directed, handled his story and players admirably, to make the most of the combined elements of comedy, romance and human interest.

Miss Hopkins goes to Greenwich Village posing as a would-be actress without money, in an attempt to get the two children from Milland, brother of their father, who has died. The mother was Miss Hopkins' sister and daughter of Henry Stephenson, who had disapproved the marriage. Miss Hopkins falls in love with Milland, and it is only after persecuting him that everything is straightened out.

Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Young Pushkin"

(Amkino)

The Russian Lenfilm studios have produced in "Young Pushkin" another film that is made to bear favorably on the present regime. It is set around the period following 1811 and chiefly concerns Alexander Pushkin, the youth, and his education and poetic development in the Russian equivalent of a prep school.

The scenario sketches his strange temperamental nature, which is aroused by treatment of serfs and the suppression of his own liberal views. He is given to wild emotional flights which find a vent in poetry. Gradually he forms a free-thinking clique with other students. A new school head is appointed and the group's troubles increase. Young Pushkin is headed for expulsion, but his recitation of a touching ballad gains him the approval of the current poet laureate and he remains. The film closes with his graduation and the parting of the students.

The title role is enacted by a sensitive player who constantly overacts the part. He gives a performance that too rapidly shifts from one mood to another and not very convincingly.

Running time, 85 minutes. "A."

Short Subjects

"The Mysterious Pilot"

(Columbia)

The novel note this serial strikes is the brief lessons in flying that Frank Hawks gives a youngster at the conclusion of each chapter. Here is a selling point which should easily be put over with the junior audience. The names in the cast outside of Frank Hawks will be easily remembered from another day. Their performances measure up adequately and convincingly.

The story's major incidents involve the flying activities of Hawks and the Canadian police as they combat the activities of vicious gangsters. The threads of the plot involve all sorts of far fetched angles, but thrilling incidents and the chase device keep things moving.

Hawks has a pleasant camera personality and registers to advantage. The supporting cast also utilizes the talents of Dorothy Sebastian, Rex Lease, Guy Bates Post, Kenneth Harlan, Yakima Canutt, Frank Lackteen, Clara Kimball Young, Esther Ralston and Tom London. The first chapter runs 29 minutes. The other 14 episodes run 19 minutes each. "G."

"Cover to Cover"

(Lenauer International)

The history of mankind's expression in the form of writing is illuminatingly outlined in this documentary short produced in England by Paul Rotha. The presentation of fact is light and a great deal of relating material is covered. In proper sequence the history of printing from early pre-historic cave drawing to the publication of a modern book is shown. The narrative is enlightening and there are comments by such literary luminaries as Somerset Maugham, Rebecca West and Julian Huxley. It is well filmed and edited. Since everybody reads the film should find an audience anywhere and hold its interest. Running time, 16 mins. "G."

"Harris in the Spring"

(RKO)

The hectic life of a minor celebrity provides the scenario for this one. Phil Harris is plagued by feminine autograph seekers and in his flight meets a girl who has never seen him. They have a date, a misunderstanding and finally a fight before the piece concludes. In between Harris manages to get in some interesting ballads which he sings entertainingly. It has amusing moments. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Donald's Ostrich"

(Disney-RKO)

Donald Duck has many amusing adventures as a railroad station agent who is on the receiving end of a voracious ostrich in this colored cartoon. The scenario involves much harum-scarum action which is cleverly animated for full comic effect. The climax arrives when Donald attempts to quell the bird's hiccups by fright. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—"Conquest," on a dual with "She Married an Artist," was outstanding in a week marred by snow, cold weather and Christmas shopping. It pulled $16,000, over the line by $4,000, at Loew's Orpheum, and went to $13,000, up by $2,000, at Loew's State.

"Stage Door," with "Quick Money," reached $14,000 in its second week at the RKO Memorial. This was $2,000 above par. "First Lady" and "Partners in Crime" were par at both the Fenway and Paramount, taking $4,500 at the former and $7,000 at the latter. "Hurricane" grossed $6,000 in its third week at the Colonial.

"Navy Blue" Minneapolis Top, $9,000

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 19.—"Navy Blue and Gold" was good for $9,000 at the Minneapolis Orpheum this week to lead off the slim list of good pictures for the Twin Cities.

Outstanding in a period of pre-Christmas slump, "The Awful Truth" entered its fourth week in the Loop, a record for the State, which has fared badly with double features all year. It grossed $8,000, over par by $2,500.

Still clicking with double bills, the Tower in St. Paul grossed $3,000 with "Alcatraz Island" and "There Goes the Groom." Normal is $2,000.

Total first run business in Minneapolis was $30,500. Average is $27,500. Total first run business in St. Paul was $13,500. Average is $15,000.

Chardon, O., Dec. 19.—The Chardon, the only house in this 1,800 population town, can expect no juvenile patronage from nearby Middletown late at night. A factory whistle blasts a curfew at 8:50 nightly as a warning that children shall be off the streets.

The curfew was started by a high school coach to prod his players homeward, and was so effective that it has been adopted as a municipal proposition.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 19.—"Nothing Sacred," on a dual with "Trapped by G-Men," pulled out into the profit column at the Midland by grossing $12,700. This was $500 to the good.

All other grosses were hit by extraordinary competition—Christmas shopping, an automobile show that drew an estimated 135,000, "Room Service" and Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30."

"Damsel in Distress," with "Night Club Scandal," took $4,100 in a second week.

"Conquest" $13,000 Leader at Montreal

MONTREAL, Dec. 19.—"Conquest" proved to be the ace attraction for the week with a take of $13,000 at the Palace, this being $2,000 above average and rating a holdover. "The Awful Truth," on a twin bill at Loew's, continued on its merry way with $8,000 for its second week and was also held over for a third week.

"Dead End," completing its third and final week at the Orpheum was responsible for $3,000 against average of $5,000, while "The Great Garrick," dualling at the Princess, brought in $5,000, which was below the line.

"A Damsel in Distress," playing as the sole attraction at the Capitol, was responsible for $7,000 which was below average. Chief opposition was pro hockey, which has been off all season locally, and Christmas shopping was being felt for the first time.

"Bicycling" On Increase, Report Shows

disclosures of irregularities, 'bicycling' violations substantially exceeded the 'hold-over' type of violation, a reversal of the trend during recent years.

"The explanation for this increase in violations disclosed, and the trend of violations toward 'bicycling' rather than 'holding-over,'" the report states, "presumably lies in an influx of new exhibitors and exhibitors previously operating single units or small circuits who acquired one or more additional theatres."

The bureau's investigation of showings under non-theatrical auspices was undertaken "to determine the source from which the prints are obtained," the report says. The results of the investigation are not disclosed. Exhibitors in all sections of the country have become increasingly disturbed over the non-theatrical showings in competition with established theatres.

The bureau's report also discussed an opinion handed down on Dec. 6, last, by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York which "expressly recognizes the existence of exclusive exhibition rights for the first time under the statutory copyright obtained for a non-photoplay film registered under Class M. All previous court opinions in respect of exhibition rights were handed down in cases involving only photoplay films," the report observes.

Kansas City House Uses Air with Reel

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 19.—For what is believed to be the first time in the country, a theatre is using a radio news broadcast to supplement its newsreel. Jerry Zigmond, manager of the first run Newman here, and KCMO, have arranged to broadcast "headlines in the news" at the end of each of four newsreel showings in the theatre each day, beginning Dec. 10. The "newscast" comes directly from the station to the theatre's sound system.

that the bill would have applied to production, because the films later would move in interstate commerce, the House took time out Friday to make sure that child stars could be employed, despite an amendment adopted the previous day which would have barred them from the screen.

This was but one of so many exemptions that were granted by amendment as to lead Representative Dies (Dem. Tex.) facetiously to offer an amendment calling upon the administrator to report in 90 days "whether anyone at all will come under this bill because of its exemptions."

Climaxing five days of heated debate, in the course of which the measure was so broadly and hurriedly amended that few members at the close professed to know accurately what was in it, the vote to recommit was a demonstration of unalterable opposition to the legislation by the southern bloc, which had consistently but unsuccessfully fought for a wage differential in favor of the south.

McCarthy Rise Almost Phenomenal

the outcome is only one of the many features in this annual Quigley Publication.

Radio annals record only one other rise of similar phenomenal and majestic proportion—that of Major Bowes. Each has been able to answer the listeners' cry for something new, something novel in the way of radio fare, with the rewards for doing so following automatically.

Benny, second choice, trails by 11 votes. Bing Crosby, steward of the Kraft "Music Hall," is third, with Fred Allen, Rudy Vallee, Kate Smith and Don Ameche following in that order.

The year's most popular male vocalists, classical and popular variety respectively, are Nelson Eddy and Bing Crosby. Last year the poll made no distinction between classical and popular singers, and Eddy and Crosby finished in that one-two order. This season each has a crown of his own, and each has a marked lead in the poll.

Baker Trails Crosby

Behind Eddy is John Charles Thomas and trailing that singer are Richard Crooks, Lauritz Melchior, Lawrence Tibbett, Richard Bonelli and Nino Martini.

Second to Crosby, with slightly less than half the number of votes cast for Bing, is Kenny Baker, with Lanny Ross pressing closely for third place and Frank Parker in fourth position. Nelson Eddy also has support in the popular song group, finishing behind Parker. Rudy Vallee is the number six choice.

Petite Lily Pons wins top ranking of classical soloists among feminine singers, while dusky-toned Frances Langford is declared the leader of the popular song contingent.

Ranking close to Miss Pons is Jeanette MacDonald, Jessica Dragonette third, Grace Moore fourth, Gladys Swarthout fifth.

Below Miss Langford we find the booming figure of Kate Smith, a scant handful of votes determining the difference between them. Third among the popular song leaders is Miss MacDonald. Had the votes given Miss MacDonald in the popular song group gone to the classical division, she would have outranked Miss Pons.

Below Miss MacDonald, as fourth choice popular singer, is Alice Faye, followed by Virginia Verrill and Dorothy Lamour. Last year the poll made no classifications among the feminine singers. Then the leaders were Jessica Dragonette, Lily Pons, Francis Langford, Kate Smith, in that order.

Benny Best Comedian

Jack Benny is the year's best comedian, according to the radio editors. They repeat it with the same emphasis as last year. Charley McCarthy ranks second, Fred Allen third. Allen was long absent from the air last summer, probably accounting for his drop in popularity. Bob Burns is in fourth place and Eddie Cantor is next. Walter O'Keefe, who substituted for Allen during the summer, is in seventh place, behind W. C. Fields, who was on the air briefly this summer trading barbs with Charley McCarthy on the Chase and Sanborn show.

Among the comediennes, Gracie Allen is a hands-down winner over Beatrice Lillie, with Sheila Barrett, Mary Livingstone, Jane Ace and Molly McGee finishing in that order.

As in 1936, Burns and Allen literally run away with the comedy team division. Fibber McGee and Molly, amazingly popular this year, are in second place, climbing from their 1936 fourth position. The irrepressible McCarthy and his manipulator, Bergen, are the third choice team, Benny-Livingstone, fourth; Amos 'n' Andy, fifth; Stoopnagle and Budd, sixth; Fred Allen-Portland Hoffa, seventh.

Lux Dramatic Winner

The year's most popular dramatic series is the Lux "Radio Theatre," followed by "One Man's Family," both produced by the same agency, J. Walter Thompson. The "First Nighter" series is third. Now comes a sustaining program in the first division among the year's most popular dramatic series, its first major showing in a national popularity poll, it is believed. It is "The Columbia Workshop," produced by Irving Reis and heard over CBS. In last year's poll it was twelfth. This year it ranks ahead of the "March of Time" and the Shakespeare productions which both NBC and CBS presented the past summer.

The Jell-o program, Jack Benny's, is ranked the best comedy series. Pepsodent's Amos 'n' Andy is the runner-up; the Johnson Floor Wax team, Fibber McGee & Molly, is next while "Town Hall Tonight" for Bristol-Myers, complete the first division for the best comedy series. Last year the first four were: Jell-o; "Town Hall Tonight" with Fred Allen; Burns & Allen, for Campbell's Soup; and Stoopnagle & Budd for Minute Tapioca.

Kostelanetz Wins

1937's best popular orchestra is Andre Kostelanetz's, followed by Guy Lombardo, Benny Goodman, Wayne King, Horace Heidt. The 1936 poll showed Kostelanetz and Lombardo in the same relative standings; Fred Waring, third; Wayne King, fourth; Shep Fields, fifth.

The year's best liked classical musical unit is the New York Philharmonic, with Stokowski's Philadelphia Orchestra pressing closely. The Ford Symphony is third, Frank Black's NBC Symphony fourth, General Motors fifth.

The Lucky Strike "Hit Parades" score as the most popular musical program; the Ford Sunday Evening Hour is ranked similarly as the best classical musical program. Following the "Hit Parades" is the Chesterfield show with Kostelanetz; Rudy Vallee's Standard Brands variety program; Bing Crosby's Kraft-Phoenix Music Hall. Horace Heidt's Alemite Corp. Brigadiers show and General Electric's "Hour of Charm" are in a tie for fifth place. Following the Ford show for serious music honors are: General Motors concerts, the New York Philharmonic; Cities Service, and the bank-sponsored Philadelphia Orchestra series.

Avocation

F. D. R. still ranks high as a speaker with radio editors throughout the country. Many submitted the President's name as their choice for "best commentator," but these were disallowed and the votes were not counted.

Wilson Top Announcer

Don Wilson is the announcer of the year, repeating his 1936 victory. Milton Cross, whose popularity lingers amazingly, is ranked second best, followed by Harry Von Zell, Ted Husing, Ken Carpenter and David Ross.

Boake Carter is the stand-out selection among commentators. Here too, is a 1936 repeater. Following in order are Lowell Thomas, Edwin C. Hill, H. V. Kaltenborn, Paul Sullivan and Gabriel Heatter.

Bing Crosby is far and away the editors' choice as the most effective film player in radio. Don Ameche is second choice; next come Edwin G. Robinson, Jeanette MacDonald, Bob Burns, Charles Butterworth and Tyrone Power.

The best film programs on the air, the editors have decided, are Lux "Radio Theatre," "Hollywood Hotel," MGM-Maxwell House "Good News of 1938;" Jimmy Fidler's gossip period; the Chase and Sanborn Hour, Packard's "Hollywood Mardi Gras," and Roger Bros. "Silver Theatre."

This year the poll incorporated in its questionnaire a new division. The editors were asked to supply the answer to the following: "It is widely agreed that commercials are overdone. Recognizing that the sponsor insists upon them and the public has to stand for them, what program consistently does the best job in the light of its twin allegiance?"

Some Editors Facetious

Some editors did not even bother to run a dash through the question. Some were facetious, Alton Cook of the New York World-Telegram wrote: "I never listen to commercials, and, consequently, I regret that they are not a great deal longer." Some were honestly non-plussed like Guy M. Chase of the Elizabeth (N. J.) Journal: "No off-hand choice. Lack of good taste as to text or lack of reasonable brevity characterizes practically all of them." And Bill Newell, of the Vancouver (B. C.) Columbia Sun wrote: "Sorry, can't think of any." D. M. Legate of the Montreal Daily Star answered: "If you mean the best of a generally bad and regrettable lot, then Jack Benny's program."

But most were constructive like Mary O'Neill of the Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker News who replied: "I would suggest giving a trio of awards: To Jell-o for least painful advertising; to Bing Crosby's program for its unique method of getting in station breaks and commercials, to Fred Allen's Town Hall, which also manages to kid you into its advertising."

Here is the ranking for programs with the best commercial readings:

(1) Jell-o, (2), Ford Sunday Evening Hour; (3) Kraft Music Hall, (4) Town Hall Tonight, (5) Metropolitan Auditions of the Air.

Results, in all classifications, of the poll of radio editors follow:

But Edgar Collects

Edgar Bergen needs a press agent — badly. Poor Edgar only writes the script and provides the vocal motivation for the words that issue from the notable Charlie McCarthy's facial opening. But all the publicity and all the honors go to the little dummy, while Edgar remains unhonored and unsung.

U.S. Asks to Intervene in RKO Hearings

Would Answer Attack on Validity of 77-B

The U. S. Attorney General's office, through Lamar Hardy, U. S. Attorney for the New York district, yesterday filed a petition in Federal court here for leave to intervene in the RKO reorganization proceedings in order to answer the contention of Edward Hickey, an RKO stockholder, that the company's reorganization plan should not be approved by the court because it is being proposed under Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act, which Hickey contends is unconstitutional.

The Government's petition is returnable tomorrow. Hickey advanced his objections to the proceedings when the RKO reorganization plan was before Special Master George W. Alger, who dismissed the stockholders contentions with few words. Hickey presented the same objections to the Federal court last week for consideration by Judge William Bondy, who will begin hearings on the reorganization plan today.

Chicagoans Offer 50% License Jump

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—Theatre operators here, after a meeting yesterday, decided to give the city a 50 per cent increase in license fees starting with a 25 per cent increase for small theatres and graduating to a 75 per cent increase for the larger houses. This increase would bring the city $60,000 more than the current $120,000 they are now getting.

The city asked for a one per cent tax on gross business from theatremen which would net about $500,000 in revenue annually. What action the municipality will take regarding the theatremen's proposal is unknown. Chances are that the offer will be considered tomorrow or Wednesday.

New Decisions Hit Use of Bank Night

Adverse decisions and rulings affecting Bank Night and other theatre chance games have dealt a severe blow to the operation of the games within the past few days in widely separated sections of the country.

These decisions follow those of the past several months in which the games were declared to be lotteries and violation of lottery laws by major courts in Georgia, Nebraska and Alabama.

The decisions of the past few days

Of a total of 1,271 feature pictures, both American and foreign, reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency during the period from February, 1936, to November, 1937, only 13, or one per cent, were condemned, and 98, or eight per cent, were classified as objectionable in part.

The request of Frank R. McNinch, F. C. C. chairman, for full details on the Mae West broadcast, asked Saturday of NBC, was received yesterday by NBC President Lenox R. Lohr. Radio Treaty Ratification To Be Delayed

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Action toward shifting broadcasting stations to bring them into line with the provisions of the four-power treaty developed at the recent Inter-American Radio Conference at Havana will be delayed until evidence is given that the other three countries involved will ratify the agreement, it was disclosed today by Commissioner T. A. M. Craven of the F. C. C., chairman of the American delegation, who has just returned to Washington.

Apparently suspicious of the intentions of the Mexican Government and doubtful as to the course of Canada, which with Cuba comprise the other three parties to the agreement, Craven indicated that the treaty might not be submitted to the Senate for ratification until the other countries have taken action to make it effective. Under the terms of the treaty, all of the Mexican border stations which have been causing interference in this country will be

Korda Seeks Release From UA Contract

Believed He Wants Free Hand in U. S. Market

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—Alexander Korda has asked for a complete release from his contractual obligations with United Artists, including his unfulfilled commitment to purchase a one-fifth stock interest in the company, it was learned from authoritative sources here today.

Korda's contemplated withdrawal from United Artists is understood to be in accordance with his known desire to produce quality pictures in England for American companies under the new British Films Act and, in addition, to be free to negotiate individual deals in the open market for American distribution of any pictures of his own making, independently of other producing commitments.

Korda's contract for United Artists distribution of his pictures runs to 1940. His stock purchase commitment, which is payable out of dividends he receives from the company, is understood to be approximately one-sixth completed. He has requested a full release from both pacts.

The company is understood to be inclined to grant Korda's request but is still studying the situation for its possible effect on other United Artists producers who, at some future date, might ask releases from their contracts using the Korda instance for precedent.

Union Cinemas May Abolish Vaudeville

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, Dec. 20. — Associated British Pictures, controlling Union Cinemas, is contemplating the elimination of stage shows in all the houses of the circuit. Certain of the Union houses, which previously have played vaudeville, are being subjected to study.

The action is seen as significant here in view of the present movement among exhibitors against broadcasting and other sources of competition, as well as the increased cost of films.

have been recorded, either in the form of court rulings or the opinions of law enforcement officials in Cincinnati, where a county prosecutor declared the game a violation of Ohio lottery laws, Milwaukee, where a ruling was handed down against the games, and Missouri, when the State Supreme Court at Jefferson City ruled against the practice.

The details of the most recent rulings follow.

Operators Fined in Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Dec. 20. — N. H. Waters, owner of the Waters circuit of suburban theaters, was fined $100 and costs in two cases, and T. W. Williams, part owner of the Woodlawn, fined $100 and costs in Police Court here by Judge Henry Martin on a charge of violation of the city and state lottery laws.

The two theatre owners were placed under bond in connection with the holding Bank Night or Jack Pot at several suburban theatres. Howard Perdue, attorney for Waters and Williams will appeal.

Orders Game Prosecution

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 20.—Responsibility for prosecution of exhibitors and others using Bank Night and other forms of lotteries has been placed upon the shoulders of county prosecutors by Attorney General Roy McKittrick following the Missouri Supreme Court's decision last week that Bank Night is a lottery and against the law.

In calling on local enforcement officer to take action against such schemes, McKittrick pointed out that his office as long ago as April 12, 1934, held Bank Night to be a lottery. Following that, the attorney general's office has handed down other opinions holding Screeno, Hollywood, Surprise Night, Win-O, Bingo, corn games, Whiffle boards, Rocket and Sportsman's machines, Tit-Tat-Toe machines, suit clubs, ball machines, weekly drawings for prizes and others to be in violation of the state's gambling statutes.

Ruled Violation in Ohio

CINCINNATI, Dec. 20.—Operation of Bank Night in theatres and other places of amusement is a violation of the Ohio lottery law, and therefore illegal, in the opinion of County Prosecutor Dudley Outcalt Miller, rendered at the request of Sheriff Frank Lutz, who requested the information after having received request for a ruling from suburban houses.

"Since the theatre benefits by increased attendance on Bank Night, and there is an element of chance, the scheme is entirely illegal under the Ohio laws covering lotteries," Miller declared. He cited the Ohio lottery law, in force since 1873, which, he said, was considerably broader in scope than similar statutes in other states where the game had been barred.

Orders Milwaukee Cessation

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 20.—Exhibitors here have been given until Jan. 1 to discontinue Bank Night, Bingo, Hollywood and similar prize nights under an order issued by Police Chief Joseph T. Kluchesky.

Churches, fraternal organizations, political groups and civic and veterans' organization who do not conduct their games on a commercialized basis, are exempt from the provisions of the order.

Prize nights are being featured by most of the city's theatres with the exception of the first run houses and Fox recently added Bingo as an attraction at most of its neighborhood spots.

Attorneys Oppose Games

DES MOINES, Dec. 20.—The State Ass'n. of County Attorneys, meeting here for their annual conference, went on record as opposing Bank Night, and favoring a state legislative act to prohibit Bank Night and all other trade schemes and so-called gift enterprises."

"We believe that the Bank Night scheme has a demoralizing effect upon the public and that it encourages a spirit of gambling; that it tends to break down the enforcement of laws against other forms of lottery and gambling, and that it tends to embarrass county attorneys in the enforcement of laws against lotteries and gambling," the group said.

They requested that the State Attorney General draft such a bill and present it to the next session of the Iowa General Assembly for enactment.

30 Missouri Houses Hit

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20.—The decision of the Missouri Supreme Court last week declaring Bank Night illegal, affects about 30 theatres in St. Louis County, but not in St. Louis, which is separate from the county. St. Louis houses have not used the game since January, 1936, when Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller banned it.

Ascap to Defer Its Actions in Florida

Ascap's attacks on similar legislation enacted by Montana and Washington, E. C. Mills, chairman of the Ascap administrative committee, said yesterday.

The organization had planned to file its Florida and Tennessee actions immediately following the statutory court decision enjoining Nebraska from enforcing its anti-Ascap legislation, which was handed down early in November. Mills, who returned yesterday from a southern trip during which he conferred in Tallahassee with Ascap's Florida attorneys, said that it had been decided, instead, to await the Montana and Washington decisions. Both cases were heard early last summer and decisions are expected daily.

Meredith Elected First Equity V-P.

Burgess Meredith, a member of the council of Actors' Equity Ass'n, was elected first vice-president at a meeting of the council yesterday and in that capacity will take over the duties of the Equity president, Frank Gillmore, who withdraws from Equity to become active head of the Associated Actors & Artistes of America, parent A. F. of entertainers' union.

Gillmore, who tendered his resignation as president of Equity two weeks ago to take effect upon the selection of a successor, will retain the title of president and was given a leave of absence until the annual meeting of Equity next June, when a new slate of officers will be elected. The council's procedure side-stepped internal strife in Equity over the designation of a president to succeed Gillmore, none of the leading candidates, of which Meredith was one, having been able to muster the unanimous support of the council.

The post of first vice-president of Equity, which Meredith assumes, is without salary. It has been vacant since the death of Osgood Perkins last summer. Meredith's term in office expires with the next annual meeting of Equity.

Bondy, the RKO reorganization goes into its final stages. Although objectors to the plan are comparatively numerous, especially among small stockholder groups, the plan has been approved in essence by Alger and has more than the required amount of creditor and stockholder assents. None of the principal creditors has filed objections to the plan. The hearings before Bondy undoubtedly will continue into January with the court's decision being made known possibly by the end of the month.

The principal phases of the reorganization remaining to be completed prior to court confirmation of the plan include the designation of a new board of directors of nine members to serve for an initial term of two years, which is now under discussion, and a designation of the value of the new RKO securities comprising the $1,600,000 issue to be underwritten by Atlas Corp., in accordance with the provisions of the reorganization plan, for providing new working capital for the reorganized company.

The new directorate is expected to be ready for submission to the court for approval during January. A designation of the value of the new securities is expected in the course of the hearings on the plan.

Looking 'Em Over

"I'll Take Romance"

(Columbia)

Columbia continues the Grace Moore formula in "I'll Take Romance." The picture compounds entertainment of smartly-paced story values, a plenitude of laughs, shrewdly applied seasoning of operatic selections plus bits of more popular stuff, all carried along ably by a top name supporting cast. The picture opens like the proverbial house afire and moves along as fast, as least for more than the first half. It coasts a bit toward the end, but winds up with a fat score.

In this Miss Moore again plays the opera star, but this time intent on going to Paris to fill a date even though she is legally tied to a previous engagement in Buenos Aires. Melvyn Douglas, a transplanted American, plays the impresario who has engaged the star. He comes north to persuade her to change her mind. With him he brings Stuart Erwin, who provides a lot of the laughs. Unable to meet the singer through conventional channels, Douglas manages to rent the apartment next hers and gets acquainted, without of course disclosing his identity or purpose. He manages to wangle his way into the confidence of Helen Westley, Miss Moore's aunt and chaperon and former opera star. From then on his path is a bit smoother.

Miss Moore falls for Douglas. He decides to kidnap her onto the South American boat, which leaves at about the same time as the Paris liner. Miss Moore overhears but goes for the idea anyhow. On the voyage, the star receives a cable from Miss Westley tipping off the plot, and from then on, with a few phony kidnappings in Buenos Aires, it's the usual touch and go until Miss Moore decides to let up on Douglas and marry him.

Plenty of pace keeps the story going and there are a number of comedy sequences that ring clearly. In addition to Erwin, there is also the reliable Margaret Hamilton, who contributes her share of laughs as a sort of privileged companion, and Miss Westley, too, holds up her end with ease.

For the music lovers there are sequences from the operas "Traviata," "Manon" and "Madame Butterfly" in addition to the theme song that bears the same title as the film itself.

Commendable is Edward H. Griffith's direction of the story by George Oppenheimer and Jane Murfin.

Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

negotiations are being continued by Peter Rathvon, Atlas associate, in Odlum's absence. A minor portion of the securities, according to present indications, will be picked up under the expiring option and a new one-year option is to be granted for the purchase of the remainder. The price of the securities under the new agreement is said to be still unsettled, with RCA asking an increase in the $6,000,000 option price specified in the expiring agreement.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Every Day's a Holiday"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—Mae West turns lightly from lechery to larceny at this point in her life's work and the result is louder and funnier than any of her sultrier exhibitions. A preview audience composed of seasoned guinea pigs indicated by lustier laughter than the titterish snickerings accorded her earlier outgivings that the turn is definitely for the better. The picture has its full quota of Westian double entendre, to be sure, but unlike its predecessors it also contains other and untainted humor dispensed by such competent comedians as Walter Catlett, Charles Butterworth, Herman Bing and Charles Winninger, who repeatedly steals the show from all hands.

Although in no sense to be construed as inspirational material for the growing child, nor even as an instrument of moral uplift for adults, the production is a consummately compounded document in the mode and manner of the John Held, Jr., woodcuts and quite likely to click off substantial box-office returns in theatres and communities where sophisticates figure importantly in the commercial scheme. In this enterprise Miss West exercises her wit more and her wiles less than usually. She enters the picture as a Manhattan confidence woman of 1899, selling the Brooklyn Bridge to Herman Bing, and leaves it as a triumphant fugitive from justice after selling New York City as mayor the honest policeman who has declined to serve any of the 25 warrants duly issued for her arrest. In the course of this blithe spoofing of the Production Code General Principle No. 3 she burglarizes a department store and the New York Police Dept. archives in hilarious violation of Part A, Rule 2, Section 1 of the same document and commits enough anachronisms, linguistic and musical, to prove almost positively that it's all condonable in the name of good and relatively clean fun.

Edmund Lowe is the honest policeman who doesn't serve the warrants and Lloyd Nolan is the dishonest politician who discharges him because he doesn't. George Rector appears briefly as himself and Louis Armstrong is himself leading a battalion of trucking Harlemites in the 1900 torchlight parade. Four song numbers used with telling effect are the work of Sam Coslow, Hoagy Carmichael, Stanley Adams and Barry Trivers. Miss West sings one of them first in French and again in English, with different gestures.

A. Edward Sutherland turned in a finely measured direction job and Producer Emanuel Cohen may be said to have "shot the works." The net result of all of these individual contributions is a picture admirably qualified to determine by test whether the market for Mae West is still there.

Running time, 80 minutes. "A."

Argentine Business Active—Cammack

Theatre construction and film production in the Argentine are continuing at a steady pace, Ben Cammack, Latin American general manager for RKO, stated yesterday.

Luiz Seeveriano Ribeiro, who operates about 30 houses in Rio de Janeiro, has completed a 3,000-seat theate, the Sao Luiz, which will be ready for opening Dec. 22, according to Cammack.

This year the Argentine will produce about 50 pictures and Mexico a similar number, he said. Brazil will make five and Peru one.

Cammack said Hollywood productions are "still tops and the most popular" in the country. They comprise about 75 per cent of the total number of pictures shown in South America.

The Italo-Chilena circuit of 30 units in Santiago and Valparaiso and suburban towns; The Ideal, Rex, Ambassador and Florida, Buenos Aires, operated by Lauteret, and Caballo have signed for RKO product, Cammack asserted. This is his first trip here since last June, when he attended the company's sales convention in Hollywood.

NBC Receives FCC Request On West Show

program that a skit on it last Sunday offended the religious sensibilities of some of our listeners. Our hope is to make each and every hour spent with us both entertaining and edifying. We pledge ourselves to that purpose and sincerely regret any unintended offense that may have been given."

It is believed that this is the first instance of a sponsor assuming guilt for having offended listeners to its program, and acknowledging that guilt on the air by broadcasting an apology.

In asking for a full report on the Mae West broadcast, including a copy of the script, a copy of the contract of Chase & Sanborn and the names and locations of the programs carrying the program, McNich explained that the commission has received a great many letters protesting the broadcast.

Letters Emphatic

"If the writers of the many letters were correct in referring to the Mae West skit as profane, obscene, indecent, vulgar, filthy, dirty, sexy and insulting to the American public, then I have no hesitancy in saying that the licensees of the stations over which it was broadcast have been derelict in the discharge of their duties," said McNinch in his letter.

He stated, however, that the commission had not prejudiced the case, holding its decision "until all the facts are before it."

Regarding the number of stations which carried the broadcast, the Chase & Sanborn network comprises 61 stations of the Red network.

With public apologies offered by all concerned with the broadcast, the Rev. Dr. Maurice S. Sheehy, head of the Dep't of Religion of Catholic University, who earlier in the week had called for extension of the Legion of Decency drive to cover radio, declared yesterday that he was satisfied and would pursue the matter no further. Dr. Sheehy characterized the whole episode as "a mistake."

Demands License Be Revoked

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Addressing the F. C. C. by letter, Representative Connery (Dem., Mass.), demanded today that the F. C. C. revoke the license of the radio station from which Mae West's broadcast on the Chase & Sanborn hour originated last week. He declared that broadcast was "indecent."

[The Chase & Sanborn program does not originate in any one station. The program is aired from the NBC studios in Hollywood, and is piped to 61 stations of the Red web.—Ed.]

Connery said that the "commission was derelict in enforcing the Communications Act." He announced he would demand a Congressional investigation of the commission at the next session of Congress. "It is time," he wrote, "the commission either functioned in the interests of the American people or admitted incompetence and permitted the President to place men on the commission who will function in the interests of the American people, rather than satelites acting for the additional enrichment of a private few." He inquired if it were true that the president of NBC (Major Lohr) had personally authorized the broadcast of the program.

Representative Donald L. O'Toole (Dem., N. Y.), joined in the demand for a probe, declaring radio quality has lowered recently. He revealed that he had filed a complaint with the F. C. C. on the program shortly after it ended.

Carol Campaign

Cincinnati, Dec. 20.—Peter Grant, newscaster, has invited Paul Kennedy, radio editor of the Cincinnati Post, to tell the world why he objects to the unlimited playing and singing of the carol, "Silent Night." Kennedy will air his campaign to save the carol during Grant's program tomorrow. Kennedy, through his column, recently began a campaign to preserve the favorite Christmas song.

Weber Predicts 200 IRNA Station Pacts

Two hundred contracts from the I.R.N.A. stations will have been received by tomorrow, when the deadline for the documents will be reached, it was estimated yesterday by Joseph N. Weber, president of the A. F. of M.

Weber appeared optimistic over the outlook, and he indicated that it was only a question of a comparatively short time before his plan to bring about a re-employment in radio of hundreds of musicians now unemployed, would be declared operative.

In all probability, the A. F. of M. head and the I.R.N.A. committee will meet tomorrow at the office of the Federation.

Court Upholds Sale Of KTHS, Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 20.—Removal of KTHS from Hot Springs National Park to Little Rock and increase of power from 10,000 watts became a possibility today when the Arkansas Supreme Court upheld the right of the board of Governors of the Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce to sell the station to Col. T. H. Barton of Eldorado.

The board contracted early in 1936 to sell the station to Barton and Radio Enterprises, Inc., for $75,000. Members of the chamber contested the sale in court.

Col. Barton, through his representative, G. E. Zimmerman, vice-president and general manager of Radio Enterprises, Inc., today said that approximately $200,000 would be expended on the station if the F. C. C. approves its removal to Little Rock. Zimmerman is in charge of KARK, Little Rock NBC outlet.

eliminated with one exception. The United States will not lose any stations by the pact, which, however, will require the shifting of stations from a number of frequencies to higher channels, some as much as 40 kilocycles. Increases in power also will be required for stations suffering from interference, with clear channel stations divided into two groups, one having minimum power of 50,000 watts. A dozen stations will be put into the band between 1,500 and 1,600 kilocycles, not long ago set aside for broadcasting.

Pointing out that the agreement will assure better reception in the future, Craven said, "The price paid by the United States for this improved service and the prevention of chaotic radio conditions is remarkably small because not one of its 700 broadcasting stations is seriously affected."

The favorable terms were reached, he explained, in the face of demands from the other three countries for many channels additional to those they now use, the granting of which would have forced many American stations off the air.

Federal Move In RKO Setup Is Withdrawn

Action Due to Ending of Hickey's Objections

Edward J. Hickey, an RKO stockholder of Washington, D. C., informed Federal Judge William Bondy in U. S. District Court here yesterday that he was withdrawing his objections to the RKO reorganization plan which Hickey had advanced on the grounds that Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act was unconstitutional.

On the basis of Hickey's contentions, Lamar Hardy, U. S. Attorney for the New York district, had filed a petition with the Federal court here for leave to intervene in the RKO reorganization proceedings in order to answer Hickey's allegations of the unconstitutionality of the Federal reorganization statute. The Government's petition was to have been returnable today, but as a result of Hickey's withdrawal of his objections Hardy will not pursue the application to intervene at this time. The

Congress Adjourns; Mileage Bill Voted

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The special session of Congress adjourned tonight, its most important legislative contribution being the appropriation of mileage allowances for its members.

Of the important matters on the President's program, the Hour and Wage Bill was sent back to committee, probably to die; the Farm and Housing Bills were passed by both houses and sent to conference.

Nothing was done during the session with respect to motion picture, radio or tax legislation, all of which were deferred until the January session.

O'Toole Urges Radio Censor in Statement

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Representative O'Toole of New York, in a statement for the Congressional Record, denounced Mae West's skit on the recent Chase & Sanborn program as an "all-time low" in radio entertainment.

Proposing that Congress investigate radio, he said, "Few people in this country like censorship, but if a company has not sufficient sense not to allow such a program as that of Dec.

Dismiss Gary Suit Against Paramount

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 21.—The Gary Theatre Co. today asked and was granted dismissal of its suit in U. S. District Court here for an injunction compelling Paramount to deliver 10 feature pictures allegedly under the 1936-1937 contract but not delivered.

The request asked that the suit be dismissed without prejudice and this also was granted by Judge Robert C. Baltzell. The plea came just as the judge sat down to begin work on a stack of briefs totaling several hundred pages filed by both sides.

Perry E. O'Neal of the law firm of Dailey, O'Neal, Dailey and Efroymson, legal representatives in Indianapolis, for Paramount, asserted that he knew of no settlement in the case. However, informed sources here believe that the plaintiffs have reached an agreement satisfactory to them with the producer and that there is a strong possibility of friendly relations hereafter. Plaintiffs in the action were the Gary Theatre Co., Young Amusement Co. and Theatrical Managers, Inc. V. U. Young of Gary is president of all three.

The action was begun in September

California Banning Every Chance Game

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21. —Bank Night, Screeno and all similar games today were declared illegal by State Attorney General Webb in a letter to all district attorneys and police heads.

No U. S. Pressure

London, Dec. 21.—Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, declared in the House of Commons today that the British Government has received many communications from Washington concerning films but none referring specifically to separate quotas or a film commission, and no attempt has been made to impose pressure in any regard.

Ted Healy Is Dead; Heart Attack Cause

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—A comparatively few hours after preview audiences had acclaimed his work in Warners' "Hollywood Hotel," Ted Healy early today was stricken with a heart attack and died at 11 A. M. Death came at his home in Westwood. He is survived by his widow, the former Betty Hickman, whom he married in 1936, and by an infant son, John Jacob, born last Friday, to Mrs. Healy who is in University Hospital and has not been informed of her husband's death.

Healy was born in Houston, Tex., Oct. 1, 1896, and was educated at Holy Innocents School in that city and at De La Salle Institute in New York. Following seven years of successful stage and vaudeville experience he entered films in 1930 and since that time has appeared in many of the leading productions of 20th Century-Fox, Warners and M-G-M, to whom he was under contract at the time of his death.

Services for Healy have been tentatively set for Thursday at St. Augustine's Catholic Church in Culver City. Meanwhile, the body is at the Noice, Smith & Salisbury funeral chapel.

CBS Has Highest Business Volume of Any Air Network

CBS, for the second consecutive year, has the highest business volume of any network in radio history, the annual figures reveal. A breakdown for 1937 shows a business total of $28,828,058 for 1937, an increase of 24.4 per cent in gross billing, or $5,659,910 over 1936, when the billings totaled $23,168,148. The December billings are estimated.

The breakdown also shows increases in total billings for 13 different industries, and a 25.9 per cent greater average expenditure per client. It shows also that the $8,728,312 spent for daytime gross billings in 1937 almost doubles the amount spent for morning and afternoon advertising in the previous year.

Universal to Group Shorts, Feature Sales

Plan No Successor for Edward Bonns

Universal's short subject sales department will be consolidated with the feature sales under the plans being inaugurated after the first of the year, when William A. Scully takes over the post of Universal general sales manager. In line with these plans no successor to Edward Bonns, who resigned as short subject sales manager this week, will be named.

Present indications are that no assistant to Scully will be named to fill the post for which Lou Weinberg, Columbia circuit sales manager, had been slated. Division sales managers were advised by Scully during their meeting here last weekend that no promotions would be made except from the ranks. While the post of assistant sales manager may not be created, the post of western division manager may be filled by Scully after the first of the year.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—The shaping of final plans for the selection of nominees and the final voting for the four acting awards of the Academy today were held up pending additional conferences among leaders of the Screen Actors' Guild, which has been asked to determine the method of balloting.

The guild representatives on the awards committee, which last night proposed that only guild members nominate and determine final winners, agreed to confer with guild leaders again after it was pointed out that in the writers' and directors' awards, all writers and directors will nominate in their respective classifications while the final balloting will be thrown

"Hollywood Hotel"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—Warners' entry in the film musical sweepstakes, "Hollywood Hotel," serves to hold for the company a leading place in that phase of film fare. Public reaction to the preview indicated that the picture should be headed for top grosses everywhere, and among all types of audiences. It provides exhibitors with a wealth of exploitation material, the value of which appears only limited by the extent of its use.

The advance information that the film would top anything the studio has turned out in musical and related glamor and magnitude, appears to be borne out. Lavishly produced, it tells a Hollywood success story that sparkles with romance and comedy and moves swiftly to the tune of eight or 10 catchy melodies. It is a picture of Hollywood via the radio program of the title name.

Romantically it is the story of a country boy who has won a Hollywood contract and an extra girl who is the image of a temperamental star. The comedy angle concerns the star and a handsome "ham." The combination makes for drama and comedy, with the laughs dominating. Dick Powell hits the heights when he is asked to accompany Lola Lane, leading star, to a premiere. But she balks and Rosemary Lane is hired as a substitute. Their hour of glory is short, as Hugh Herbert and Ted Healy add to the merriment.

The couple end by working in Edgar Kennedy's drive-in restaurant. A sensation as a singer there, Powell is hired to sing for Alan Mowbray, and the latter's expert mimicking sent the preview audience into stitches. Mowbray is engaged to sing on Louella Parson's radio program, and the secret is out. With Mowbray's reputation at stake, Powell disappears, but is found by Healy. Again Rosemary Lane simulates the star and Mowbray is taken for a ride. The tuneful and highly effective finale features Raymond Page and his orchestra and the combined playing and singing of swing numbers in which Benny Goodman and his band join, while Powell and Rosemary are assured of their coveted picture contracts.

Listing all those entitled to credit would mean noting the entire cast. Besides those named, Allyn Joslyn, Glenda Farrell and Curt Boris deserve special mention. Jerry Wall and Maurice Leo, who did the story, and Richard Macauley, who collaborated on the screenplay, touched on everything that can or has happened in Hollywood, yet maintained a continuity. Richard Whiting and John Mercer did the music and lyrics, and Busby Berkeley, in his direction, took a few liberties, but gave the film a showmanship flair. It is a picture for the exhibitor to push for all it is worth.

Movietone News

Vol. 20, No. 29

(20th Century-Fox)

The review of 12 different sports at the tail end of this issue is easily the most interesting sequence. The roster of activities from aquatics to yachting is paraded with a number of "in action" scenes. Ed Thorgersen reels off the statistics connected with each event.

For the rest of the reel there are scenes of army movements in China, Russian parachute jumping, personalities aboard the new Union Pacific streamlined train en route to Sun Valley, Idaho, and Lew Lehr pulls a fast one on Floridian braggadocio when scenes of bathing girls lampooning the state's balmy climate are shown. The girls picket the Chamber of Commerce and do a sit down on account of the chilly weather. They are routed by a water hose.

Vol. 9, No. 227

(M-G-M)

A good assortment of current events, sports, style, trains and anniversaries are included in this issue, and they generally are pleasant and newsy.

First place is filled with scenes of the Chinese affair. The exodus of civilians from Nanking and Japanese troops parading in Shanghai are shown. "The "break" from Alcatraz is covered with shots of the island and the vigil of the pursuers. The new streamlined train, "The City of Los Angeles," is shown speeding along a section of the New York Central system. The Russians descend in parachutes on Moscow while Josef Stalin looks on and in the same vein, the ceremonies at Kitty Hawk in honor of the Wright brothers are offered.

The Woman's Page presents bathing suit styles modeled by shapely beauties and a family portrait of a Framingham, Mass., couple who have 13 children, six of them twins born in the past 36 months. This department closes with interesting shots of a "Gay Nineties" bicycle party in Central Park. The reel concludes with eye-opening shots of a basketball game in New York.

Running time, 8 mins. P.

Paramount News

(Paramount)

Most of the release is comprised of scenes of war stricken China with the camera focussed on events leading to the bombing of the Panay, the tense excitement at the International Settlement, the sudden break-up of a Japanese parade in Shanghai when a Korean hurls a bomb, killing one of the soldiers, the capture of Nanking and flight of homeless victims, Japanese air raids and refugees taking to the Yangtse River, unmindful of the fate ahead of them.

Then there is Russia's proud aerial maneuvers with mass parachute jumping and sham battles before Stalin, a picturesque sight.

Two other items show collegiate basketball with Illinois University downing St. John's of New York for a score of 6[illegible]-45; and Giovanni Martinelli, opera star, entertaining unfortunate children in a pre-Christmas festival.

The war scenes are vivid and a stark picture of the scenes behind newspaper stories of Japan's invasion of China. It is the best feature of the reel and worth seeing.

Running time, 9 mins. O.

RKO Pathe News

Vol. 9, No. 44

(RKO)

The nine items in this reel are interesting. The degree of interest varies but on the whole they should completely engage attention.

The Alcatraz jailbreak is the lead. It is followed by shots of a clever invention that serves tennis balls. The Navy Air Corps honors the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk. Pennsylvania's war on pneumonia is briefly but effectively documented. Philadelphia society parading about a ballroom in the oddest of headgear should draw laughs. There are scenes near Versailles of the villa where Jean de Koven, the American dancer, was murdered by a "bluebeard." Thrilling scenes of iceboat racing on Greenwood Lake in New Jersey, a rodeo in Los Angeles and a Russian parachute jumping stunt conclude the issue.

Running time, 8 mins. P.

Universal Newsreel

Vol. 9, No. 625

(Universal)

The makeup of this issue maintains a good balance of news that is pictorially fresh and it also injects a bit of holiday atmosphere.

The lead is occupied by the Sino-Japanese affair. The Rising Sun troops are seen in a victory parade in Shanghai which was marred by a bomb, thrown by a Chinese. It is gruesome.

The rest of the material includes Christmas music sung by the choir of St. Lukes Church in Evanston, Ill.; scenes about Alcatraz Island and stills of the two escaped convicts, the ceremonies at Kitty Hawk on the 34th anniversary of the flight of the Wright brothers, a Marshall, Mo., man named Santa Claus, bathing suits on attractive girls at Miami Beach, a rodeo in Los Angeles and a military demonstration of mass parachute jumping in Moscow. The last is graphically filmed with a number of effective closeups of the jumpers sitting on the planes waiting for the signal.

Running time, 8 mins. P.

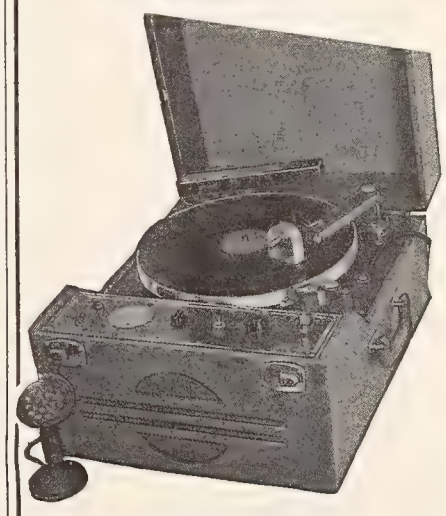
Three-Reel Subject On Panay, "U" Plan

A special three-reel release to be known as "The Bombing of the Panay" will be compiled by Universal from 5,000 feet of film photographed aboard the ship by Norman Alley, Universal Newsreel cameraman, who is scheduled to arrive in San Francisco on Sunday by China Clipper from Manila, the company stated yesterday.



Alley was said to have been the last passenger to be taken aboard the Panay and the last to leave it after the attack by Japanese bombing planes which sent it to the bottom of the Yangtze River. With the incident still the subject of international discussion by the American and Japanese governments, and with Japanese official accounts of the incident contradicting those of eye-witnesses, Alley's films have a significance unusual in newsreel material. A complete, un-edited print of his negative will go direct to Washington for the use of State Dep't, Navy and other Government officials, Universal stated.

The reel is expected to be ready for release to theatres by Dec. 28.

After a trans-oceanic telephone conversation with Alley in Manila, Charles Ford, Universal Newsreel editor, reported that the cameraman not only caught most of the happenings aboard the Panay during the bombing, but also the subsequent shore events, including shots of wounded survivors and Japanese Army patrols.

Alley was forced to take special precautions in order to retain his film, which also includes considerable footage on the burning and bombing of Nanking. The film was insured by Universal for $250,000 on Alley's arrival in Manila.

Government, however, will reserve the right to reinstate its petition to intervene in the RKO proceedings in the event the unconstitutionality of the statute is attacked subsequently by other RKO creditors.

The constitutionality question may be raised by Fabian Operating Co. or Copia Realty Corp., whose guaranteed lease claims against RKO have been disallowed by Special Master George W. Alger. The claimants contend that if they cannot be compensated under the reorganization statute, they will be deprived of their property without due process of law in violation of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution.

After a brief preliminary hearing yesterday on the RKO reorganization plan Judge Bondy adjourned the proceedings to Jan. 24 at the request of counsel for the independent stockholders' protective committee which sought additional time to prepare financial data in support of its claim that stockholders are entitled to a greater equity in reorganized RKO than the 50 per cent of their present holdings which is accorded them under the plan. Their motion for an adjournment was not opposed by H. C. Rickaby, attorney for Atlas Corp., proponent of the RKO plan, who advised the court that he would devise an order of procedure to be followed in hearing the objections to the plan when the sessions resume next month.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Lady Behave"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—A good story, well produced, in which dialogue, action and situations are well blended to enable Sally Eilers, Neil Hamilton, Joseph Schildkraut, Marcia Mae Jones, George Ernest, Patrica Farr, Grant Mitchell and Robert Greig to give appealing characterizations establish "Lady Behave" as first class family entertainment. Combining a refreshing romantic love interest plot with a wealth of humor, both of which take many surprising twists, the film moves speedily and the interest that is stimulated in the opening sequences continues and increases.

Actually the story has two plots which result in a third. One is devoted to the experiences which befall Miss Eilers when she poses as the wife of Hamilton whom her scatter-brained sister, Patricia Farr, already married to Schildkraut, married during a Mardi Gras celebration. The other concentrates on the antics of Hamilton's two children, Ernest and Miss Jones, to drive Miss Eilers out of the family domicile. Playing for time in order to secure an annulment and save Miss Farr from being a bigamist, meantime making it appear that she is carrying on an affair with Schildkraut, Miss Eilers finds herself falling in love with Hamilton and he with her. The children also undergo a change of heart and when it is discovered that there were certain circumstances in the Schildkraut-Farr marriage that made it illegal, the way is paved to procure a quiet annulment of that as well as a divorce from Hamilton and the stage is set for Miss Eilers to marry him.

Tasteful handling of the theme discounts any question of its moral value. Based on a story by Joseph Krumgold which he and Olive Cooper adapted, the yarn never goes overboard in any way. Much credit for the lively entertaining show is due to the manner in which Lloyd Corrigan has directed. With intriguing title, story content and name value to serve as spring boards for exploitation campaigns, it seems that word of mouth advertising will serve "Lady Behave" in good stead.

"Mama Runs Wild"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—Using verbiage and gags sufficient for half a dozen short slapstick comedies, "Mama Runs Wild" actually is a combination of about half a dozen slapstick comedy ideas. The general idea of the film is to show that a domineering woman, even though she is a comedy character, has no place in politics. Before that point is made, however, demonstrations are made to show how a husband becomes henpecked. A few minutes are devoted to satirizing the buying of a house in the suburbs. Then the woman, accidentally, foils a bank hold-up and newspapers, newsreels and radio give her the idea that she's a civic leader. There follows a campaign for mayor on a cleanup platform which causes all the town's husbands to go on a sit-down strike and an election that gives the husband the mayor's office by a vote of something like 396 to 2. Finally it dawns upon the woman that she has been barking up the wrong tree. Injected into all the rest is a little comedy threat of vampire menace and, of course, a boy and girl romance.

Mary Boland is the mama who runs wild and Ernest Truex is her henpecked husband. Other participants are William Henry, Lynn Roberts, Max Terhune, Joseph Crehan, Dorothy Page, Dewey Robinson, Julius Tannen, Sammy McKim, John Sheehan and James C. Morton.

Gordon Kahn conceived the story and he and Hal Yates concocted the screenplay. Ralph Straub was both associate producer and director. There's plenty in the picture for audiences to laugh at if they choose the right moments to laugh.

He charges that he offered Trans-Lux a site in 1934 which the defendant subsequently leased in 1936 for 40 years. Leslie E. Thompson, president of Trans-Lux, James M. Brennan and Hardie Meakin, managers for RKO, and Furber testified for the defense. The trial will continue today.

Technician Proposal On Film Bill Beaten

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, Dec. 21.—An effort was made by the quota committee to obtain support for a proposal that not more than one foreign technician be employed on quota films. The sponsor of the proposal alleged that in one production unit all the technicians were American, but that British technicians are as good as anybody else.

Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, in opposing the plan, said it was necessary that British films be as good as possible and the amendment was withdrawn. A bid to impose a viewing test on films for the distributors' quota also was defeated. The House of Commons Films Act Committee will meet Feb. 3.

ARTA Begins Drive Among CBS Workers

The American Radio Telegraphists Ass'n, soon to be known as the American Communications Ass'n, and a C. I. O. affiliate, yesterday began a drive to unionize white collar employes in radio, selecting CBS in its initial effort. Delegates of the union all day yesterday were posted before entrances to 485 Madison Ave., distributing pamphlets to the WABC employes as they entered and left the premises.

Harold Katam of A.R.T.A. yesterday informed this publication that the Radio City premises would be phamphleted today, with WOR following the next day. He said that his organization would not post representatives before the premises of the New York independent stations, stating that A.R.T.A. had found other means of reaching employes in those places.

The pamphlet blazoned on its cover the information that radio engineers, actors, musicians and announcers had been unionized with benefit to them. On its inside pages it stated that now it was possible for everyone working in any capacity in radio to join a union and achieved all advantages gained by those elements already within the union fold. A mass meeting for radio broadcasting employes will be held shortly, with speakers of national importance, the pamphlet stated. Membership blanks were inserted between the pages of the pamphlet.

Thibault contended that the plaintiff failed to perform his duties properly.

The first in the new group will be "The River Is Blue," which will have Madeleine Carroll and Charles Boyer in the cast. Boyer will arrive from London today on the Normandie and will proceed to the coast immediately.

"The River Is Blue" will be placed in production sometime next month, Wanger said. Last season the producer made six, the final of the group being "Stand-In."

Wanger asserted yesterday that the reason for his trip to New York at this time was to confer with his attorney, Charles Schwartz of the Schwartz & Frohlich office. He will leave for Hollywood Monday.

Hollywood Throws Its High Hat Into Air for "Dwarfs"

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—A Hollywood hardened to the uncommonplace and steeped in the spectacular threw its high hat into the air and spread its ermine as a rug for Walt Disney to march again into the laurel horseshoe of cinema immortals wearing a brand new bar dexter for dwarfing with his "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" the unstinted expectations of the experts and thrusting the motion picture art some seven leagues forward into new and thrilling territory.

Tuesday night's turnout for the premiere at the Carthay Circle surpassed in distinguished attendance any similar ceremony in memory of the veteran George Arliss, who posed for the photographers, and in dreams of the enchanted Shirley Temple who couldn't restrain her impatience that long. Every top row personality in the cinema register between those ages came, saw and was conquered by the Disney magnus opus.

The premiere, which was also a preview, came at the crest of a publicity and advertising campaign as notable in its fashion as the film. For weeks the pages of the nation's ranking magazines and front line news-

Insiders' Outlook

By A-MIKE VOGEL

IF for no other reason than that 20th Century-Fox deserves the break, it is good to know that Simone Simon has clicked in "Love and Hisses." For a number of seasons, the company has tussled with the heroic assignment of selling this unique importation. They did strike a promising vein in that "see-moan see-moan" business and exploited it to the full. When pay dirt did not pan out, Darryl Zanuck discovered that two-moan Simone could sing.

That she does, and well, in the new picture is gathered from our Hollywood review which reads: "As an actress she is considerably improved but it is her singing that handed the preview audience a wallop and provoked applause." . . .

According to Gregory Dickson, the magnitude of the publicity campaign on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" threatens to become slightly epochal. Impressive no end is the listing of slick-paper and other publications that have already used and are set to use layouts and such on the Walt Disney full-length which opened brilliantly a few nights back in Hollywood.

Further Disney feature-length pictures are said to depend upon how "Snow White" is accepted by the public. If the response is at all proportionate to the eagerness with which newspapers, magazines, radio and who not are calling attention to this new entertainment, Mr. Disney might do well now to start planning for the next. . . .

Effective? Well, perusal of the job turned out by the Bob Gillham forces made this onlooker forget he was reading pure advertising. . . .

It was the young woman in the next seat who emphasized the reason why the Margaret Hamilton characterization in "I'll Take Romance" brings more than a touch of unholy joy to many observers. During a scene wherein Miss Hamilton speaks up to Helen Westley, the audible and very elated female who sat adjoining exclaimed to her companion:

"I just love the way she tells 'em."

Evidently, the character actress has no need of Grace Moore glamour, Melvyn Douglas suavity, Stuart Erwin comicalities, Helen Westley eyebrow-liftings.

From accounts of store activities that accompany Christmas shopping, it would appear that merchants are salvaging forms of entertainment discarded by the theatre. Advertisements feature bargains, but attractions of one kind and another are billed with the same prominence and more.

Singing choruses, parades, acrobats, dancers, skaters, explorers, orchestras, players from the legitimate are gathered with lavish hand to "pull 'em in." These things cost a lot of money but the stores seem to know what they are about.

Theatre business is poor in the weeks before Christmas. It is our opinion that competition from merchant-showmen has more than a little to do with it. . . .

May this editor express himself gratefully for the kind messages and season's greetings conveyed by so many thoughtful well-wishers?

It is our earnest wish that 1938 be the best year yet for you all.

Deny Gary Settlement

No settlement of the Gary, Ind., Theatre Co. suit against Paramount, which was withdrawn by the plaintiff in Indianapolis Federal Court on Tuesday, was made or was even discussed, Louis Phillips of the Paramount home office legal department, stated yesterday. The denial referred to an Indianapolis report, published by MOTION PICTURE DAILY, that a settlement had brought about the withdrawal of the suit.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 22.—A preview of "The Buccaneer" held here today was attended by Cecil B. DeMille, W. H. Pine, associate producer; C. Fluest, L. Mesinkop and Frank Bracht.

Disney Hailed On Coast for "Snow White"

papers had been spreading the news of an imminent miracle before an astonished and willingly enchanted reading public. On Sunday Chase & Sanborn's Charlie McCarthy had chatted with the dwarfs in front of the most conspicuous microphone in the world and on Monday Cecil B. DeMille had whipped up a Lux lather of interest in the picture by playing host to their parent coast to coast. Packard had picked up the party early Tuesday evening and the NBC-Blue network carried the opening exercises to the nation for a scintillant half hour.

Hollywood's approach to the occasion was optimistic with fingers crossed in pockets. Nobody saw fit to voice a suggestion that feature length might be quite a stretch for even the Disney whose "Three Little Pigs" had made also-rans of bone and sinew million dollar pictures. Everybody knew he didn't need to expand his undisputed sovereignty of the cartoon province. Therefore everybody liked to think he was not just taking a chance in a spirit of daring. Everybody was loquaciously positive about it when the party broke up.

First to address the microphone from the Carthay premises was Leo Spitz, who robbed the nation's cinema, the nation's ranking magazines and front line newspaper critics of the perfect phrase for the film by calling it "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." Among the last was Disney, who reacted to the excitement by forgetting some of his characters' names, probably the last forgetting of these that anybody will ever be guilty of.

Critic's Praise Is High

Newspaper critics strove in Wednesday's editions to restate the Spitz appraisal in appropriate variation and with emphatic amplification. Louella Parsons told Hearst readers: "Walt Disney adds new laurels to his fame with this first cartoon feature. It is a revelation." Edwin Schallert informed subscribers to the Los Angeles Times that "a motion picture miracle has come into being." Harry Mines of the Los Angeles Daily News wrote: "It's a picture that will prove heaven on earth for children, an unforgetable experience."

James Francis Crow of the dignified Hollywood Citizen-News acclaimed the film "the most noteworthy motion picture event of 1937, a picture that taxes the time and space and vocabulary of the reporter," saying which he continued on for 17 inches of said time, space and vocabulary.

Harrison Carrol of the Herald-Express and Virginia Wright of the Evening News also contributed keen and complimentary analyses of the Disney production.

Denies Firms Combined

Charles L. Casanave, vice-president and general manager of National Screen Accessories, declared yesterday that Theatre Utilities Service, Seattle, has not been combined with National Screen Accessories of Seattle, as was reported in Motion Picture Daily recently.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs"

(RKO)

Hollywood, Dec. 22—All that the advertising copy writers have been saying about this picture is true in spades. It is a box-office natural in the most expectant interpretation of that loosely bandied term and what it achieves in the way of audience satisfaction is spectacularly the box-office's business. Men, women and children attending the premiere surrendered in concert to the delicate charm of the opening sequence and the Disney spell upon them was broken only by their irrepressible applause at half a dozen points in the narrative and the velvet crackle of recurrent laughter. It is an inescapable conclusion that a picture capable of making happy kiddies out of the bluebloods of Hollywood, who didn't make their fortunes out of animated drawings, will captivate the plain population as perhaps no other motion picture ever has or will.

In leaping the immense time chasm between his Silly Symphonies and upper bracket specials Walt Disney utilized every production device in his rich repertoire and some others the world has yet to learn about. The character of Snow White is in the finely modulated manner of his symphonies. The characters of the dwarfs are fashioned of the materials used in creation of "The Three Little Pigs" and Mickey Mouse himself, to neither of which any of the dwarfs bear the slightest resemblance. The Prince of the love story is as orthodox a lover as Robert Taylor, if Taylor could sing, but the villainous Queen is inducted directly and without veneering from the fantastic whimsy of the Grimm fairy tale. The handling of all, individually and in their collective interrelationships, is far and away superior to any technique ever displayed by Disney or any other cartoonist.

The story is, of course, the story of the Grimm heroine, the envious Queen who plots her destruction, the seven dwarfs and the friendly animals who give her refuge and the Prince whose kiss restores her when the Queen has had her way. It is a story that has enthralled children of all nations and generations, but it was not precisely to be expected that it would make a modern audience forget that the characters on the screen are but drawings and their adventures even less real than the normal Hollywood kind. Yet that is precisely what happens during at least three sequences of major pertinence to the narrative, a thing not even an audience devoted and addicted to Hollywood make-believe found it easy, although pleasant, to credit.

This Hollywood audience was, incidentally, no collection of starry-eyed children eager to be pleased. It was an audience of adults wise in the ways of cinema entertainment and pretty well satisfied with the way it has been set up and the wages it pays. It was an audience composed in large part of professionals not a whit above uttering hoot, hiss and catcall on what they might consider proper provocation. Disney's picture fascinated this ensemble of mature sophisticates completely. It is not to be classified or regarded, therefore, as a juvenile production, although it is in point of fact the greatest child's picture ever dreamed of.

The statistics of manufacture have been too widely and well presented to require repetition here. Likwise the technical credits, although there would be plenty of reason for hailing the inventor of the multiplane camera if it were indeed one man's invention instead of a studio development. It is used to obtain certain effects which are new in the cartoon medium and add tremendously to its power. The single statistic of pertinence to this report is the one appearing below, indicating running time. The picture seemed so much shorter that everybody in preview attendance suspected his watch of slipping a cog.

Extra Time for "Truth"

A total of 65 "key" bookings have given holdovers to "The Awful Truth" for more than 800 days of additional playing time, Columbia Pictures reported yesterday. A number of the holdovers resulted in runs of from three to five weeks in individual situations, according to the company's statement.

Akerson Rites Today

Funeral services will be held today at the Dutch Reformed Church, Bronxville, for George E. Akerson, former secretary to President Hoover, and at one time an executive with Paramount, where he remained for two years. Akerson died Tuesday night at the Rockefeller Institute Hospital here.

"Confessions" at $52,000

"True Confessions" garnered approximately $52,000 in its first week at the Paramount. The picture is being held a second week and will make way Dec. 28 for "Wells Fargo," which will start an indefinite run.

Short Subjects

"March of Time No. 5"

(RKO)

There is a diversification of interest in this latest issue of March of Time which should make its subject matter acceptable to all audiences. The unusual success which Finland has had in rejecting various national "isms" and maintaining a high standard of economic activity, a glance at the industry which has arisen from the business of supplying laughs for screen, stage and radio, and a consideration of the shipping problem in the United States make up the reel.

Finland, celebrating its 20th anniversary of freedom from Russia, is pictured, with considerable pictorial effect, in its industrial and political life, having built an industrial basis for its economic stability to add to its fundamental agricultural activity. The development and maintenance of sound financing is indicated in its regular payments of the debt to the United States.

Such jokesters on screen and air, as Fred Allen, Eddie Cantor, Jack Benny, Phil Baker and the like are seen working over laugh material, in view of some of the highlight figures of the "laugh industry," whose business is the furnishing of "gags" to those who need them in the amusement field. It is a card-file, catalog activity, whose principal work appears to be supplying new twists to old lines.

The reel's consideration of the merchant marine situation in this country revolves about the extraordinary job of fact-gathering done by Joseph P. Kennedy, while head of the Maritime Commission pictures the discouraging appearance of the American merchant fleet as compared with other countries, and points to the labor situation as partly responsible for the conditions, which require immediate and drastic action, in Kennedy's frankly-expressed opinion. An interesting and timely subject.

Running time, 18 mins. "G."

DeVry Delays Plans For 16mm Newsreels

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—Plans for the establishment of a 16mm national newsreel have been delayed by H. A. DeVry, equipment manufacturer, who has been active in establishing local 16mm newsreels throughout the country.

DeVry stated that until all arrangements for handling the film could be completed, production would be held up. According to DeVry, from 20 to 40 theatres in the Chicago area will start local newsreels late in January. These theatres will be serviced by DeVry.

Latest development in the plans DeVry has in the 16mm field is the establishment of a library of features which will be rented to schools and non-theatrical groups. At present DeVry officials are screening more than 100 features to secure the pictures which they feel are needed for their library. Many of the films are independent productions.

Dropping Stadium Favored by Court

is expected from the former Orpheum Circuit, Inc., which was purchased from the company in bankruptcy in February.

The transfer, it was stated, is to be made to avoid approximately $50,000 in Federal undistributed and excess profits taxes.

The order provides that Stadium notes to RKO, which total $2,644,655 with $673,000 in accrued interest and are the only liability of Stadium, will be cancelled in return for Stadium assets which consist almost exclusively of former Orpheum Circuit property.

RKO Orpheum will receive the assets and return a note for $2,644,655 and all its capital stock to RKO. Stadium's stock and notes are now on deposit under an indenture with the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. The order provides for the substitution of the RKO Orpheum stock and notes for the Stadium collateral. The dissolution of Stadium must be effected before the end of the year if the taxes are to be avoided.

RKO Orpheum will issue 10 shares of no par value voting common stock and 673 shares of no par value preferred stock redeemable at $1,000 per share.

Trade Treaty May Hit N.S.W. Quota

tributor quota from the previous 10 per cent to three per cent, but made it virtually mandatory that the distributors meet the requirements of the quota legislation. At the moment distributing offices here are awaiting complete details by mail on the legislation from Sydney, before determining on a course of action. The law will cover 1938 and 1939. The exhibitor quota is 2½ per cent.

It was pointed out yesterday that the American trade treaty with England, now in the course of discussion preliminary to negotiation, calls for trade agreements between the United States and the United Kingdom, and not Great Britain alone. If the negotiations are successfully concluded, such a treaty, with respect to films as to all other products included, would be binding on Australia as well.

The legislation just enacted pertains to New South Wales alone, since quota laws there are made individually, by states, but it is feared here that the precedent may spread to the other five states which make up the Commonwealth of Australia.

The political implications of the new legislation also were emphasized here, in view of the fact that the Australian elections will be held next spring. The new law carries a 12½ per cent rejection privilege on foreign product for New South Wales exhibitors.

It was said that American firms may finance Australian production in order to comply with the provisions of the New South Wales quota, if that becomes necessary, but under no consideration would they produce there, since the cost of transporting production units would be prohibitive, despite the fact that Australia is an excellent market for American pictures. Whereas Australian product may be used for quota purposes in the English market, the New South Wales law permits the use only of Australian product, and not English.

Air "Code" Control Predicted by Weber

said here today. Weber, now on a short visit to Southern California, addressed the press at a luncheon given him by Lewis Allen Weiss, general manager of the Don Lee network, Mutual west coast affiliate.

Weber, in answer to a question by a MOTION PICTURE DAILY reporter, said that an attempt at unity of action for all broadcasters regardless of the power of individual stations will be attempted at the forthcoming convention through the election of president and secretary with paid salaries and augmented powers.

Weber disclosed that leading broadcasters of the midwest and east will attempt to put through a measure which in effect will establish trade policies, such as educational and social ideas, as well as formulate labor and other policies. He said one of the important points of the program would have to do with a regulatory code governing decency and morals in broadcasts but indicated that no penalties could be inflicted upon members violating such a code if set up. Penalties for violations of self-governing rules on morals and decency may result only through cooperation of all broadcasters, he indicated.

Touch Lightly on West

Although the NBC Mae West broadcast was discussed facetiously, no actual mention of the program which met public disapproval was made by Weber who said that promoters of the self-regulatory code had been at work on proposals for about sixty days.

Weber was introduced by L. M. (Bud) Rutherford, publicity director for Don Lee, and declared that three or four men not directly connected with the radio industry may be suggested by N.A.B. delegates as "czar" of the industry. He predicted that 1938 would be the best year for Mutual, telling of improved facilities for educational and special events, sports and sustaining features through systems of cooperative broadcasting on which Mutual has gained great favor by establishing a reputation for fine dance bands. He said that this factor would be the opening wedge in new campaigns.

Among features to be presented by Mutual during 1938 will be the first regular weekly international program to be aired from France and/or England.

New Shows on the Air

"Continental Varieties"

A fair idea of the scope of this program may be gleaned from the initial announcement which is uttered in six languages, including English. Its title is a familiar one and its significance strikes an obvious note to listeners as to what they may expect.

As the minutes tick past listeners become aware of a lively afternoon program that pleasantly stimulates the imagination with more or less familiar romantic music. The numbers are popular and the orchestrations bring out the rich tone values of Latin songs from abroad and South America. The few done in the French manner went off well, too. A modern German ballad also clicked.

Carmen Del Rio, a singer from Buenos Aires, was featured on yesterday's program. She has a rich voice and delivers her numbers in French and Spanish. Her rendition of the tricky "Clavelitos" stood out. Spanish influence overshadows the period, but the rich rhythms are always satisfying. Joseph Honti manages to get the most from the orchestra. The program features guest stars each week. It is heard on Wednesdays over WJZ and the NBC-Blue network from 3 to 3:30 P. M. P.

KFEL Writ Sought On Transcribed Show

DENVER, Dec. 22.—An injunction to restrain KFEL from broadcasting a transcribed program and stating it was being broadcast for Olinger Mortuaries, Inc., is being sought in a suit filed in the District Court here. The complaint alleges KFEL has presented a "canned" music program on Sunday afternoons, immediately following a program sponsored by the mortuaries over KLZ.

KFEL maintains that it has a signed contract for the programs, and had previously started suit for the first month's bill, which the mortuaries had refused to pay. The KFEL suit is against the mortuaries, the Hower Advertising Agency and W. W. MacGruder, who was employed by the Hower agency, but who now, since the death of C. M. Hower, has his own agency.

RCA-Victor Canada Records Explained

MONTREAL, Dec. 22.—Radio entertainers of Canada got a slight case of the "jitters" the other day when RCA-Victor opened a new studio in St. Henry Ward, for the manufacture of transcriptions. Their attack subsided, however, when company officials announced that transcriptions made there will not be used for commercial purposes in large metropolitan stations of the Dominion, but will be shipped to the small-power stations in remote corners of the provinces, stations too isolated to become an integral part of the regular network of the Dominion.

It was pointed out that Canadian talent would be used.

Radio Men Wrestle With AF of M Pacts

At a late hour last night the A. F. of M. and the I.R.N.A. committee still were wrestling over the content of the mass of contracts sent in by the I.R.N.A. stations. The deadline expired last night, but it is believed that it will not be found necessary to set another. Word of the outcome of yesterday's session is expected to be available today.

Union Extends Deadline for Music Pacts

New Date Jan. 3—About 200 Contracts Signed

I.R.N.A. stations were notified by wire yesterday that the A. F. of M. deadline has been extended until Jan. 3, 1938, to permit them more time to negotiate with the local chapters of the Federation, in accordance with the Plan of Settlement.

The messages bore the signatures of Samuel Rosenbaum and Emile J. Gough of the I.R.N.A. committee, and read as follows:

"All but a few dozen affiliates have either signed contracts with locals or are actively negotiating and contracts are practically assured. Owing to the holiday season it is impossible to expect completion this week (of the pact with the A. F. of M.) and in fairness to the vast majority of affiliates who are showing good faith, Weber (A. F. of M. president) has agreed at the request of the committee to close the meetings finally Jan. 3, 1938. Please cooperate by completing your contracts before that date if you have not yet closed with your local."

Close to 200 contracts are now on file with the Federation, it was said yesterday.

Claim 405 Stations Can Use New Discs

A nationwide survey recently completed indicates that 405 United States radio stations are now specially equipped to broadcast vertical-cut wide range transcriptions, according to World Broadcasting System. Vertical recording, a Bell Laboratories development, is described as providing "four-color" quality reproduction on the air.

Zukor Status At Studio to Be Continued

Litigation Is Preventing Option Renewal

Adolph Zukor's employment status as Paramount studio head will continue unchanged after the first of the year, it was stated emphatically by a high company official yesterday.

At the same time, it was explained that due to the fact that Zukor's contract is still involved in litigation initiated by a company stockholder last summer, no action is scheduled to be taken on the option for renewal which otherwise would be exercised by the company prior to Dec. 31, as provided for in the contract. Due to the legal status of the pact, it has not been formally placed in effect, but will be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1937, if and when its legality has been asserted by the court, it was said.

The company official pointed out, also, that Zukor was officially without

Supply of School Films Faces Delay

There is little likelihood that the more than 1,000 films which were approved in whole or in part for school use by the M.P.P.D.A. educational films committee will be available to classrooms for many months to come, it was learned yesterday.

Individual producer-owners of the

Yates Sees Republic Gross at 10 Million

Republic will gross approximately $10,000,000 on the current season's product, H. J. Yates, stated yesterday in commenting on the company's sales policy in view of the resignation of J. J. Milstein, general sales manager.

Yates pointed out that there was no immediate need to replace Milstein as the company's product was being handled by franchise holders throughout the country. However, he is considering some men for the post. No decision is expected for some time.

Milstein officially will step out of his Republic job today. He is considering several offers in the east.

To Sell "U" Panay Picture as Special

Universal's release of the bombing and sinking of the U. S. gunboat Panay by Japanese planes will be sold as a special, rather than being issued as a regular newsreel release, company officials stated yesterday. Preferential treatment, however, will be accorded theatres which have contracts with the newsreel, it was said.

Norman Alley, Universal newsreel cameraman, who was a passenger on the Panay during the bombing, is aboard a Pacific clipper en route

UA Board to Take Up Korda Release Plea

Understood His Original Request Modified

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—The United Artists board of directors is scheduled to consider Alexander Korda's request for a release from his contract commitments calling for exclusive production for that company at a special meeting to be held here probably on Monday, it was learned from authoritative sources today. The meeting was to have been held tomorrow but was postponed because of the inability of Douglas Fairbanks to be present at that time.

Korda, originally, is reported to have sought a complete release from his contractual obligations with United Artists but modified this subsequently to a request for the right to engage in outside production. It is this request which the board is scheduled to consider.

Korda is understood to have represented to United Artists that only by engaging in additional production, and for principals other than United Artists could his company, London Films, continue to be maintained. It was reported in reliable quarters here that Korda has received overtures from both M-G-M and 20th Century-Fox to handle production of a part of the indicated British quota requirements of both companies.

United Artists is reported to be wary of the precedent which may be established by granting Korda's request and for that reason the board's action is said to be unpredictable.

Meanwhile, United Artists' negotiations for the retention of David O.

Film Squadron, 21 in All, In on Normandie for Xmas

By BILL ORNSTEIN

The Normandie arrived yesterday from England with 21 film and theatrical personalities aboard, some returning from work in Paris and England, others en route to Hollywood to start work in pictures and another group vacation-bound.

Heading the list was Ben Goetz, in charge of M-G-M production in England, en route to Hollywood for conferences with Louis B. Mayer. He said that the company is preparing five productions to start early next year in London. They are "The Citadel," "And So Victoria," "Goodbye Mr. Chips," "Finishing School" and "Shadow of the Wing." He was optimistic about M-G-M's plans in England and said that at the coast meetings it will be decided what studio will be used permanently for production. "A Yank at Oxford" was made at Denham. He stayed over last night to attend the wedding of Ann Dawson, his sister's child, before flying to Hollywood today with his brother, Harry. He also asserted the company had taken an option on Dr. A. J. Cronin's next novel, as yet unnamed.

Victor Saville, who accompanied Goetz, said he will produce three of

Ornstein Is Named Head of Score Club

Bill Ornstein of the editorial staff of MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday was elected president of the Score Club, formerly known as the Monday Knighters, and composed of local circuit heads and exchange managers. The election took place at the annual Christmas luncheon at the Tavern.

Each member of the club has been in the film business for 20 years with the exception of Ornstein, who has been in the industry for 17 years. However, the members decided to waive the three-year difference in favor of Ornstein, the only trade paper man identified with the organization.

Meetings will be held bi-monthly at a prominent hotel. Today, the members will gather at the Paddock for an informal session. Other officers of the Score Club will be named at a later meeting.

Attending yesterday's session were Harry Shiffman, Joe Hornstein, Max A. Cohen, Roy H. Haines, Edward M. Schnitzer, Nat Cohn, Moe Morris, Frank Elridge, Charles Moses, Louis Frisch, Sam Rinzler, Herman Gluckman, Jack Bowen, Louis Geller, William Saal, Moe Sanders, Harry H. I. A. Poll to Sound Autonomy Sentiment

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—Sentiment among members of the I. A. T. S. E. is being sounded through the medium of elections to determine whether the international organization or individual locals shall have autonomy. The result of the vote will have no legal significance but will serve merely as an indication of members' preference toward an issue made capital of by intramural political factions and recently the subject of a legislative committee investigation.

Local 695, composed of studio sound men, was the first unit to vote. They balloted overwhelmingly in favor of a continuance of international supervision. Headquarters of the I. A. T. S. E. stated that only four out of 400 votes asked local autonomy. George Browne, president of the I. A., who arrived in town this week with William Bioff, his personal representative, addressed the group on the benefits of international supervision over local antonomy.

Other locals which will vote shortly are: International Photographers, Local 659; Laboratory Workers, Local 683, and Studio Technicians, Local 37. I. A. T. S. E. leaders are confident that the majority of the members in the four locals will favor retention of international supervision.

Many Arrive On Normandie For Christmas

the five films scheduled, namely, "The Citadel," "And So Victoria" and "Goodbye Mr. Chips." Michael Balcon will produce the other two.

This is his first trip to America since 1929, he stated. He expects to begin work on "The Citadel" in February. Both Goetz and Saville plan to be on the coast a week or 10 days. He will leave today by plane for the coast with the Goetzes.

Commenting on M-G-M's plans abroad, Saville declared that the company has set down as many films as can be made. "We have some very fine subjects," he said, "and we will make the kind of pictures demanded of M-G-M." He was not optimistic on making million-dollar pictures, holding that films should not cost more to make in England than in Hollywood.

Sam Smith, who handles Republic product in England, said that British Lion's four-year deal expires the end of 1939. Negotiations for renewing the pact will be held here with H. J. Yates, he added.

Smith Leaves for Toronto

"Very little production is now going on in England," Smith stated, because of the uncertainty of the quota law, but as soon as this is settled production will have a new spurt. He left for Toronto last night to spend Christmas with N. L. Nathanson and will return Monday.

Francis L. Harley, managing director for England, and Benjamin Miggins, managing director for Continental Europe, represented the 20th Century-Fox sales contingent.

Harley said that distribution and exhibition in England are "marvellous." Business in England is much better this year than last, he said, "and our business is outstandingly good." The sales executive would not comment on the company's production plans in England, adding that Robert T. Kane will come over soon to discuss the situation with Sidney R. Kent, president. He will remain three to four weeks.

Says Dutch Building Decreases

Miggins declared there is little theatre building and that Holland and Switzerland are now going through "adjustment." He added that theatre business on the continent was good and everyone was making money.

One of the purposes of his trip is to see "In Old Chicago" at the Astor on Jan. 6. The second is to discuss plans for next season. Next Tuesday both Harley and Miggins will attend the cocktail party at the Savoy Plaza being tendered by Kent for Darryl F. Zanuck. Joseph M. Schenck also will attend.

Gilbert Miller said he brought his wife home for Christmas and that he is planning to do a play by Frederick Lonsdale, tentatively titled "Once Is Enough," with Ina Claire. He added he had no film tieups and did not plan any. He left for England Oct. 1, and will return there the end of February.

Lonsdale, who also was on the boat, left yesterday for Florida to spend the holidays with Lord Beaverbrook.

Anton Litvak, who has three more years to go under his Warner contract, asserted he will make two a year for the company. However, he has one picture to make for Walter Wanger, "Wuthering Heights," which he hopes to complete this year. He left yesterday for Chicago, where Miriam Hopkins, his wife, is appearing in "Wine of Choice." He will accompany her to Philadelphia in two days and then come on to New York, where he will spend three to four weeks before proceeding to the coast to start work on "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse." Miss Hopkins, Litvak stated, has two years to go under her Samuel Goldwyn contract, and she will be back at the studios in May or June.

Charles MacArthur, playwright, wrote a play, tentatively titled "Holy Bible," while in Egypt and Budapest. He said it was a story about a New York girl and he didn't know who would produce it. He left here Oct. 30.

One M-G-M for MacArthur

Committed to M-G-M for one picture, MacArthur said he may do a story in the "Get Rich Quick Wallingford" series. He may write it here or go to the coast in January. Helen Hayes, his wife, has no picture plans, according to MacArthur, who is now writing another untitled play.

June Knight, who just finished "Break the News," for Rene Clair with Maurice Chevalier in Paris, left for Hollywood last night. She said she had several offers for films, but was anxious to do a play first.

Samuel Engel, who produced "He Was Her Man" for 20th Century-Fox in England, said Gracie Fields has three more films to do for the company regardless of the quota. He is Hollywood-bound after three months abroad.

Victor McLaglen and Brian Donlevy, who appeared in the picture with Miss Fields, also returned on the Normandie. Both were in England three months and said they were glad to get back. McLaglen said his contract with 20th Century-Fox has four more years to run and that he will appear in three a year. He left for the coast by plane last night. Donlevy will leave Saturday. He said he will be in the next McLaglen film as soon as he reaches the coast.

Arthur Tracy returned after spending 19 months in England, where he made "Follow Your Star." He said he produced this on his own, that General Film Distributors would handle it in England and that Universal probably will distribute in this country His company is known as the Bell grave Films. He said he is discussing three deals to make quota pictures in England and plans to leave for Hollywood shortly.

Peter Bull, English actor, arrived to appear in "Marie Antoinette." He said he had never been in Hollywood, although he has visited New York. He left for the coast by plane last night.

Lewis Milestone, director, returned from a two-month vacation abroad. He visited England, France, Austria, Hungary and Roumania. He also departed for the coast yesterday and will direct "Roadshow" for Hal Roach. After that he has no commitments, he said.

Moss Hart and Richard Rodgers returned from their first vacation in six years. They spent considerable time in Naples, Paris, Rome and London. Hart was away four weeks and Rodgers a week longer. Their next play will be "I Married an Angel," on which M-G-M has an option. Dwight Wiman will produce it on Broadway. Their last film effort was "Food for Scandal," for which they did the music, lyrics and book. Hart and Rodgers stated they are concentrating on the theatre and have no further film plans.

Boyer and Wife Debark

Charles Boyer and his wife, Pat Paterson, came back from England and France, where they spent three months, the former working on a film in Paris and the latter vacationing. Boyer made "Storm" for Daven Prod., and under the terms of his Walter Wanger contract, which has two years to go, he will appear in two a year. Miss Paterson also is under contract to Wanger. Both left for Hollywood last night by train. Both Boyer and his wife stated they had not been advised of their next picture.

Hayes Goetz accompanied his father. Mrs. Goetz arrived two weeks ago. Also on the boat was Terris Ivens, director of "The Spanish Earth."

Poundage Down

Kansas City, Dec. 23.—Western Missouri and Kansas exhibitors are using about 15 per cent less poundage of film than they did a year ago at the same time. At Film Delivery, where they weigh out film for transport, poundage is down about that much in comparison with the same period in 1936, according to Sam Abend, treasurer.

While there have been half a dozen or more theatre closings in the area recently, much more important are the number of exhibitors cutting down program changes.

—Robert M. Weitman, Paramount Theatre, N.Y.

"I must confess that 'TRUE CONFESSION' is knocking them over at the Sheridan in Miami Beach, even bettering last year's holiday records of 'COLLEGE HOLIDAY' and 'THE PLAINSMAN' although playing in pre-holiday time. Audience reaction is tremendous."
—Will Lynch, Paramount Enterprises, Miami, Fla.

" 'TRUE CONFESSION' is a highly polished, smoothly grained Yule log which deserves to crackle right merrily at the Paramount. It is witty, clever, highly amusing. Santa will have to be generous indeed to give us a merrier show."

Looking 'Em Over

"Boss of Lonely Valley"

(Universal)

LINCOLN, Dec. 23.—Buck Jones has been in much better and faster paced films than this, but it'll do the average business for Jones' flickers without much trouble.

It brings G-men into the western field, a thing quite odd viewing the time, place and setting. It's about a clever mobster, Walter Miller, who imports a crew of yeggs, among them a forger, Matty Fain, to a peaceful ranching valley, where he slicks widows and orphans of their lands by showing bills-of-sale with phoneyed signatures. He tries the deal on Buck Jones' girl friend, Muriel Evans, which brings Buck into action. The G-man is Harvey Clark, roaming the countryside like a bum gaining his evidence.

The film has an elaborate plot, with a whole town tunneled, even from the church to the gambling hall. This fact will intrigue the kids no end.

For the hinterlands, one incident surely will provide quite a bit of laughter—the scene wherein Muriel Evans in her best Sunday dress and her white, high heeled shoes invades the cowlot with a milk bucket to pail the Jerseys. The dress is bad enough, but the idea of white shoes in a cowyard is slightly out of reason.

Buck Jones is the producer, with Ray Taylor directing. It was taken from the novel by Forrest Brown, with screenplay by Frances Guihan.

Short Subjects

"Rhythm Wranglers"

(RKO)

Cowboy and hillbilly music is arranged and presented in this short to be nicely entertaining. There is also the semblance of a plot. It revolves around the competition between two dude ranches. The photography and recording are good. Assisting in the unfoldment are Ray Whitley, Jane Walsh, Lloyd Ingraham and Georgia Simons. It should please. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

"Porky's Poppa"

(Vitaphone)

Another cleverly executed cartoon featuring the comical and sometimes ingenious pig character. Here he pits his cow, Bessie, against a mechanical milk-producing monster and the encounter is really good novelty. Bes sie wins out to save the farm from ruin. Worth while. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"September in the Rain"

(Vitaphone)

A color cartoon fantasy that utilizes various articles in a grocery story for its effect. The theme is set to modern music and a number of caricatures of prominent entertainers are worked into the action. It is pleasant but doesn't seem to get anywhere. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"One on the House"

(Vitaphone)

The famous vaudeville act known as Willie, West and McGinty serves as the hub around which revolves a meager plot concerning newlyweds and an assortment of turns performed by The Merry Macs, Floria Vestoff, Diane Denise and Al Tucker. The result is diversified entertainment which should manage to please all around. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Henry King & Orchestra"

(Vitaphone)

This familiar band is introduced with a novel story idea. The plot offers King as a correspondence school musician who gathers a band from neighborhood talent. They go to New York for commencement exercises and mistakenly drop into a night club where their music is an immediate success. The idea hits off well enough and the music and singing by Betty Allen rounds out the entertainment. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Alibi Mark"

(Vitaphone)

Floyd Gibbons delivers another of "Your True Adventures" here. It lacks the punch and realistic thrills of earlier numbers, but gets around to a good dramatic climax. Gibbons relates his yarn in a C.C.C. camp setting. It concerns a down and out youth who rides freight trains into a near-lynching party when he hops off in a town where a man has just been murdered by a hobo. Only identification by a railroad detective who hit him with a blackjack saves his neck. The real life character is on hand again to receive his check. Running time, 13 mins. "G." a contract as studio head during the first six months of this year, inasmuch as his contract had to be approved by Paramount stockholders and this was not done until June. At that time the contract was overwhelmingly approved by the shareholders but one, Ella Hayim, owner of a small number of shares, brought an action following the meeting to enjoin the company from placing the contract in effect. The action has not been adjudicated yet but if it is ultimately determined in the company's favor it will be made effective immediately, it was stated.

The Paramount board of directors, tentatively scheduled to meet yesterday, did not convene, due largely to the absence of a number of directors from the city and to the absence of urgent company business for the attention of the board. The next session will probably be late in January.

approved films have not yet authorized their release to schools and, in the event they are made available, there is no distribution machinery in view for them at this time.

Cataloging of the films has been begun by the M.P.P.D.A., which will show the number of approved films in the vaults of individual companies. The listing was scheduled to be reported to the quarterly meeting of the Hays organization last Tuesday but has not been completed yet.

Interest in the educational films appears to be waning in producer-distributor circles. Only one meeting of the educational films committee appointed by Will H. Hays in October has been held and it is unlikely that another will be called prior to the return of H. M. Warner, chairman, to New York from Hollywood. From present indications this point will not be reached until February at the earliest.

Tentatively Accept Chicago Fees Offer

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—Theatre representatives and members of the City Council last night considered the $70,000 increase in license fees offered by the theatre owners to the Finance Committee of the Council, instead of the $120,000 increase sought by the council.

The committee accepted the theatremen's offer subject to the approval of the Council.

U. A. Will Consider Korda Release Plea

Selznick are at a standstill and, presumably, dependent wholly upon the final outcome of the Selznick-M-G-M negotiations. Metro is said to have agreed to all of Selznick's terms, including a world distribution charge of 20 per cent. but has balked at Selznick's request for separate selling of his product. The distributor contends that this would necessitate the creation of a separate sales force.

United Artists, of course, sells its producers' product separately but its domestic distribution charge ranges from 25 to 30 per cent.

share operating duties with the theatre department continuing as now constituted.

Blumberg's resignation from RKO will become effective at the end of next week, and on Jan. 3 he will begin his duties as Universal president.

Official indications at the moment are that the designation of a theatre operating head will be deferred until Leo Spitz, RKO president, returns from the studio. The date of his return is still indefinite, but may be another 30 days or more in the offing.

Claim Union Cinema Assets Transferred

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Charges that certain assets of Union Cinemas had been transferred, thus benefiting individuals, who are unnamed, were aired today at the first annual meeting of the company since a controlling interest in the company was taken by Associated British Pictures. John Maxwell, head of Associated, who presided, did not propose the adoption of the financial report, and declared that no dividend will be voted for some time.

He persuaded the shareholders to adjourn the meeting sine die. He had ordered a complete investigation of the company's affairs and canceled all building plans for the circuit. The company's bank overdraft was given at £1,500,000. The assets were listed at £3,856,000, written up by £2,000,000. Loans made to a subsidiary company were in the form of salaries to directors. Amortization has been figured on a basis of 99 years as the life of the company's theatre properties, while actually it is probably not more than 20 or 30 years, it was said.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—William Anthony McGuire today asked for a release of his M-G-M contract following completion of "Girl of the Golden West,'" which he is producing for the company. He said he was anxious to return to Broadway to do a musical show.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 23.—Exhibitors from the entire state have been invited to attend the formal opening of the new 20th Century-Fox Bldg., on Tuesday. A special screening will be held.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 30
(20th Century-Fox)

Diversified material, good narration and well staged features help to make this release an interesting and entertaining one in spite of the usual midweek shortage of spot news events.

The news subjects include some good shots of the picketing of the Ford plant at Kansas City and incidental clashes of pickets and police; the opening of the new Lincoln tunnel under the Hudson River from Weehawken, N. J., to midtown New York; a Christmas party in Washington for the children of foreign diplomats; the departure from Italy of the Duke of Aosta, newly appointed Viceroy of Ethiopia; King George VI inspecting Britain's new fighting planes; Dowager Queen Mary at a Christmas benefit sale for England's poor, and Sonja Henie's arrival in Chicago for a skating exhibition.

Departmental features include the presentation of Congressional medals to members of an Antarctic expedition by Darryl Zanuck for the reel's Hollywood Spotlight section; Vyvyan Donner's and Helen Claire's fashions; the Navy's newest and largest flying "battleship" at San Diego, an aviation feature, and skiing scenes at home and abroad, a sports feature.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 228
(M-G-M)

This issue devotes itself entirely to a review of the outstanding events of the past year. It was a particularly eventful period and the film is the better for it. The material is presented in effective clips and enough of each event is presented to refresh the mind of the audience.

The dignified pageantry of the Coronation of George VI opens the reel. The culmination of the romance of Edward VIII follows with shots of his marriage to Mrs. Wallis Warfield. The horrible crash of the Hindenburg is shown again in its gruesome reality. Personalities are covered with clips of Pope Pius and the late John D. Rockefeller. Aviation includes a short bit on Amelia Earhart and the progress of trans-Atlantic flight. The damaging floods in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys are shown. Some of the best shots of the war in China and Spain are run again. The inauguration of President Roosevelt and other items of home interest conclude the issue.

The comment is handled by Adelaide Hawley, Paul Alley and Jean Paul King.

Paramount News
(Paramount)

Drama and entertainment, and a measure of general interest combine to make this a varied and effective issue of the reel. Probably unconsciously a sharp and dramatic contrast was afforded in the scenes of the terrible wreck of a wooden train in Scotland in a night blizzard, which claimed 34 lives, against the pictures of the new streamlined train, which presents a striking picture of the most modern note in transportation.

Extremely effective are the scenes in Rome, as Mussolini greets his council, then announces to the cheering throngs Italy's withdrawal from the League. The reel is late with pictures of the escape of two convicts from Alcatraz Island. Shown is the navy's new "flying battleship," a flying monster of war. Scenes of the home of France's new Bluebeard; freshmen at Lille, France, undergoing a vigorous and amusing initiation, co-ed styles for all types of wear, and the greetings of the season from children of various countries, seen in the Washington embassy circle, complete the reel.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 45
(RKO)

The assortment of items that went into the makeup of this issue of RKO Pathe News generally manages to be interesting in spite of the fact that little of significant pictorial value has transpired. There are nine items and they range from the manufacture of wool from milk in Italy to the recent premiere of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" in Hollywood.

The opening of the new Lincoln Tunnel occupies first place. There are good shots of the various officials attending the ceremonies. The "Snow White" opening follows with good scenes of film personalities as they enter the theatre. The recent train wreck in Scotland, the various privileges enjoyed by Congressmen, a proposed hunt for giant dinosaurs in Colorado, the Italian conversion of milk into wool, Senator Wagner explaining the Housing Act, a humorous scene of the "bangup" demonstration of a fellow in Ohio who would propel himself on ice skates with rockets and the opening race at Tropical Park in Florida, described by Clem McCarthy, supply the balance of the reel.

Running time, 8 mins. P.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 9, No. 626
(Universal)

There is plenty of variety in subjects and a liberal selection of material in this release, although none of it is outstanding and little of it is of consequence.

The 11 subjects comprising the reel are the Inaugural Handicap at Miami; a Christmas party for crippled children of Hollywood, given by a handicapped girl; the arrival in France of British gold shipments; a church congress for children at Havana; the departure of Italy's new viceroy for Ethiopia; the aftermath of a sleet storm in Oklahoma City; flood scenes in the south of France; a Cleveland warehouse fire; the opening of the Lincoln Tunnel connecting New Jersey and midtown New York; a California Santa Claus who travels by glider, and the scoring plays in a recent hockey game between the Canadiens and the N. Y. Rangers.

The reel's variety and the brevity of the more inconsequential subjects give the release a pace which makes it as diverting as the average reel.

to San Francisco with 5,000 feet of film. He is scheduled to arrive on the coast on Monday and in New York the following day. If the schedule is maintained the release should be generally available Dec. 30.

The possibility that the U. S. State Dep't or Navy might delay release of the film, pending its viewing and possible censorship by the Government officials, was dispelled yesterday when immediate and uncensored release of the reel was authorized in Washington, according to Charles E. Ford, editor of the reel.

David Lipton, formerly with B. & K. and a number of other circuits, has been engaged as a special publicity representative for the film.

Alley in L. A. Monday

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—Norman Alley, cameraman of Universal Newsreel, who photographed the bombardment and sinking of the Panay, will arrive here Monday on a Pacific clipper with his views of the action in the Yangtze River. Universal has chartered a United Airlines plane to fly Alley, his wife, children and the newsreel footage to New York. Dave Lipton is flying here to accompany Alley east.

Montreal Men Held In Child Law Cases

MONTREAL, Dec. 23.—The law prohibiting admission of children under 16 years of age to any theatre in the Province of Quebec during a film showing has brought fresh trouble to a number of exhibitors, nine of whom have been summoned for an alleged breach of statute.

For more than 10 years the theatre owners have battled with the Provincial authorities for a repeal of the law which went into effect following the Laurier Palace disaster. Following a recent agitation, the Montreal police apparently retaliated by making a roundup of neighborhood theatre owners.

The Allied Theatrical Industries, which is the association representing the theatre owners, has held an emergency meeting and plans have been laid to make an issue of the prosecutions. Renewed attempts for a change in the law will be laid before the session of the Quebec Legislature which opens in January.

Move Against Newspapers' Air Stations

Sound Senate Sentiment; Total Is Now 200

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—With newspaper-owned radio stations now numbering around 200 out of the 700-odd licensed commercial radio stations, President Roosevelt is said again to be considering the advisability of legislation to compel newspapers to divest themselves of the ownership or control of stations.

Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the F. C. C., is known to favor such a step, and recently he began a study of the problem.

Dr. Irvin Stewart, formerly of the F. C. C., recently compiled an analysis of newspaper ownership of stations and found 113 cities in which all local broadcast stations are under newspaper control.

The feeling against newspaper ownership of radio stations is perhaps best

Radio Men See No New Setup Coming

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Capital radio circles yesterday scouted dispatches from Hollywood indicating the Mae West incident would bring a dictator regime into radio.

Speaking for the radio industry as a whole, an N. A. B. spokesman indicated to MOTION PICTURE DAILY that the sentiment in station circles is decidedly against having any one appointed with power to dictate policies to the industry.

"It is impossible for any industry," the N. A. B. spokesman said, "operating under Federal License, as does radio, to set up any comparable control. We have in fact seven of them now," meaning, he said, "the F. C. C."

AP Buys Sole Use of "U's" Panay Stills

Agreement Said to Call For Record Payment

Universal closed a deal over the weekend whereby the Associated Press was granted exclusive rights to world wide use of any of the material included in the 5,000 feet of film on the bombing of the U. S. gunboat Panay, which is being brought here by Norman Alley, Universal Newsreel cameraman.

While the terms of the deal were not disclosed, it is understood that a very large sum was paid by A. P. for the rights. A Universal official, declining to confirm the reported purchase price, stated that it was "the highest on record in the history of newsreels." A feature of the deal calls for credit lines to Universal on all of the material used.

The deal was set by Matthew Fox, assistant to Nate Blumberg, new Universal president, and Charles E. Ford, editor of the Universal Newsreel. Edward Stanley, executive editor of the A. P., represented the news service. Universal had received a total of seven offers for the rights.

Warners Plan Drive On Production Soon

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26.—Warners plan to launch a concentrated production drive during January and February with more than 19 pictures scheduled to go into production, at an average of two each week, according to Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production.

The features are all scheduled for release during the current season, late this winter, next spring and summer. Several will be based on stage plays, including "Boy Meets Girl" and "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" and "Howdy, Stranger."

Ask Governor's Aid On K.C. Clearances

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 26.—The latest move in the effort of Kansas City, Kan., to obtain a cut in the 28-day clearance which Kansas City, Mo., has over the Kansas municipality is a letter to Gov. W. A. Huxman from Ray T. Willette, Chamber of Commerce member.

The only progress so far in securing concessions is a cut in clearance to two weeks on certain films at the Fox Granada.

A Real Present

Dallas, Dec. 26. — David Hobbs, 10-year-old local youngster received a real Christmas present from Ann Sothern, who was here to visit her husband, Roger Pryor, orchestra leader.

Name Lipton "U" Publicity Chief

David Lipton, veteran theatre publicity man, has been appointed publicity manager of Universal with headquarters in New York, it was made known officially over the weekend. Lipton succeeds Paul Gulick, who relinquished the post last week. He will work under John Joseph, new advertising, publicity and exploitation director of Universal.

Lipton was associated with Balaban & Katz, Chicago, for many years; was publicity manager for Sally Rand and Major Edward Bowes and subsequently handled publicity for Columbia Broadcasting system. He went to the coast by plane on Saturday night to meet Norman Alley, Universal newsreel cameraman, who is scheduled to arrive in San Francisco today with pictures of the bombing of the U. S. gunboat Panay.

No changes in Universal's studio publicity department, headed by Mark Lachmann, "are needed or will be made," a company official here stated.

Weekend Gain Reaches Last Year's Level

No Raise Over Previous Three Days Noted

Theatre managers on Broadway and circuit operating heads yesterday estimated that the Christmas weekend business this year was comparable to that of last year. There had been no increase noted over the previous three-day period, the reason being that this year Christmas fell on a Saturday, while last year it fell on a Friday.

Exhibitors and circuit heads maintained that Saturday's business in New York and out-of-town was outstanding. While Friday and Sunday were good the grosses were not anywhere near the Saturday takes.

With school out Friday, many Broadway houses enjoyed a pickup. Business that day was fair up to about 8 P. M., when it dropped sharply. Many of the theatres on Broadway opened earlier Saturday and it was

Denies Saville to Take British Post

Reports current that Victor Saville would be placed in complete charge of M-G-M production in England were denied Friday by Ben Goetz prior to his departure to the coast via American Airlines the same day.

Goetz described the reports as ridiculous and stated: "I'm going to continue as production head."

The stories had it that Saville would make a deal with Louis B. Mayer on the coast whereby he is to produce all the M-G-M quota films in England.

Goetz has moved his home from the coast to England and plans to return abroad in about two weeks. He added the company is now preparing five new pictures, the first, "The Citadel," to start in February, which would be sufficient indication to disprove the rumors.

Goldstein joins the Quigley Publications with a comprehensive background of showmanship. Starting in 1920 with the Netoco circuit in New England he was appointed publicity director of this circuit when it grew to operate 40 theatres.

He was then appointed manager of exploitation for United Artists pictures. More recently he has been connected with RKO and Universal.

noted that the Roxy changed its prices from 35 cents to 25 cents up to 1 P. M., and 15 cents for children at all times instead of 20 cents. The balance of the scale was continued.

In practically every situation on Broadway and in key center first runs the pick of attractions were playing. "True Confession" is in its second week at the Paramount and on Wednesday will make way for "Wells Fargo." "The Hurricane" continues at the Astor as the only two-a-day attraction on the street. The picture will bow out Jan. 2.

The Music Hall is presenting "I'll Take Romance" for a second week, and on Thursday wil begin an indefinite engagement of "Tovarich," Warners' big picture of the year. A big campaign is being worked out for the Charles Boyer-Claudette Colbert special. "Hitting a New High" opened at the Rivoli on Saturday and will continue for two weeks.

At the Roxy is "You're a Sweetheart" which is to be followed Friday by "Love and Hisses." The Criterion this week has "Daughter of Shanghai," while the Capitol has "Navy Blue and Gold," in its second and final week. "Rosalie" will be the next attraction. "First Lady" is at the Strand. Most of these attractions are current in key focal points.

"Dance," Show Beat Slump in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.—Only two houses escaped the Christmas shopping blight. The combination of "Paid to Dance" and a stage show with a Veloz and Yolanda and Everett Marshall drew $18,000 to the Earle, up by $4,000.

Backed by a heavy ad and exploitation campaign, "Wells Fargo" got a neat $17,000 at the Stanley and was held a second stanza.

Both "First Lady" at the Boyd and "Beg, Borrow or Steal" at the Fox drooped badly, each getting $10,000. "Nothing Sacred," forced for a fourth week, took $6,300, not bad considering the length of run. "Riding on Air" stayed six days for a week $4,000 at the Stanton.

ence with the M. P. Distributors Ass'n of which Col. John A. Cooper is president.

Complaint is made that a considerable number of prints are scratched, sprocket holes are strained and "joins" are often out of frame when received from the exchange. The claim is made that not enough prints are available in Canada and, by the time subsequent runs are reached, the film is in very poor condition.

Francis Suit Dismissed

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26.—Stipulation of dismissal in the suit of Kay Francis to void her Warner contract with Warners was filed today by the actress through W. I. Gilbert, her attorney. The suit would have tested agreements made outside of the star's pact.

Gilbert said today that the star's difficulties had been solved and that Miss Francis had not stopped working since bringing action over failure to live up to an alleged promise to feature the star in "Tovarich."

Overseas Previews

"La Mort du Cygne" ("The Death of the Swan")

(Cinéatlantica-Films Victoria)

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Jean Benoit-Lévy and Marie Epstein, who produced and directed the famous French success "La Maternelle" ("Children of Montmatre"), have turned out another film of great quality, in which again children play the most important part. This time the picture concerns the life of the "petits rats" ("little rats"), which is the French nickname for the little girls who, from seven to 15 years, dance at the Paris Opera House and are trained to become members of the ballet.

The background and subject are new to the French screen, and there is no doubt that the documentary side of the film is one of its main features. The story was adapted from a short novel by the French author, Paul Morand. It deals with a little "rat" of 12, Rose Souris. According to the traditions of the Paris Opera House, she chooses a "little mother," the star of the ballet, Mademoiselle Baupré, for whom she has the deepest affection, and who represents, for her, the spirit of the dance. When the management of the Opera House gives a foreign dancer, La Karine, Mademoiselle Baupré's part in "The Death of the Swan" ballet, Rose, to avenge her "mother," provokes an accident and La Karine breaks her leg. An investigation is fruitless. But Rose is full of remorse when La Karine becomes the dancing teacher of her class and develops an affection for the child. Rose has confessed her crime to one of her little friends, and on the examination days, La Karine learns who caused the accident. Her first impulse is to denounce Rose, but she forgives her to aid her career.

Jean Benoit-Lévy has directed to perfection all the children, who had never appeared on the screen before. They all look sincere and natural, and special mention must be made of young Jeanne Charrat, who plays the part of Rose Souris and appears, as the real star of the film, to be a discovery. La Baupré and La Karine are played by two famous dancers, Yvette Chauviré, star dancer of the Paris Opera House, and the famous Yugoslavian dancer, Mia Slavenska. Both are good.

The only weakness of the film is the story, which is somewhat far fetched, but it is easily overlooked. The famous dancer and ballet master, Serge Lifar, who directed the choregraphic part deserves special mention for his work.

Running time, 95 minutes. "G." AUTRE

(G.B.-General Film)

LONDON, Dec. 17.—A Hitchcock film is an event in Britain's trade year. The interest in this film is rather its directorial deftness than any narrative vigor. Once again the British director has made an essentially English picture, with an authentic background and convincing detail. The rambling story of a murder suspect, it pursues its way through a rustic England which English audiences know, and which foreign audiences should enjoy, over the rolling English moors and through her winding lanes, into the sleepy country court room, through a middle class children's party, brushing shoulders with a hobo shelter, pausing for a dramatic moment in a disused mine shaft. Here is England with her comfortable unemotional characters woven into a comfortable unemotional film.

Based on Josephine Tey's "Shilling for Candles," the film is no more than the story of a young man who is believed to have committed a murder, of the chief constable's daughter who befriends him, and of how they at last get hold of material evidence which will save him. This last is a passage in the deftest Hitchcock manner with a dance band sequence and a neurotic murderer whose twitching features tell a grisly tale of guilt, even beneath a black face makeup.

The film opens with a crisp dramatic crackle, there are moments of grudging excitement, and an effective climax, but neither the winsome Terence de Marney nor the intense and immature Nova Pilbeam, whose expressions seem limited to one, are sufficiently real to rouse sympathy, or overmuch interest. The minor characters on the other hand, Edward Rigby with his genial old scamp of a hobo, John Longden as the Scotland Yard man, and Mary Clare as the party-giving aunt are chips off the real English block.

Hitchcock has never made a dull film and "Young and Innocent" is consistent in its fascination, but the foreign audiences who want a punch as well as a portrait are liable to find it unsufficient.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G." FLANAGAN

Short Subjects

'Lets Celebrake'

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Popeye, the Sailor, gets into the holiday swing of things in a brisk encounter with his rival, Bluto, for Olive Oyl's attentions. The juveniles will go for this one in a big way, and don't be surprised if there is cheering in the audience.

It starts out with Popeye and Bluto taking Olive Oyl to a New Year's dance. Rather than leave Grandma at home, Popeye invites her to come along. At the party, the m. c. decides to stage a dance contest and when Bluto toddles off with Olive Oyl, there is nothing for Popeye to do but invite Grandma to the floor as his partner.

The old lady doesn't do well until Popeye pours a can of spinach into her. Then she struts out with her partner to a razzle-dazzle Shag and Big Apple, and scampers off with the loving cup.

Tuneful and entertaining and nothing better for grownups as well as their offspring. Max Fleischer produced. He deserves a great big hand.

Running time, 7 mins.

'Our Gang Follies of 1938'

(Roach-M-G-M)

The "Gang" puts on a musical revue and Alfalfa proves to be the temperamental star of the show. He quits crooning for opera and passes through a fantastic series of events which eventually have him singing on the streets. Later, Spanky takes him into his swanky night club and lets him join the show. The film permits the children on the Roach lot to give their childishly pleasing performances which are well done. The Alfalfa-Spanky sequences are done while the former is dreaming. He wakes up at the end of the film in a nightmarish fright and agrees to go on. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"Little Buck Cheeser"

(M-G-M)

The Harman-Ising studios have turned out another first-rate color cartoon in this film. It is executed with a great deal of imagination and packs many laughs in addition to excitement. A mouse dreams that the moon is made of green cheese and in company with another dozen of his fellows he builds a rocket ship. The contraption takes off with a lot of noise and has an eventful trip to the heavens. Astronomical phenomena seen en route are cleverly treated. The trip halts with an explosion and the ship plummets through space. Then the mouse wakes up and says his prayers, which is what he should have done in the first place. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"The Dummy Owner"

(RKO)

Leon Errol takes over the ownership of his boss's racehorse to save the latter's prestige in business. The nag wins a race and Errol's nagging wife finds out about the state of affairs. She generally makes things humorously uncomfortable. Eventually Errol gets rid of the animal, but not before he bets on the wrong horse, wins a lot of money and engages in a couple of horse trades. It is fair comedy. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

Television Making Strides in France

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Television, still definitely in the experimental stages, is nevertheless making rapid strides in France, where demonstrations are being offered and where prospects are considered bright for further development in 1938.

The activity is under the direction of the National Radiodiffusion Dep't., a section of the Ministry of Post, Telegraph and Telephone. Three different systems are used in France, the French Thomson-Houston, which runs to 455-line images, and for which the basic principles are similar to the American RCA and British E. M. I. Marconi; the de France system (Radio Industries), and the Barthelemy system (Compagnie des Compteurs), for which the pioneer, M. Barthelemy, plans television broadcasting on a screen of large size. There are a few manufacturers offering television receivers on the market, but there is little activity in the field as yet. Standardization of transmission is believed necessary before television becomes commercially practicable.

Blumberg Sees Best January Gross for "U"

Based on "Sweetheart" and "Panay" Deals

Universal's gross business for January will exceed by 50 per cent any gross for a like period in the company's history, Nate J. Blumberg, who will become president of Universal next Monday, stated in the course of an interview yesterday in which he discussed the company's prospects for the immediate future and touched upon the aims of the new management which he heads.

The gross expectancy of January is based on actual bookings of current and forthcoming product which has been set for the month bv many large circuits and individual theatres in cooperation with the incoming Universal president. The most important of these are 250 day and date runs which have been set for "You're a Sweetheart" during January. Another factor is the anticipated gross on "The Bombing of U. S. S. Panay," which is scheduled for release within the next few days as a three-reel special and which Blumberg said he regarded

Weekend Dull But Business Starts Gains

New Year Outlook Bright With Big Releases

After a dull Christmas weekend, theatre grosses yesterday took a sudden spurt, indicating that takes for the week will be slightly better than average, a survey of Broaday theatres revealed yesterday. Major circuit heads held the same opinion as Broadway theatre managers and foresaw good business from now until the first of the year.

The decline in business over the weekend was attributed to mild weather and also the spirit of festivity which kept the theatre-going public at home. Weak film fare was also cited in several instances.

With "Tovarich," "Rosalie" and "Wells Fargo," three outstanding attractions to be made available within the next few days, theatremen along Broadway and circuit heads who have booked the films in out-of-town situations believe that New Year's weekend will be the greatest in years. "Love and Hisses" with Walter Winchell and Ben Bernie has been booked

Special Plane Will Fly Negative East; Plan 24-Hour Editing

The newsreel films of the sinking of the U. S. S. Panay by Japanese bombers are scheduled to arrive at Alameda before noon today, according to advices received at newsreel offices here late yesterday. If the schedule set for their preparation and release is followed without interruption they should be available to theatres in time for Thursday or Friday program changes.

Norman Alley, Universal Newsreel cameraman, who obtained 4,500 feet of film on the bombing of the gunboat and the events preceding it, will transfer at Alameda to a chartered plane which will leave at once for Newark. If its schedule is maintained, the film should be in New York by early tomorrow morning. Charles E. Ford, editor of Universal Newsreel, will cut and edit the film on a 24-hour schedule. Alley, who incurred minor wounds during the bombing of the Panay, on which he was a passenger, will be narrator for the production if his condition on arrival here permits. Otherwise, he may collaborate on the narrative with Graham McNamee.

More IATSE Voters Favor International

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27. — Increased sentiment favoring international supervision over the I.A.T.S.E. was expressed over the weekend when International Photographers, Local 659, and Studio Laboratory Workers, Local 683, balloted overwhelmingly against local autonomy and in favor of international supervision. Sound men had voted last Thursday in favor of having the affairs governed by the international body.

Studio Technicians, Local 37, which contains the largest membership of the four coast locals and whose autonomy was suspended in 1936, will vote probably next Sunday. Of the three locals which have already voted only 60 members out of 2,200 eligible to cast ballots favored local autonomy.

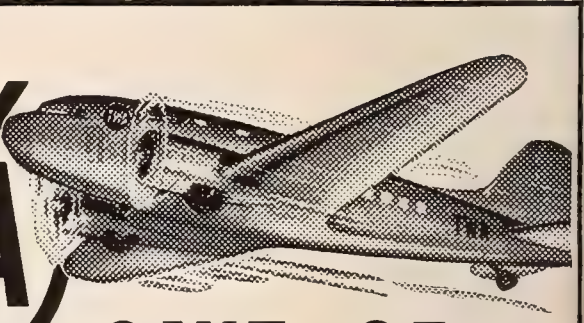
Suit on House Prize Dismissed by Court

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 27.—Court action against Harold Perlman, manager of the Riviera, local neighborhood house, on charges of "selling tickets with the pretense of giving a prize" was dismissed in District Court by Judge A. J. Hedding, who indicated to the plaintiff, Roman Wojciechowski, that his quarrel was with an automobile agency and his remedy civil suit.



Wojciechowski brought action after he had been awarded an automobile by the theatre as a prize, which he testified did not meet the specifications set forth in the theatre's advertising. He stated he was led to believe that he was to receive a car valued at $300 but that the agency offered him a 1929 model worth about $60.

Milwaukee Theatres Put Ban on Smoking

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 27.—Milwaukee County exhibitors, as a result of a warning from the fire prevention bureau, have voted voluntarily to ban smoking in theatres. The management claimed the house was constructed in such a manner as to make smoking safe, but was overruled.

Exhibitors have indicated that they will await further action from the Police Dep't before taking a definite stand on the department's order banning all Bingo, Hollywood and Bank Night games in theatres after Jan. 1.

as being as potentially valuable as "any feature costing $1,000,000 to produce." Several circuit deals have been set for the picture at premium rentals.

Finally, the anticipated foreign revenue for the month is the largest for any comparable period in the company's history. An indicated British gross of $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 on "100 Men and a Girl," which will be released abroad within the next few weeks, comprises a large part of the estimated income from foreign sources.

After January Universal will have a succession of releases which will include productions which the company expects will be its most valuable properties of the year. Among these are "Mad About Music," which is expected to be ready by the third week in February; the John Stahl production with Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy; the first Danielle Darrieux picture, and a new Deanna Durbin picture.

Final Plans in February

Universal will complete its full production schedule for the current season, Blumberg said, and final plans for the uncompleted portion of the schedule will be set following his first visit to the Universal studio early in February.

Commenting on the recent and current executive changes at Universal, Blumberg said they were the result of efforts by the new management to eliminate "waste and duplication of work by consolidating some departments and dispensing with others."

"The changes being made," he said, "are designed to effect a closer knit organization and to increase the operating efficiency of the company for the long run."

"The new management's policies," Blumberg said, "will be based solely on what is best for the company's exhibitor customers and for its investors. This industry exists on the money taken in at the box-office and, in our opinion, the exhibitor is the most important factor in the business. The money he takes in provides what is essentially a revolving fund which keeps the industry operating.

Stresses Exhibitor Importance

"Universal will be an exhibitor-minded company. We will not tolerate within the organization anyone who does not have the exhibitor's viewpoint.

"Universal has the good will of exhibitors everywhere," Blumberg said. "This was demonstrated in a most gratifying manner only recently when we asked for cooperation in the setting of January playdates for our new product. Big circuits and individual exhibitors responded immediately in the most gratifying and important way of all. They said it with play dates. That good will is one of our most vital assets. The company is rich, too, in manpower. Its studio facilities are the best, its production talent excellent, and its story properties, representing an accumulation of 25 years, are valued at $5,000,000. Recently, one of the leading companies offered us $800,000 for a selection representing only a small part of these story properties.

"With assets such as these, Universal has what is to me the greatest future of any company at this time," Blumberg concluded.

The company showed a profit for the fourth quarter of its fiscal year, ended Nov. 1. Final figures for the period will not be available until the end of January, however. It marks the first time the company has been "in the black" since the quarter ended Nov. 2, 1935.

J. Cheever Cowdin, Universal chairman, attributed the operating results for the quarter to the continuing reorganization of the company's setup, policies and personnel.

Dismissal of Bixby Action Is Affirmed

The Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court has unanimously affirmed the decision of Referee Daniel Cohalan in dismissing the suit of Carl L. Bixby, writer, against Nick Dawson, for alleged appropriation of the radio program "Dangerous Paradise." Dawson has since discontinued the radio script and is currently appearing in the network series, "Follow the Moon."

Justice Cohalan held that Dawson had the right to dismiss Bixby and to continue the program with scripts written by Dawson and others. The decision held that Dawson, having fully paid Bixby for the work done by him, was justified in employing another writer when the sponsor of the program requested that he do so.

Ann Rosenthal Gets Into Federal Courts

Ann Rosenthal, attorney for Grand National, will be admitted to two Federal Court bars this week. The first will take place in the Federal Bldg. downtown this morning. The second is scheduled for tomorrow or Thursday at Hartford.

The Hartford ceremony will be more or less in the form of noblesse oblige. Howard W. Alcorn, a local attorney there, is representing a client who has a plagiarism suit against Grand National, and inasmuch as Miss Rosenthal is not qualified to practice in the Federal Court in Connecticut she asked Alcorn to sponsor her.

Alcorn consented to do this. He will be her sponsor tomorrow or Thursday and her adversary shortly after when the plagiarism action comes to trial in the same court.

"It's Love" Pittsburgh's Top, $11,000

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 27.—Business last week was bad. Only the Penn managed to make anything resembling a creditable showing, "It's Love I'm After" getting a surprising $11,000 to top "A Damsel in Distress," in just ahead of it, by $2,000.

At the Stanley, "Angel" and a stage show gave the house a new low in recent years, around $12,000, while double bills at the Warner, "My Dear Miss Aldrich" and "West of Shanghai," and the Alvin, "Dr. Syn" and "45 Fathers," stumbled along to $3,400 and $4,800, respectively. The Fulton found the reissue of "Ladies of the Big House" on a dual with "That's My Story" at $3,800, good enough to hold for an extra three days in order to get a Christmas opening of "Boy of the Streets." For the holdover, "That's My Story" was replaced by "A Girl with Ideas."

Toscanini

Christmas Nights are always memorable but to millions of radio listeners Christmas Night of 1937 will linger long in memory as one more memorable than others, for to the beauty of the holy night this year was added the further beauty and rich lustre of the first of the Toscanini-conducted NBC symphony series.

There has not been, probably will not be for a long time again, a radio evening as portentious as this one. For months now, ever since David Sarnoff early last summer dispatched Samuel Chotzinoff to Europe to make arrangements for the return of Toscanini to these shores, events have been shaping themselves for this bright occasion. First came the signing of the maestro, then the careful recruiting by NBC of hundreds of musicians, the pruning to slightly more than a hundred, the welding of what is now considered to be the world's finest symphony orchestra by Rodzinski and Monteux and, finally, Christmas Night, the beautiful culmination of the project.

We are not a music critic in the accepted sense of the word, therefore we will not make a pretense at a discussion of the orchestral execution or at the other technique of the symphony. More competent pens than ours already have done this. In the foregoing we have attempted nothing more than to report that we found the concert to be one of unsurpassable beauty, that it moved and uplifted us as no other program before it has been able to do.

The program comprised Vivaldi's Concerto Grosso in D Minor, Mozart's Symphony in G Minor and the C Minor Symphony of Johannes Brahms. The programs are broadcast Saturday nights from 10 to 10:30 P. M. on the Red and Blue networks of NBC. BANNER

NBC '37 Stress Cultural, Educational, States Lohr

President of NBC

In 1937, the first year of NBC's second decade, it is not enough for the National Broadcasting Co. to look back on the 12-month period and point with satisfaction to significant contributions in various phases of radio broadcasting. Today, we must consider our obligation of service to a public that daily is growing more conscious of cultural and educational values. How, we may be asked, have we met this obligation during the past year?

In the field of music, our efforts to improve the quality and enlarge the reception of this art-form throughout the country culminated in obtaining the services of Arturo Toscanini, the world's greatest living symphonic conductor, and assembling the first full-strength symphony orchestra ever to be maintained by an American broadcasting company exclusively for the radio public's enjoyment.

Dr. Angell Engaged

In the educational aspects of broadcasting, the company has been fortunate in the association of Dr. James Rowland Angell, who comes to the post of educational counselor after 16 years of distinguished service as president of Yale University. As a representative of NBC, Dr. Angell already has made a study of educational broadcasting in Europe and this country which will be the basis of our work in the educational field during 1938.

Along cultural lines, NBC enhanced the scope of dramatic offerings with the presentation this past summer of a six-play Shakespearean cycle; the first cycle of Eugene O'Neill plays ever produced on the air; the first original radio work of Maxwell Anderson, and a George Bernard Shaw play prepared for broadcasting by the author. As interpretators of these brilliant works, NBC offered players of the first rank, such as John Barrymore, Helen Hayes, Ian Claire, the late Osgood Perkins, Henry Hull, Peggy Wood and Eva Le Gallienne.

Cites Impartiality

On all matters of public question throughout the year, we have carefully maintained a policy of presenting over the air, fairly and impartially, both sides of the issue. In periods of natural caststrophe, like the Ohio River floods and the Hindenburg disaster, our networks were kept open for constant service and information. And in doing our share towards international good will, we have augmented a large number of pickups from abroad by enlarging the activities of our international division with daily broadcasts in six languages on radio beams directed to Europe and South and Central America.

To serve a vast audience with the best in radio, NBC improved its technical facilities as in no previous year. Forty-one stations were added to the networks, bringing the total to 143 outlets. New studios were built, or begun, at Washington, Philadelphia, Schenectady and Cleveland. Ground will be broken soon at Hollywood for another great broadcasting plant. An entirely new line of field transmitters and receivers, field amplifiers and studio microphones, all NBC-designed, were distributed to the company's key points, and network power was increased by 112,900 watts for daytime broadcasting and 88,000 watts for night operation.

Television Considered

In television, we have begun to accumulate operating experience against the day when this art becomes a commercial actuality. In addition to the technical progress of television during 1937, we have, in conjunction with the Radio Corp. of America, contributed towards the solution of program problems through the constant use of an experimental television studio. More than 60 television demonstrations have been given to NBC in the past year; nearly 300 persons have appeared before our television cameras; full-length drama has been presented, using five different studio sets, and film taken especially for the production. Experiments with educational program material, and with the color response of facial makeup and costume fabric, also have been undertaken.

A most recent development is America's first mobile television station, the RCA-NBC Telemobile transmitter, to be used during the coming year for experimental televising of outdoor news events.

Now we turn to a new year in broadcasting. We know it will bring surprises, new developments, new problems and new obligations. The National Broadcasting Co. is prepared to meet them in the future as in the past in the spirit of public service.

791 Protests

As of Dec. 22, two weeks after the Chase & Sanborn broadcast on which Mae West appeared, NBC had received a total of 791 letters protesting Miss West's "Adam and Eve" skit.

An evaluation of the work of CBS during 1937, by William S. Paley, president, will be published in an early issue.

Both series are sponsored by Procter & Gamble for Crystal.

Because the new time for the amateur program is a much better hour for the broadcasts from theatre stages, WHN and the sponsors will shortly begin an exploitation campaign for the program, heralding the broadcasts in Loew houses throughout the Metropolitan area.

scheduled at this time for Thursday morning and will be witnessed by political writers and commentators, reporters, Army, Navy and other Government officials. The Universal release will run three reels and will be sold as a special. Numerous percentage deals have been set already, and simultaneous runs in key theatres in all large cities have been arranged. Several hundred prints will be made and the widest possible distribution given the picture while it is still of topical value.

Present indications are that the film will be released uncensored, contrary to current reports. Universal has obtained an unconditional release for its film from the Commandant of the Third Naval District, who ruled that "there is no question involving the security of confidential material" in the Panay film. "Therefore, it will not be required of newsreel companies to have such pictures submitted by them to the Commandant of the Third Naval District or to the Navy Dep't for review prior to release."

State Dep't Still Silent

Whether the State Dep't would intervene independently of the Navy to censor the film for diplomatic reasons is not known, but newsreel officials said yesterday that to their knowledge the State Dep't has shown no official interest in the film whatever.

Movietone News is receiving approximately 800 feet on the Panay from Eric Mayell, its cameraman, who also was a passenger on the gunboat. This film was developed in Manila and is aboard the China Clipper, on which Alley is traveling. The flying ship was delayed at Honolulu for 24 hours due to Pacific storms. Harry Lawrenson, foreign editor of Movietone, flew to Alameda yesterday to cut and edit the Panay film on the coast, from where it will be shipped immediately as a regular newsreel release to Movietone subscribers.

Increased Color Use Foreseen by Warner

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—An increased use of color is forecast for 1938 by Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of Warner production. The executive also foresees a search for more unusual stories, and a more widely diversified selection of stories.

Warner cited a number of pictures which are scheduled for special attention by the Warner studio during 1938, among them "Panama Canal," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "Tovarich" and a color version of "The Sea Hawk." He made note of the "high standard" of production attained during the past year.

Nation Hears Film's Story Via the Radio

Hays Speaks on Program In Business Series

More than a century has elapsed since the accidental discovery of the first principle of the motion picture was made by Peter Mark Roget in London; yet today historians and leaders of the industry consider it to be a bizarre and almost incredibly fantastic miracle.

Will Hays, president of the M.P.P.D.A., in an address delivered yesterday afternoon on the Dep't of Commerce series, "Stories of American Industry," said in opening: "No story ever written for the screen is as dramatic or romantic as the story of the screen itself." And Terry Ramsaye, editor of Motion Picture Herald and acknowledged master of the subject, in writing his history of the industry, used the title "A Million and One Nights," doubtless influenced by the fable of almost like name.

The story of the film industry was broadcast over a coast-to-coast CBS hookup yesterday afternoon from 4:30 to 5 P. M., E.S.T., and by short-wave to foreign countries by the Columbia short-wave station, W2XE. The narrative was by Harry R. Daniel

Herein are analyzed the underlying factors responsible for the achievement by the theatre of a position unique among the institutions of the entertainment world.

Officials Meeting Panay Film Plane This Morning

Films on the bombing of the U. S. S. Panay and of the capture of Nanking by the Japanese are due in New York today. If arrival and production schedules are maintained, the reels will be previewed tonight and available to all theatres tomorrow morning and Friday, depending upon shipping distances from New York and Los Angeles.

Planes scheduled to arrive at Newark Airport before 10 A. M. this morning will bring the 4,500 feet of film in the possession of Norman Alley, Universal Newsreel cameraman, covering the Panay bombing and the capture of Nanking; about 1,500 feet on the same events from Eric Mayell, Movietone News cameraman, and about 1,000 feet of film on the capture of Nanking only, from Arthur Menken, Paramount News cameraman.

News of the Day is covered on the event by virtue of an agreement for pooling all Chinese war material obtained by itself and Movietone News. Through this agreement, News of the Day will have access to the material obtained by Mayell.

Alley, wounded in the bombing of the Panay, will be met at the airport

Reports on U. A. Board Arguments Met with Denial

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 28.—Widely circulated reports here to the effect that the United Artists board of directors' meeting was marked by personal bickerings have caused a high official of the company to declare that this was not the case.

This authority states that Alexander Korda's request for permission to produce pictures for other than United Artists distribution came in for only a brief discussion and was deferred for further consideration at a future time.

It is understood that the principal

Doyle's Theatre Plans Hinge on U.A. Film Deal

Stuart F. Doyle's plan to build five new theatres in South Africa is contingent upon his making a 10-year distribution and exhibition deal for U. A. product in that country, Doyle explained yesterday on his arrival from England. Doyle insisted that he and his financial group will put up $1,000,000 for the project if he concludes a deal with Arthur W. Kelly, U. A. foreign head, this week. He also denied U. A. will participate in the financing.

Doyle expects to leave for the coast the end of the week en route to Aus-

Say Films Not Aim of Drive On Monopolies

Justice Dept. Indicates Other Objects in View

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Activities of the film industry have been more closely watched than usual during the past few weeks, but there are no plans for an anti-trust drive against films, it was learned today at the Dept. of Justice.

Officials of the department explained that since the recent speech of Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general, voicing the need for control of monopolies, they have been flooded with queries from various interests as to what industries were referred to.

It was indicated that any anti-trust drive undertaken will be directed first against monopoly in the food and building supply industries, and that motion pictures have not been singled out as a subject. Rumors that the need for a drive against the picture industry would be discussed at length in the forthcoming annual report of the Department were scouted and it was said the document probably would have little to say on the subject.

Casey-Weber Music Talks Agreed Upon

Conferences between Pat Casey, producers' labor contact, and Joseph Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians, on methods of spreading employment among musicians employable by Hollywood studios will be held on the coast during February, it was stated here yesterday.

Casey, who is in New York for the holidays, plans to return to Hollywood in a week. Weber will leave for a Florida vacation in about two weeks and will go to the coast from there

Gould Sues 20th-Fox

A suit for $30,000 damages brought by Bruce Gould, an author, against 20th Century-Fox, Adela Rogers St. John, NEA Service, Inc., and the New York World-Telegram was filed in the N. Y. County Supreme Court yesterday. Gould alleged that he sold a story to 20th Century-Fox in March, 1936, and that the story was subsequently produced as a short entitled "Reunion." He charges that 20th Century-Fox, in violation of its contract, permitted Miss St. John to novelize his story and sell it to various newspapers.

The defendants will apply for an examination of Gould before trial on Jan. 7.

Looking 'Em Over

"Spirit of Youth"

(Globe-Grand National)

Joe Louis, of pugilistic fame, makes his theatrical film debut in "Spirit of Youth." The vehicle should prove a lure to people of the fighter's race and the public interested in seeing the fighter emote, in addition to the activity with which he is more closely associated. He does the latter decidedly better. It will be obvious that he is more at home in the squared circle than before a camera. But he gives what is expected of him and the narrative gets along.

The screenplay, which is termed an original credited to Arthur Hoerl, touches lightly on Louis' career as a pugilist. He is identified in the action as "Joe Thomas." It concerns itself with his rise from his home in Birmingham to the championship, in well tried and tested formula sequences which have given satisfaction in the past and again do so. Louis' father is injured when he is a youngster and he is left the sole support of his family. He grows up a hard-working youth and one day leaves his home to seek life in a big city. He makes good in the Golden Gloves contest and soon interests a promoter who takes him under his wing and step by step gets him big time matches. Louis brings his family to live with him and falls in love with a night club entertainer who fairly ruins him, pugilistically. He loses a match. But he is made to see the light and he regains his niche both in the fighting game and in his real sweetheart's feelings. It ends happily all around.

The cast is almost entirely composed of colored players, including Clarence Muse, Edna Mae Harris and Cleo Desmond. Harry Fraser directed.

Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

"Tide" at $5,500 2d Montreal Week

MONTREAL, Dec. 28.—"Ebb Tide" held the top rung for the pre-Christmas week with a take of $5,500 for its second week at the Capitol after a first week of $10,000.

"Dr. Syn," heading a double bill at the Palace, accounted for $6,000 against average of $11,000 while the fourth week of "The Awful Truth" at Loew's, where it was showing on a twin bill, secured an additional $4,000, as compared with average of $8,000.

There was practically no opposition except the Christmas shopping scramble and professional hockey which drew meagre attendance. The weather was mild.

Mexicans Prefer Folklore

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 26.—The Mexican public prefers folklore, farm life and cowboy subjects in their domestically-produced pictures, a recent newspaper survey indicated. Pictures revealing city life and social and economic problems are not wanted, it was shown.

"Fight" and "Glory" Leaders at Buffalo

BUFFALO, Dec. 28.—The customary pre-holiday let-down here turned into a box-office blight. Only one house in town came up to scratch. A dual at the Century, "Fight for Your Lady" and "Flight from Glory," took $6,300 to tie par figures.

The debacle hit hardest at the Buffalo and Hippodrome, which barely managed to reach even half their average quota. The weather for the period stayed generally fair and cool, with downtown department stores reporting a heavy press of holiday shoppers.

Total first run business was $25,000. Average is $42,300.

Phillips Holmes in Town for Vacation

Phillips Holmes, who is under contract to John Maxwell to appear in two pictures a year, returned yesterday on the Berengaria for a vacation with his family. His father, Taylor, who appears in "I'd Rather Be Right," met him at the pier.

Holmes said he had completed "House Master" for B. I. P. and will sail Jan. 20 for England for another picture with Dianne Churchill, who appears in "House Master." He added he was anxious to do a play here, but apparently will go back to England with the desire unfulfilled.

Ralph Murphy, another passenger, said he would leave for the coast today by plane to direct "The Goddess" for Paramount. He asserted he was abroad on a vaction.

scripts of silent films for talking pictures.

The suit asks declaratory relief but no set damages, leaving determination entirely up to the court. The object of the suit was "Sh! The Octopus," released recently. The plaintiffs allege that portions of their script, made in silent days, was used in the sound film. The suit may once and for all determine whether writers of silent scripts have an interest in the scripts if they are used again for sound films.

Panay Films Will Be Met This Morning

this morning by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey and Nate J. Blumberg, president-elect of Universal, who head a welcoming committee. Alley was met by his wife and three children at the Alameda Airport, where the China Clipper, which brought him from Honolulu after a 24-hour delay, landed at 1:00 P. M., E.S.T.

From Newark, Alley will be escorted here for press interviews and a reception at the Warwick and thereafter will assist in the cutting and editing of the film, which Universal is selling as a three-reel special. Reports yesterday were that the company has closed deals providing for 20 per cent of the gross where the picture plays on a single feature program and 15 per cent if played with a double feature. Circuit deals have been set with RKO, Warners and Paramount. Locally, the Palace was the only Broadway house which had booked the picture up to late yesterday, with an indicated Thursday availability.

The company estimates a $500,000 gross for the picture. Approximately 1,000 prints are being ordered for quick distribution to the entire country and Canada. Additional prints are scheduled to leave for Europe tonight.

Movietone Reports Speed

Movietone News and News of the Day reported last night that their films of the bombing of the Panay were being shown in Los Angeles. The exposed negative was developed in Manila. Stills made from the motion picture film were picked up and distributed by various wire-photograph services with full credit given to cameraman and newsreel. Both reels, it was stated, will be shown locally today if there is no unexpected delay.

Mayell's 1,500 feet of film were previewed at the 20th Century-Fox studio at 6:35 P. M., E.S.T., yesterday and described in a 20-minute broadcast over the CBS network. The radio description of the film indicated a highly dramatic and comprehensive content, listeners were agreed.

It was definitely established yesterday that the State Department will not attempt to censor the reels. The Navy Department had given its official clearance for them earlier.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—Harvey Amusement Co., local circuit, has taken over the Liberty in Coalinga, where they already operate the California and Avenal, and disposed of the Newman, Newman, and the Empire, Gustine. Both transactions were negotiated by J. Leslie Jacobs, local theatre broker.

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—As a further step in its distributing organization across the Dominion, Grand National Films, Ltd., Toronto, has appointed William Wheeler as manager of its new Calgary, Alberta, branch office.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 31
(20th-Century-Fox)

The expected diversification of news material is present in this issue of the reel, although it is somewhat lacking in timely news episodes of unusual interest. The leading clip, and the most striking, is that showing a flaming oil well in California, with the blaze leaping 300 feet into the air, like a giant geyser of fire.

Priests in Czechoslovakia don gas masks in military drill, the Lowell Thomas comment stressing the contrast of natural advocates of peace preparing for the exigencies of war. Interesting is the picture of a giant crane lifting a 189-ton boat from the deck of an ocean-going freighter, and the winter season opens with a flashing rhumba at the Miami Biltmore.

Effective pictorially and in subject matter is the clip of the tallest dam in the world, nearing completing across the Colorado River, the Parker Dam. Lew Lehr is his usual amusing self as he describes the action of a deer in eating out of children's hands, but disappearing when the open season begins. The U. S. Army has a neat device in a captive balloon which, with the attachment of a motor becomes a dirigible.

Ed Thorgersen's sports department moves from Florida swimmers and divers at Coral Gables, to society on skiis at Sun Valley, Idaho, to the opening of the Santa Anita track, with film players in attendance and a fast race for action.

Running time, 10 mins. A.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 229
(M-G-M)

An unexciting issue of News of the Day, this nonetheless is well put together and presents an interesting combination of news and feature material. A smartly edited sequence pictures a California oil well coming in, breaking its framework bounds, tearing the derrick to pieces, then suddenly bursting into flames, roaring toward the sky in a spectacular display.

President Roosevelt extends holiday greetings, with a thought for peace, from Washington, and the Our Gang youngsters, in amusing fashion, and entirely off-key, sing a wish for a happy New Year to the screen's audience. There is interest in the careful training which France is giving to the child who is heir to the all-important Morocco, a vital territory for France.

Senator Nye of North Dakota voices happiness that the U. S. State Dept. has accepted the Japanese apology on the Panay incident, thus ending what might well have been a serious and critical situation in international relations. The sporting section shows the Catholic Youth Organization in action in skating races in Chicago, and swimmers and divers in the Miami Biltmore pool in Florida, with Ralph Flanagan setting three national swimming marks. Screen stars are seen at the opening of the winter season at the Santa Anita track on the coast.

A dancing team, Ramon and Renita, do the rhumba smartly for the assembled guests for the winter season in Miami, and an interesting feature pictures the posing of infants at the studio of Henry Waxman, juvenile photographer, where are made many advertising photographs.

Running time, 9 mins. A.

(Issue No. 42)
(Paramount)

Pictorial news was lacking when this reel was made up, so the editors set out to compile a group of magazine subjects.

The first number is the opening of the racing season at Santa Anita, Cal., with the victory of "He Did" and some shots of film celebrities, including Lady Astor, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and others.

Beverly Lane, the young Chicago opera singer, is presented, with comments by Mark Hawley. To keep up sporting interest Connie Mack is shown in honor of his 75th birthday and the subject is made interesting by a compilation of old shots with some of the baseball figures of the past. Tommy Farr gets into the scene by arriving for his bout with Braddock, and Katharine Rawls, the Florida swimmer, receives an honorary appointment to the staff of the Governor of Florida.

A human interest subject is the presentation of paroles to 150 prisoners at Granite, Okla. Gabriel Heatter's comments are a bit too oratorical for the occasion.

Basketball enthusiasts will probably enjoy the game between Long Island University and Minnesota and Stanford vs. City College of New York, with commentary by Bob Carter.

Running time, 9 mins. O.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 46
(RKO)

Highlighting the issue is a concise breakdown of the year's headline events. The resume takes about half of the length of the subject and is presented in chronological order.

There is the second inauguration of President Roosevelt with Supreme Court Justice Hughes administering the oath, the excitement created by Senator Black's relationship with the Ku Klux Klan, the period of strikes with John L. Lewis of the C.I.O. as an important figure and with pictures of the Detroit turmoil, scenes from war stricken Spain and China, the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth and the abdication of the Duke of Windsor, the Ohio River floods, the Texas school disaster, the disappearance of Amelia Earhart, the Hindenburg disaster at Lakewood and champions in tennis, swimming, baseball, football and thoroughbreds.

The news of the day items include an oil gusher in flames at El Segundo, Cal.; trick shots in a badminton game on a local court, a train wreck at Pittsburgh which cost the lives of an engineer and fireman, and He Did winning the Santa Anita sweepstakes with several film stars in attendance.

Running time, 9 mins. O.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 9, No. 627
(Universal)

Scenes of the recent railroad mishap in Pittsburgh where a locomotive went over a retaining wall into a street are given first position in this issue. It is a clip that is fairly representative of the material that went into the balance of the reel which is diversified and has interesting moments.

President Roosevelt is seen lighting a Christmas tree in Washington and there are other sequences showing an oil well blazing in El Segundo, Cal.; the manufacture of wool from milk in Italy; Katharine Rawls being presented with a commission in the Florida Colonels; a badminton game at the N. Y. Hippodrome; the terpsichorean blend of Puerto Rican and Cuban dances by Ramon and Renita; "He Did" winning the Christmas Handicap at Santa Anita, and Miami girls playing croquet in bathing suits.

Ontario Theatres in Seating Gain of 4%

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—A survey of the theatre situation in Ontario shows that the opening of 10 new theatres and the reopening of five others after substantial alterations over a period of three months brought an increase in the aggregate seating of Ontario houses of close to four per cent. The additions provided a further 9,017 seats, bringing the total accommodations in the Province to 237,964 seats.

All of the new theatres are of medium size, the largest being the McCarthy at Belleville, Ont., which has 836 seats, the second largest, the Bellevue in Toronto with accommodation for 750 persons. The Paradise, Toronto, was enlarged from 350 to 650 seats.

The steadily expanding circuit of Hanson Theatres Corp., Toronto, has been further increased by the acquisition of the Hollywood at Dunnville, Ontario, formerly operated by Jack Allen. The Hollywood, which seats 500, is being modernized with a new front, new heating system and other equipment. The Imperial here, ace Famous Players house with its 3,500 seating capacity, has reopened after being dark 10 days for renovation.

Work is also proceeding on the renovation of the Tivoli, another downtown theatre of the Famous Players' circuit, the principal change here being a new front.

tralia and hopes to sign the U. A. franchise, a copy of which he brought over with him, before heading west. The first session with Kelly will take place today. Doyle has passage booked on the Monterey, which sails from Los Angeles Jan. 5.

The theatres, if plans materialize, will be built in East London, Port Elizabeth, Johannesburg, Durban and Capetown. Building could start in a year from now, Doyle said, adding that first he will have to visit South Africa and look over the territory. Shortly after his return to Australia, he will fly to South Africa. The trip will take 14 days.

In addition to the U. A. deal, Doyle is anxious to produce from eight to nine pictures a year in Australia. He said that under the terms of a quota law passed two weeks ago in the Antipodes the requirements provide for 16 to 18 pictures a year to comply with the law.

To Produce at National

Doyle stated there are eight distributors in Australia and he will discuss a deal with three or four of them before deciding which one to accept. Instead of producing at Cinesound Studios, Doyle's company will make its headquarters at National Studios, he said.

The five theatres, according to Doyle, will be of moderate size and with a policy of "extended seasons," which means two and three-week bookings. Other product will be sought, but no negotiations are under way.

Doyle is anxious to get back to Australia to consolidate his radio network of 16 stations with a number of others. He said his main interests today are radio, theatre building and operation, and aviation. He may go back to the theatre business in Australia, Doyle said, but this depends on openings there and how they will work out with his interests in South Africa and England.

"I don't want to tie myself down in Australia," Doyle said.

No date has been set for another meeting of the board and Korda has indicated his intention to return to London at once. It is not expected that the disturbance will cause any disturbance of the United Artists status quo.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 28.—Al Santell today was signed by Paramount to direct the musical film, "Cocoanut Grove," which will go into work on Jan. 24, with Fred MacMurray starred.

Canadian Exhibitors Protest Radio Shows

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—Members of the Independent Theatres Ass'n of Ontario, headed by H. Freedman, owner of the Circle, Toronto, are organizing a protest against the broadcasts of current film productions by Hollywood producers. The exhibitors have been circularized on the subject and already a considerable number of complaints have been received at the Toronto office of the association from all parts of Ontario.

Information brought to light in these individual protests is that box-office receipts are reduced by 30 per cent on the average on the nights that the picture broadcasts are held. The suggestion has been made that the theatre operators book only percentage pictures of the producing companies for the days when the film broadcasts take place.

Mexican Bill Would Ban Foreign Product films in Mexico is provided in a measure sponsored by Congressman Victor Alfonso Maldonado, a leading lawyer.

Maldonado also wants a law passed which would compel exhibitors here and in the larger cities to reduce admissions. He considers the present price range here from about five cents to 60 cents too high.

Both measures are receiving a certain amount of support from the domestic industry, as is another from the same source, the awarding by the Federal Government of an annual prize to the Mexican producer who makes the best picture and the native player who does the best work.

Plan Approved for Mexican Film Bank

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 26.—Plans presented by elements of the domestic industry for the establishment of a bank to finance it have crystallized with Congress approving a measure calling for founding here of a state institution for that purpose.

The proposition has been presented to President Lazaro Cardenas. The bank is to have an ultimate capital of 100,000,000 pesos (about $28,000,000) which is to be provided equally by the Government and the industry.

Operator Fight Lingers

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—The dispute in Winnipeg, Man., between Famous Players Canadian Corp., and operators lingers on although the theatres affected continue to do business. The latest development, after three months of argument, is the announcement by Vincent Armand, executive official of the circuit in Western Canada, that the corporation is prepared to place the dispute before an arbitration board of the Manitoba Provincial Government. There the matter stands.

M-G-M to Stage Contest

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 28.—M-G-M will announce details of a "Good News Program" on Thursday night. It will be a national contest to choose a name for "Benefits Forgot."

Details are not complete, but it is expected $5,000 and a trip to the studio will be among the awards.

What are the REAL FACTS about Coast-to-Coast flying?

A STATEMENT IN BEHALF OF AIR TRANSPORTATION BY W. A. PATTERSON, PRESIDENT, UNITED AIR LINES

THREE major airlines operate competitive coast-to-coast routes. All three lines cross mountain terrain of nearly equal height . . . but what of it?

No cross-country airline can, in fairness to the public and the aviation industry, honestly advertise it possesses any substantial "edge" in flying weather or terrain. UNITED'S route has as much sunshine as other cross-country routes . . . but what of it?

The foregoing facts are not the important considerations. Therefore UNITED does not care to use them as advertising claims.

Fundamental Factors

UNITED believes the public is more interested in fundamentals—airline equipment, personnel, experience, and above all, operating practices. These really matter.

For example, high terrain is no longer significant in itself because of today's operating practices, and the higher altitude efficiency of modern twin-engined planes.

New Higher Flight Levels

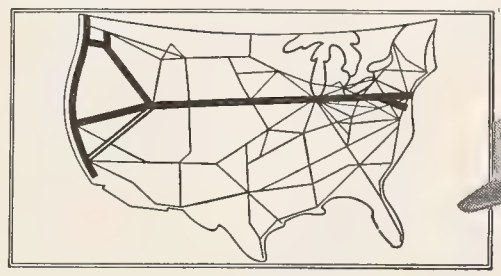
UNITED'S new higher flight altitudes are really important. They are high enough to clear the highest terrain not only on the airway itself but for a total airway width of 50 miles or more.

It is important that UNITED now has on every airplane an automatic recording barograph to provide a positive check on maintenance of these new higher flight altitudes.

UNITED thinks even more important than its high percentage of sunshine is the airlines' policy of canceling schedules under unfavorable conditions.

Pilots' Salaries

UNITED recently guaranteed its pilots a minimum monthly salary ($650.00) equivalent to their previous average monthly compensation, regardless of the number of trips flown or completed. Thus UNITED compensates pilots for their judgment in not attempting flights in doubtful weather.



These are examples of things which contribute to efficiency and dependability in air transportation. These operating policies, plus the experience which has been gained by UNITED in 20,000 coast-to-coast flights, are the things which in the long run command public interest and public confidence.

UNITED believes that air transportation today fully merits the patronage of the public, and it suggests that the public make fullest use of the splendid service provided by all airlines.

Financial Gains Striking Feature of the Past Year

A year of varied developments, marked by continued financial recovery during the first three quarters of the year but tapering off during the last quarter, is recorded in MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S headlines of 1937 which are published in this issue.

The financial recovery of the industry, begun in 1936, was accelerated during the early part of the year to such an extent that despite the falling off of fourth quarter revenue virtually all companies in the major category are expected to show substantial profits for the year. Two or more of them predict their best earning statements on record.

Labor developments in the industry, which saw the peaceful organization of workers on all fronts without a serious crippling strike, contributed one of the most important chapters to the industry's 1937 history. Hollywood talent was organized for the first time, and so were film exchange workers. Other branches of the industry, including office workers, laboratory workers and cartoonists, were drawn into the labor organizing movement which drew its inspiration from the U. S. Supreme Court decision upholding the legality of the Wagner Act with its provisions for collective bargaining. With the industry's labor problems, to all intents and purposes settled already, the dominance of the A. F. of L. unions and the expansion of the I. A. T. S. E. in the industry, emerge as the significant result.

Legislation Heavy

Legislation and litigation were numerous during the 12 months past but, as in other years, were non-productive of significant change in industry practices. The passage by the North Dakota legislature of a law to require the divorcement of theatre operation from production and distribution was probably of greatest significance. The constitutionality of the measure is being tested, however, and its significance cannot be assayed at this time.

In the field of litigation, regulation of double features and minimum admissions was tested in Federal courts at Dallas and Philadelphia but court decisions in both instances are still in process of appeal.

MPTOA Efforts a Failure

Efforts of exhibitors, through the M. P. T. O. A., to bring into being a program of trade practices for the self-regulation of exhibition and distribution collapsed during the early part of the year. Efforts to revive or supplant it with an alternative program are scheduled to be made during the new year. Chance games figured prominently in theatre policies during the year, supplementing double featuring which continued as popular as ever.

Theatre attendance, estimated in the neighborhood of 88,000,000 weekly for 1936, exceeded that average during the early part of 1937 but lost much of the gain from August on. Attendance this year is expected to approximate last year's, as a result.

Radio broadcasts employing Hollywood talent or film material continued to draw exhibitor criticism. Producing companies entered the broadcasting field as the mentors for their own stars during the year. The move was seen as an effort to control the competitive features of Hollywood broadcasts, and an admission by producers, at the same time, that stars could not be witheld from radio activity.

British Interest Strong

Outstanding news events also included the progress of Britain's deliberations on a new Film Quota Act to become effective in 1938, with early indications that American companies would be required to invest large sums in production in England. The elimination of the Film Boards of Trade, the withdrawal of A. T. & T. from direct activity in the industry through the licensing and sale of Erpi's sound reproducing and servicing business; the exhibitor "buyers' strike" against Paramount, and the issuance of an option, which remained unconsummated, through which Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda were given the right to acquire full ownership of United Artists also held the interest of the industry momentarily.

"U" Principal Executive Shift

Executive changes were less numerous than in recent years, with the most important of them—those affecting Universal—becoming effective only now. Nate Blumberg replaces R. H. Cochrane as president of Universal, with Cochrane becoming chairman of the company's executive committee; William A. Scully leaves M-G-M to take James R. Grainger's place as general sales manager of Universal, and John E. Joseph succeeds P. D. Cochrane as director of advertising, publicity and exploitation. Other changes at Universal find Gus Schaefer succeeding Nate Manheim as foreign manager during the year, and David Lipton succeeding Paul Gulick as publicity manager.

Mervyn LeRoy left Warners to produce for M-G-M; Sam Briskin left RKO; Courtland Smith and Jack Connolly were replaced by Ned E. Depinet and Frederic Ullman at Pathe News; M. H. Aylesworth resigned as chairman of RKO; Nat Levine and J. J. Milstein left Republic.

The year saw Joseph P. Kennedy, an industry veteran, ostensibly selected to become the U. S. Ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

Deaths of the year took, among others, Jean Harlow, J. J. McCarthy, Tom D. Cochrane and Elek J. Ludvigh.

Warner Colony Opens

CLEVELAND, Dec. 28. — The new Warner Colony opened here tonight, with a number of the city's notables present. Clayton Bond and Louis Kaufman of the Warner home office theatre department also attended. Marvin Samuelson manages the house.

Expect Basson to Stay

Joseph D. Basson, president of Local 306, is expected to be reelected tonight at the annual election. Virtually all of the executive members are slated to be continued another year, but several changes in the board may take place.

Smith Returns from Talk with Nathanson

Sam Smith of British Lion has returned from Toronto where he conferred with N. L. Nathanson on renewing a two-year deal with Herbert Wilcox for the production of six features a year. Nathanson is interested in British Lion with Smith.

Smith also has been having preliminary conferences with H. J. Yates for continuing the Republic distribution deal in England. The current four-year deal has until 1939 to run. Smith will sail for home Jan. 4 on the Berengaria.

to begin the conferences with Casey and producers.

The general aim of the conferences will be to devise methods of spreading employment for musicians in Hollywood. The A. F. of M. has indicated that, in the event no more practical method is devised, it will ask that producers refrain from using stock music recordings in low cost productions and, instead, employ musicians for new recordings whenever music is required in production.

Anna Neagle Contributes

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—Following her recent personal appearance in Toronto on the occasion of the Canadian premiere of "Victoria the Great," Anna Neagle, British film star, sent a substantial check to the Toronto Black Watch Assn., with the request that the money be spent on requirements for 100 children of local war veterans. During her Toronto stay, Miss Neagle was presented with a souvenir badge of the Black Watch by Sir Gerald Campbell, British Consul-General in New York City, in behalf of the local association.

The Growth of an Idea into a World Institution

Tracing the development of Radio City Music Hall from its daring inception and troubled inauguration to its present tranquil eminence in Art—and in show business

By J. M. JERAULD

RADIO CITY Music Hall has provoked more amazement, more wonder, more argument, and, latterly, more admiration than any amusement enterprise of modern times. It came up out of a vast excavation in Manhattan's rock at a time when film producers were finally ready to admit that prosperity not only wasn't around the corner; it wasn't anywhere. Theatre receiverships were spreading. Where the customers were was anybody's guess.

In this atmosphere of gloom the Rockefellers went serenely forward, piling steel girders higher day by day, and S. L. Rothafel, who had left what was at that time regarded as his greatest achievement, the Roxy, to create something more magnificent—not one something, but two of them: the Music Hall and another, new Roxy—carried out his plans with what seemed to be a complete disregard of the economics of the time.

It all seemed a bit incredible to most people in show business. If they had known that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had entertained the idea of building four theatres instead of two, as recently revealed by his son, Nelson, some of the harassed film leaders would have developed apoplexy trying to form a mental picture of the vastness of the Rockefeller financial resources available for such enterprises.

Whether the Rockefellers were the first to approach S. L. Rothafel with the vision of a new entertainment enterprise, or whether he "sold" them an idea, is not definitely known, and the Rockefellers do little talking about the details of their varied interests. By the fall of 1931, however, the idea of a huge 6,000-seat Music Hall to be devoted to stage extravaganzas, and another smaller theatre, then named the Roxy, to concentrate on films, had taken shape.

Everything was to be on a grand scale—bigger and better than all that had gone before. On the soggy night of the opening, Dec. 27, 1932, the Music Hall's distinguished guests and others not so distinguished, marveled at the size and beauty of the structure until 8:35. For the next four hours they marveled that a show could be so long. Two days later, with the gala opening of the Roxy (later renamed the Center), pretty much the same group gasped to find that a second architectural gem had been created only one block south.

In another week wise observers in the industry were adopting an "I told you so" attitude. The Music Hall's $106,400 gross was figured to be more than $53,000 below the estimated overhead. S. L. Rothafel went home exhausted from the nervous strain of a year's preliminary work.

It was a tragic moment in his life. Three months later the depth of the depression brought on the bank holiday. A committee headed by Harold B. Franklin, with Martin Beck, Herschel Stuart, Phil Reisman and Robert F. Sisk had taken control. The "Roxy" theatre was closed, and a film and stage policy was adopted for the Music Hall.

Franklin, Beck and Stuart were among the best known executives of showbusiness. Many in the industry thought that if the Music Hall problems could be solved, they would do it. What the industry at large didn't know at the time was that these showmen had an "observer" in their midst.

Enter, an Industrial Engineer

HE WAS a quiet, mild-mannered man with snow white hair, of medium height, solid of build. His name, William G. Van Schmus. Some of his associates knew nothing of his background. If he ventured a suggestion, they tried to convince him it wouldn't work. All the precedents of showbusiness were marshalled against him in these verbal exchanges. He listened. He still does. What he hears he shapes into a policy of some kind, then tries it. He did then.

Van Schmus went into the Music Hall because the Rockefellers wanted someone to tell them what was going on and advise them what to do about it. There was a limit to the deficits that even they could take calmly.

At that time, Van Schmus was head of Van Schmus, McDormid & Crawford, industrial engineers. The firm made it a practice to study the merchandising problems of its clients before accepting any money. It would go into every phase of a firm's operations — manufacturing,

Playing a Brilliant Part In Today's American Scene

On this, the Fifth Anniversary of Radio City Music Hall, MOTION PICTURE DAILY is happy to voice its own and industry's tribute to this superlative institution of the theatrical world.

During the five years of its operation, The Music Hall has reflected credit in generous measure upon the motion picture and the theatrical business, meanwhile bringing millions of hours of happiness and contentment to a vast public. During these years it has established a reputation glorifying the vision of its sponsors and the competency of its administration.

In an institution of such magnitude, where observance of the proprieties is all-pervasive, where there is taste and intelligence in little things and great, and where millions are afforded an escape from the vexations of life, there must, indeed, be a real contribution to the welfare of humanity. Such a contribution The Music Hall undeniably has made.

Vital to the success of The Music Hall have been the many brilliant productions supplied by motion picture producers. This fact makes it eminently proper that the industry should appropriate to itself a share in the bountiful success which attends this institution on its Fifth Anniversary. The industry may feel assured that it is welcome to its share in the success because, while supplemental entertainments are conceived and executed always to a high standard, and frequently attain exquisite perfection, the motion picture is accorded the stellar role in the world-famous presentations of The Music Hall.

Mr. William G. Van Schmus, The Music Hall's managing director, who is a personification of the institution's intelligence, urbanity and charm, was a stranger to the show world at the inception of his association with The Music Hall. But he was not long in mastering its idiom, and alongside of this newly acquired knowledge he was able to place a wide experience gained in other activities, the combination of which has given The Music Hall a direction which is distinguished both for its enterprise and for its prudence.

To the Rockefellers, to Mr. Van Schmus and to the staff of The Music Hall, congratulations for this notable enrichment of the American scene! —MARTIN QUIGLEY.

VAN SCHMUS: MAN OF A MYSTERY SOLVED

ANY appraisal of the Music Hall's present position in the amusement world requires some study of W. G. Van Schmus, the man who brought it about.

In four years he has developed from a "mystery man" into an important personality in the film industry. Some of the early arguments about his unique—many call them unorthodox—methods have subsided. His circle of acquaintances has widened. His critics are now subdued. Few refer to him as "the business man trying to run a theatre," but the great majority of old time showmen who transferred circus technique to exhibition still regard him as somewhat of an anomaly.

At one of the early parties given by Van Schmus to film people and newspaper critics just before an opening, a well known production executive asked: "Who's the stocky man with the white hair?"

"He's a ringer," replied another—probably meaning one of the uninvited guests who sometimes get into such affairs.

He proved to be the most exciting "ringer" this industry has had in many a long year, and his method of proving it couldn't have been less dramatic if he had made a studied effort to be self-effacing. The imprint of his personality runs all through the Music Hall organization and reaches the public in the uniform excellence of the shows, the dignified advertising, the courteous contacts with the Music Hall's guests. The word guests is used advisedly, because all visitors are made to feel like guests instead of customers—no easy task when they number 5,000 or more at a time.

When asked a few days back to explain his philosophy of showmanship, he replied: "I haven't any."

Noting the surprise of his interviewer, he explained in his slow methodical way. He makes his points with care, as though he had thought deeply about them. When he finishes it is all quite lucid and understandable.

Theatre operation, as he sees it, is a problem in merchandising, and merchandising as he visions it, is something broader than showmanship—a word loosely used in this business to describe the stirring of excitement. He regards merchandising as the problem of telling customers what he has to sell with dignity and honesty, of building up a conviction they are going to get their money's worth, and then giving it to them, so they will come back again and again.

He checks on his customers to make sure the system is working. Hundreds of them have the same seats, the same night of every week.

Some explosive verbiage has been hurled in his direction during the past four years by producing companies which have refused to share the expense of campaigns on their biggest pictures, but Van Schmus has refused to budge. He reached his conclusions slowly by the trial and error method.

Van Schmus smiles a bit ruefully when he describes the start of his connection with the Music Hall. All he knew about theatres was that most of them showed films and some were still presenting plays. He had one important asset, however; he had spent all of his career studying public relations and reactions. After leaving Northwestern College he had been part owner of a book publishing firm. He had been financial executive of department stores in Chicago and New York.

Twenty years ago he became an owner and general manager of a national advertising company. This led into the field of industrial development, engineering and expansion, and merchandising. The firm—Van Schmus, McDermid & Crawford—had clients across the country. Among these was Rockefeller Center.

Then he was asked by the Rockefellers to make a study of the Music Hall. He approached the problem objectively and tried to maintain perspective enough to permit him to grasp the main outlines of the setup before studying its details.

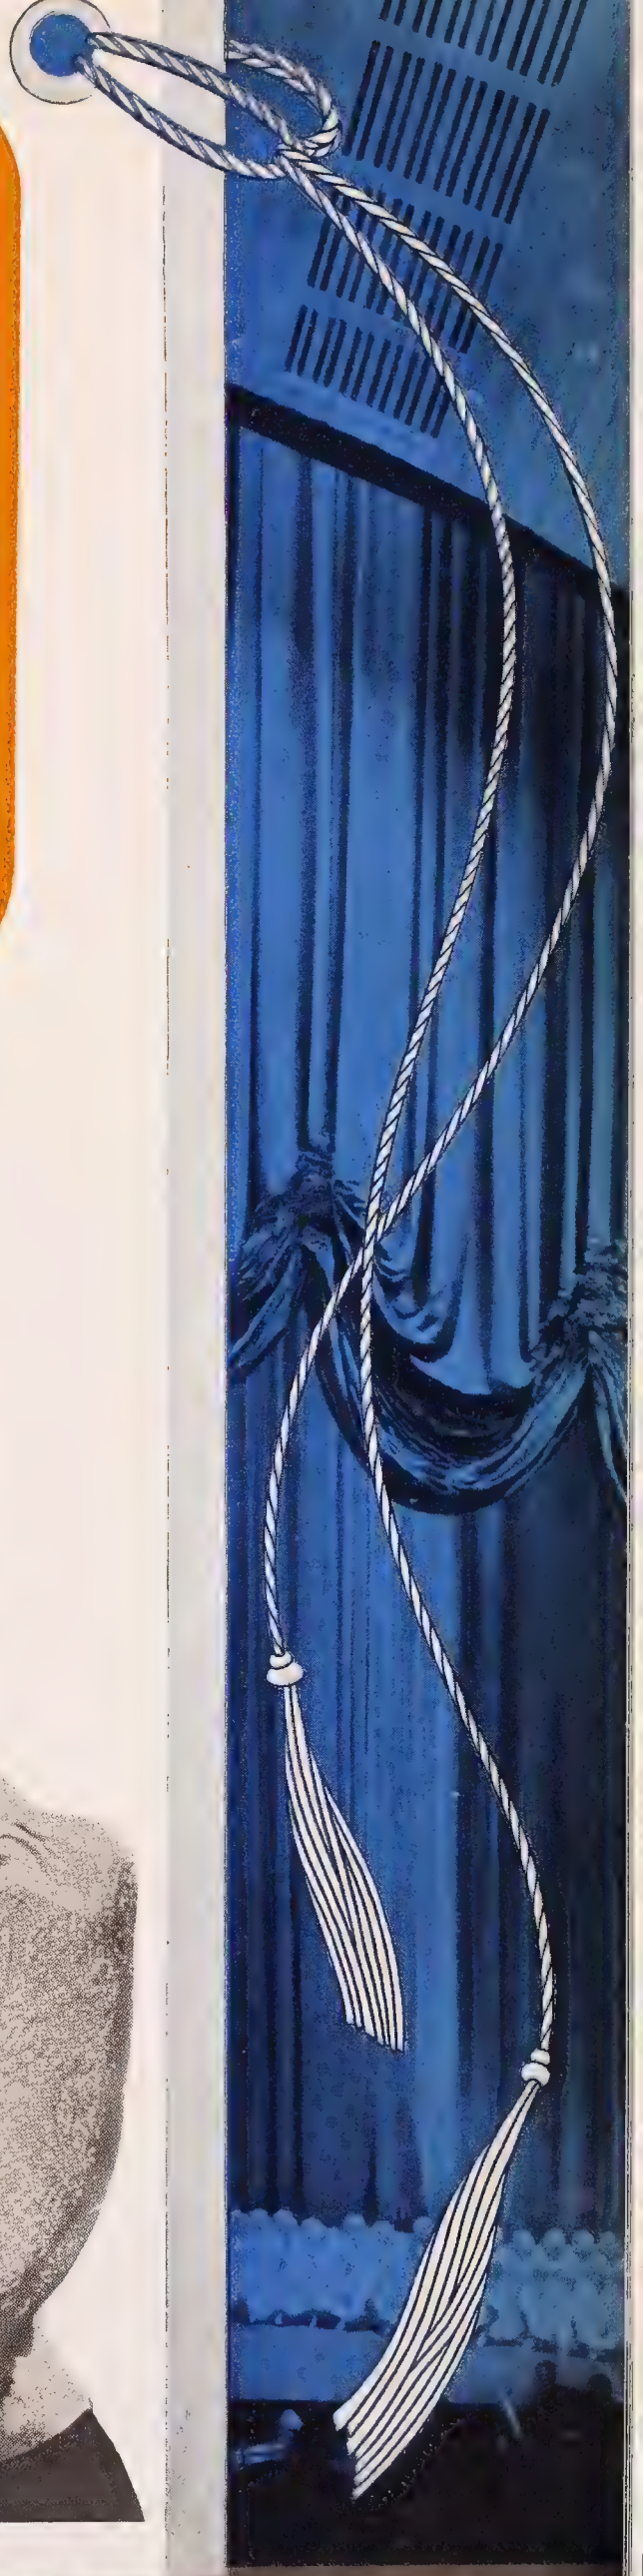
The organization had started revolving around a personality and was involved in a maze of conflicting viewpoints brought about by an executive council when he arrived. Even the department heads were determined to shine in the spotlight of this new creation.

In the course of time Van Schmus began to ask questions. When he tried to find out why certain things were done, he was told they had always been done that way in the theatre—or that it was showmanship. Showmanship, he discovered, was something everyone could talk about with considerable emphasis, but couldn't make clear.

After a few months he began to make suggestions. These encountered opposition, but Van Schmus says now that there is something about this business and these new contacts that fascinated him. He was pleased when the Rockefellers asked him to become managing director.

"One of my first problems," he explained, "was to convince these people that I wanted to be honest with them; that each would receive the full recognition his talents deserved; that each was a worker in an organization of which he could be proud.

"I tried to sell the Music Hall to them. They have helped me sell it to the public. Some changes have been made in the staff; but many of the men and women who were here at the start are still here. They are the best in their respective fields."



Some executives describe this as "man-power." Van Schmus

MODERN: A LINE OF ROCKETTES, FAMED PRECISION DANCERS

This troupe of 46 dancers was originated by Russell Markert and is still directed by him and Gene Snyder, codirector. In addition Markert is producer of many of the Music Hall's smart stage shows. Last July the Rockettes represented the United States at the Paris Gala of Dance.

THE WEEKLY JOB OF CREATING THE WORLD'S MOST GLAMOROUS SHOW

By CHARLES S. AARONSON

THE ENSEMBLE, making a riot of blended color tones, swept smoothly into finale position on the broad stage, the lights focused, the orchestra below carried into a crescendo, the huge curtain started slowly downward—and a spontaneous wave of applause gathered swift momentum through the vast auditorium.

That applause was an expression of enthusiastic appreciation of another Music Hall stage presentation—the American theatre's pre-eminent conjunction of screen and stage entertainment. The applause is duplicated, week in and week out, year in and year out, and becomes at once an expressive reaction of pleasure to that before the eyes of the audience, and an unconscious tribute to those personalities who set the stage, who hold the reins, to whom the "make-believe" from the audience viewpoint is intensely real, a cohesive molding of elements into a rounded whole—a stimulating piece of entertainment.

It is difficult to talk of the Music Hall and its presentations in anything less than superlatives. The very atmosphere of the vast stage and auditorium, the almost sensational sweep and beauty of its offerings, automatically calls up "finest" and "perfection" in the mind of the viewer. The startling feature of such production, however, lies in the fact that each week something new appears—as though by magic—and always the same high standard is maintained.

The directing operatives of the Music Hall describe it themselves in this fashion: "The Music Hall's entertainment policy is based on the conviction that people will welcome heartily a form of entertainment which respects their intelligence and good taste."

That is essentially true, and there is no deviation from that precept. But it is not all magic. It does not just happen. Behind that entertainment, those stage presentations which are a byword in the theatrical world and a treasure-trove of delight for thousands of people weekly, is a large and well-knit organization, which functions smoothly and swiftly.

Behind those presentations on the Music Hall stage is virtually a permanent stock company of music and of the dance, on a high cultural plane, probably without a duplicate in the world, with the possible exception of Grand Opera. But in that latter field, there is an aspect of repetition, of continuous duplication of subject matter, and therein lies the peculiar characteristic of the Music Hall talent group which makes it unique. It is, in fact, a center of superior entertainment, back stage as well as behind the footlights.

The precision of the inimitable and world-acclaimed Rockettes, the grace of the Ballet Corps, the excellence of the Glee Club, the quality of the orchestra, are not happenings merely of chance. They are the results of hard work, of a never-ending cycle of plan and execution, which means rehearsals, then more rehearsals, then the show—and immediate or coincident preparation for the next one.

In a quiet-toned and unpretentious office one flight from the street and stage door of the Music Hall sits an outwardly calm and unexcitable man who actually is a dynamo of nervous energy. He is Leon Leonidoff, the guiding genius of the Music Hall stage presentations, officially senior producer, and also vice-president of the Radio City Music Hall Corp.

From him and that desk radiate the various divisions which are called upon constantly to contribute a share to the making of a stage offering. His is the planning mind, with an obvious passion for accuracy and detail and perfection if possible, coupled uniquely with a high order of imaginative ability, which can—and does—produce presentations which run the entertainment gamut.

Many Minds Unified

A STAGE OFFERING, let's say, is in development. Sometimes that show is being produced by Leonidoff, senior producer, many other times by Russell Markert, producer, or occasionally by Miss Florence Rogge, associate producer. All three of these people have worked together very closely since the Music Hall has opened, yet they have diverse talents and produce different styles of shows. As different as these may be, each show demonstrates how their minds are unified in producing an offering definitely Music Hall in type.

The element of surprise, says Leonidoff, is all-important. No Music Hall audience must have an inkling, by reason of prior performances, of what next week's show will contain. Novelty, newness are essential. The producer readily agrees that there probably is no theatre in the world which offers such a wealth of technical and scientific facility to the production of stage offerings as does the Music Hall, but, he cautions quietly, the ideas for the use of that technical equipment are not responsive to the pressure of a button or the throwing of a switch.

Gene Snyder is associate director of the Rockettes, with a background of the theatre and dancing, who can better any step any Rockette can do. Florence Rogge directs the Corps de Ballet, which is the only permanent group of its kind in the country. Literally millions of people, many of whom otherwise would never view it, have seen ballet at the Music Hall. The 30 young men in the Glee Club are under the direction of Vin Lindhe. Richard Leibert is the Music Hall's organist.

A System for Talent

THE NAMES of others whose contributions are vital to the development and completion of a stage presentation in the best Music Hall tradition are noted, but mention of the particular work for which each one is responsible in itself tells a story of co-operative effort of a high order and wide extent. They include Maurice Baron, senior composer; Eugene Braun, director of the all-important stage lighting; Hattie Rogge, director of the costume department; Bruno Maine, scenic designer and production assistant; Robert Henderson, director of stage maintenance and operation; Irving Evans, stage manager; Marco Montedoro, production assistant and costume designer.

Additions to the stage presentations are a constant occurrence, drawing from the ranks of the concert, operatic and recital fields. The Music Hall's regular singers include Jan Peerce, tenor; Viola Philo, dramatic soprano; Edwina Eustis, contralto; Robert Weede, baritone; while such artists as Rosemarie Brancato, Bruna Castagna of the Metropolitan Opera, and Anne Roselle, also of Grand Opera, have been featured.

From the mind and imagination of Leonidoff comes an idea for still another stage presentation, then the planning begins for dance routines and ballet choreography, and the four rehearsal halls, with their full-length mirrors, are crowded; the music is prepared, the lighting problems solved, the scenery designed and built, while innumerable needlewomen start to work on the costumes when their designs have been approved.

Indicative of the fact that no details are overlooked, that there is a specialist for every phase of the co-operative effort, is the diversification in department activity. For example, there is Willa Van, costume designer and style expert, whose forte is the more modern trends in style, as opposed to the traditional in costuming.

Each group does its own assigned task separately, and then comes the process, under the hand and eye of the producer, of molding it all into a smoothly flowing entertainment entity—another Music Hall stage presentation to bring generous and appreciative applause from audiences, indicating a task well done—until next week and the next presentation.

MUSIC HALL MUSIC: A PROBLEM IN MASS CULTURE

ERNO RAPEE
Director of Music, Radio City Music Hall

Some interesting notes of and by Maestro Erno Rapee, whose baton must wave pleasingly in the face of an audience as varied as humanity

By JACK BANNER

THEY SOMETIMES call Erno Rapee "the little man with the big orchestras." Slight of build, he is a sad-faced gentleman whose heavy-lidded eyes, black, usually disarrayed hair, and slim, nervous arms and hands immediately mark his calling.

Of distinguished appearance, it is nevertheless hard to reconcile his tremendous record of accomplishment with his seeming physical frailty. But note: He has scored 750 full-length motion pictures, and more than 1,000 newsreels; compiled an encyclopedia of music for theatres; been musical director of Warner Brothers, and musical director of NBC; composed numerous songs and other musical numbers; been a conductor of symphony orchestras throughout the world; and since the opening of the Music Hall, has served as musical director and conductor, conducting the Radio City Music Hall orchestra on the air Sundays over a NBC network, and serving as conductor of the seasonal General Motors radio concerts.

Maestro Rapee himself, however, makes the reconciliation briefly and satisfactorily: "It is hard to kill a good Hungarian with work."

Rapee oversees about 120 people at the Music Hall. The orchestra itself numbers 70 men; of chorus and soloists there are approximately 30, for whom he selects, writes and arranges music; four librarians constantly wrestle with the task of cataloging 30,000 music numbers—the list is ever growing—and keeping up to date a reference file containing the names, instruments, age, ability and appearance of over 1,000 musicians. Copyists, arrangers and other Rapee aides consult with the Rockettes, the chorus and the ballet before coming to the musical director for final guidance as to the numbers to be used, how arranged and scored, and how finally they are to be fitted into the production coming up. The details of the Radio City Music Hall air program and the General Motors concerts must of course be thoroughly fashioned and molded each week.

Not to be overlooked are the executive duties which befall Rapee as musical director of the world's largest and most celebrated cinema. Practically every afternoon of the week he devotes to business details. Rapee's department costs the Music Hall management about a half million dollars a year—he says that this estimate is conservative—and the expenditures must be accounted for.

Visitors throng to his office during these afternoon executive periods. Talented young artists come to him with their ambitions, and the word is that they invariably find him an understanding, sympathetic fellow-artist. Leaving his unpretentious office on the second floor of the Music Hall after the interview, we saw a half-dozen persons waiting to see him. One, Rapee's secretary explained, was a composer with a musical idea for next week's show. Another was an Austrian tenor. A third was a musical inventor with a new type of piano which he wanted to have installed in the Music Hall. On audition days the situation is worse. All sorts of persons apply to Rapee to be heard, some talented, some not. He has discovered many young singers and musicians through these auditions.

We wondered aloud how Rapee was able to undergo such a terrifically complicated daily routine, without running into constant snarls. Amused, Rapee asked if we wanted the truth, or a "colored" story. Naturally, we wanted the truth.

"The truth," said Rapee, "is very prosaic. The music organization here has been functioning with almost the same personnel since the theatre opened. Consequently, for a long time, it has been operating like a mechanically perfect automobile. Everybody in the department knows his duty; knows what is expected of him, and it is done."

His mind blazing with Beethoven, Lizst, Chopin and the other masters following his graduation in 1909 from the Conservatory in Budapest, Hungary, at the age of 18, Rapee came to America to conquer our section of the musical world. He speedily wound up pounding the piano in an East Side restaurant.

However, the young immigrant soon graduated from the Ghetto and before many months was playing in theatre pits, winning his way slowly to the director's stand.

His first American work of consequence came about when he was made director of the Hungarian Opera Co. Shortly thereafter he became conductor of the Rialto Theatre orchestra, and it was there that he came to the attention of the late Samuel L. "Roxy" Rothafel. The upward swing in fortunes for these two following this first association is now part of theatre lore.

Rapee followed Roxy to the Rivoli, to the Capitol, and then to the Roxy. Followed a short time in Germany where he served as musical consultant to UFA productions. Back in this country, Rapee in 1930 went to Hollywood as musical director for Warners. He returned to New York the same year, again serving as musical director of the Roxy.

The following year Rapee became musical director of NBC, resigning two years later to accept his present musical directorship of the Radio City Music Hall.

One of the major problems confronting the musical director for a house which plays to approximately 125,000 people a week in what is perhaps the most cosmopolitan city in the world, is the necessity to steer a middle course in the selection of music, so that the tastes of no one in the audience will be entirely ignored.

Musical Prejudices

FOR INSTANCE, Rapee has learned through experience never to allow the tune "Marching Through Georgia" to be played. Several times he tried it, and on each occasion he and the management were reviled by letter and by personal calls from Southerners in the audience. Again, "Auld Lang Syne" is played only once a year at the Music Hall, New Year's Eve, because that song usually closes all functions and its playing at all other times is considered an invitation for an audience to go home.

The current majority feeling in New York against Nazism and Fascism has caused all songs even remotely associated with those movements to be removed from the Music Hall repertoire.

On the other hand, the musical fare must be diversified enough to please all the people who weekly attend the theatre, for among them is represented every race and religion. Of all music, states Rapee a bit pridefully, the most universally liked by Music Hall audiences is Hungarian. The playing of national anthems, other than America's, is rigidly eschewed.

Conducting four Music Hall shows a day, two radio shows each week, with attendant rehearsals for all, planning programs two and three weeks ahead while yet in the throes of solving the problems for the current ones, and all the other manifold duties that befall Erno Rapee each day (which number seven, incidentally) permit him very little time for outside diversion. But when he can steal a few hours away from his duties, one may usually find him at—you guessed it!—a concert.

THE FOUNDER

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who, in the booming 1920's, became interested in the relatively modest proposal of a new Metropolitan Opera House. He arranged leases on a midtown area, then when depression struck, he found himself with leases calling for enormous rentals. The only course was improvement of the property — and Rockefeller Center was conceived. What originally was meant to be four theatres emerged as only two, but one of these is the Radio City Music Hall, the equal of several. Since the latter part of 1933, Mr. Rockefeller has taken a direct interest in this magnificent theatre in the greatest single realty improvement of its kind in New York.

DURING THE first five years of operation of the Music Hall, 191 pictures, including "I'll Take Romance," now in its second and last week, have been booked into the 6,000-seat theatre. Of this number, 58 have been held for two and three weeks.

In a recapitulation of the playing time, RKO has had a total of 67 features. This company was highest on the booking calendar with 20th Century-Fox second at 52. Columbia was third with 25; United Artists fourth with 20; Universal, fifth with 10; Warners, sixth with eight, exclusive of "Tovarich," which opens tomorrow and ordinarily would be included in the complete five-year schedule. Paramount has a total of five and Gaumont British, three.

Conspicuously absent in the company lineup is M-G-M. This company has the Capitol as its Broadway show window, and it has never sold the Music Hall. Paramount and Warners also have their own first-run units, but have from time to time sold some outstanding attractions to the Music Hall.

Last fall, 20th Century-Fox took over operation of the Roxy and since has not booked any attractions into the Music Hall. The last picture of this company to play the Music Hall was "This Is My Affair," which ran two weeks in June.

Starting with the week ended Jan. 18, 1933, the official records of the Music Hall show that for the first year RKO had 21 pictures, Fox, 14; Columbia, four; Warners, five, and all within the first six months; Paramount, one; United Artists, one; Universal, two.

For the current year: RKO has had nine; United Artists, eight; Fox, five; Columbia, four, including "I'll Take Romance"; Warners, two.

RKO heads the three-week attractions with six films. U. A. is second with three and Columbia third and last with one. The 21-day films included "Little Women," the first to be honored with such an extended engagement; "Love Me Forever," "Top Hat," "Follow the Fleet," "Mary of Scotland," "Swing Time," "A Star Is Born," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Stage Door" and "Nothing Sacred." The films are listed in the order of exhibition.

Topping the two-week runs is RKO with 12. U. A. is next with 11. 20th Century-Fox is third with 10 and Columbia follows with eight. Warners and Universal each had two holdovers. The list does not include "The Littlest Rebel," which was shown for 11 days at the close of 1935 and "Magnificent Obsession," which ran 10 days the first part of January, 1936.

The two-week pictures, in the order booked into the Music Hall, are as follows: "Cavalcade," "Flying Down to Rio," "Nana," "Wild Cargo," "Stand Up and Cheer," "Of Human Bondage," "The Cat's Paw," "One Night of Love," "We Live Again," "Gay Divorcee," "Broadway Bill," "Little Minister," "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "Roberta," "Little Colonel," "Cardinal Richelieu," "Becky Sharp," "Alice Adams," "I Dream Too Much," "Strike Me Pink," "Petrified Forest," "The Country Doctor," "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "Under Two Flags," "Show Boat," "The King Steps Out," "Poor Little Rich Girl," "The Green Pastures," "My Man Godfrey," "The Gay Desperado," "The Garden of Allah," "That Girl from Paris," "Lloyds of London," "On the Avenue," "When You're in Love," "7th Heaven," "Shall We Dance," "This Is My Affair," "Knight Without Armor," "The Toast of New York," "Stella Dallas," "Vogues of 1938," "Lost Horizon," "The Awful Truth," "I'll Take Romance."

29 Films Gross Over $100,000

Exactly 29 films have grossed $100,000 or better, four of this group hitting $100.00 or better in their second or third weeks at the Music Hall.

The pictures which come under this classification and the takes follow in the order of established figures:

"Top Hat," $131,200; "The Prisoner of Zenda," $123,000; "Swing Time," first week, $123,177; second week, $120,000; "Top Hat," second week, $113,500; "Stage Door," $113,000; "Little Minister," $110,000; "Nothing Sacred, $110,000; "Little Women," $109,000; "Rainbow of the River," $108,000; "Cavalcade," first week, $107,761; second week, $105,98; "Vogues of 1938," $104,120; second week, $103,793; "One Man's Journey," $103,064; "Nana," $103,000; "The Private Life of Henry VIII," $103,000; "Cardinal Richelieu," $103,000; "Little Women," third week, $102,000; "Morning Glory," $101,249; "When You're in Love," $101,000; "A Star Is Born, $101,000; "Topaze," $100,956; "Mary of Scotland," $100,500; "Magnificent Obsession," $100,225; "My Man Godfrey," $100,200; "Love Me Forever," $100,019; "We Live Again," $100,000; "Broadway Bill," $100,000; "That Girl from Paris," $100,000; "7th Heaven," $100,000.

MAN of a MYSTERY SOLVED

thinks of his staff as his boys and girls, his friends and associates. This is no pose with him; it is an attribute of his personality. The reactions are interesting. Instead of resenting the close personal supervision which he gives the last detail of operation, they like it. He is aiming at their own objectives—the success of the Music Hall.

Out of all this close contact with the personnel has come a broad outline of the position he thinks the Music Hall ought to fill in the amusement world. It can't be snobbish. On this point he is emphatic. Its appeal must be to Ninth and Tenth Avenues as well as Park, but in spite of this he avoids aiming at what might be called a general average of taste.

"Each social stratum craves the one above," he observed. "The desire for something better is so universal that it can be applied to entertainment. Even in our music we step out of the field of selections with which the general public is familiar. Then we study the reactions. When we put on 'Madame Butterfly' I was nervous about it. I spent the afternoon in the auditorium. Regular opera-goers applaud in the customary places. Our audiences burst out spontaneously. The enthusiasm became contagious. I went home happy that night. Twenty thousand or more satisfied patrons the first day can—and do—start a terrific amount of word-of-mouth advertising."

The Music Hall is probably one of the few theatres in the world where preview audience reactions can be obtained from the staff. This is another Van Schmus innovation.

The entire atmosphere of the institution both in its public contacts and its inter-departmental relations is one of urbanity and charm. These qualities reflect W. G. Van Schmus.—J. M. JERAULD.

How Music Hall Ads Are Planned

The striking Music Hall newspaper advertisements, which arouse interest because of distinctive make-up, typography and departure from traditional film technique, were originated by W. G. Van Schmus, managing director.

The advertising is prepared by Donahue & Coe, headed by E. J. Churchill. Preliminary plans are laid in a conference attended by representatives of the film company whose picture is to be played; Lynn Farnol, the agency's account executive, and Van Schmus. After the budget has been determined, and the scheduled planned, Van Schmus personally supervises each step in the creation of every new campaign, working out details with Farnol.

Copy is written by Lynn Farnol and Mrs. Dorothy Auchincloss of the agency staff, and by Beatrice Atlass of Van Schmus' office.

Growth of an Idea Into an Institution

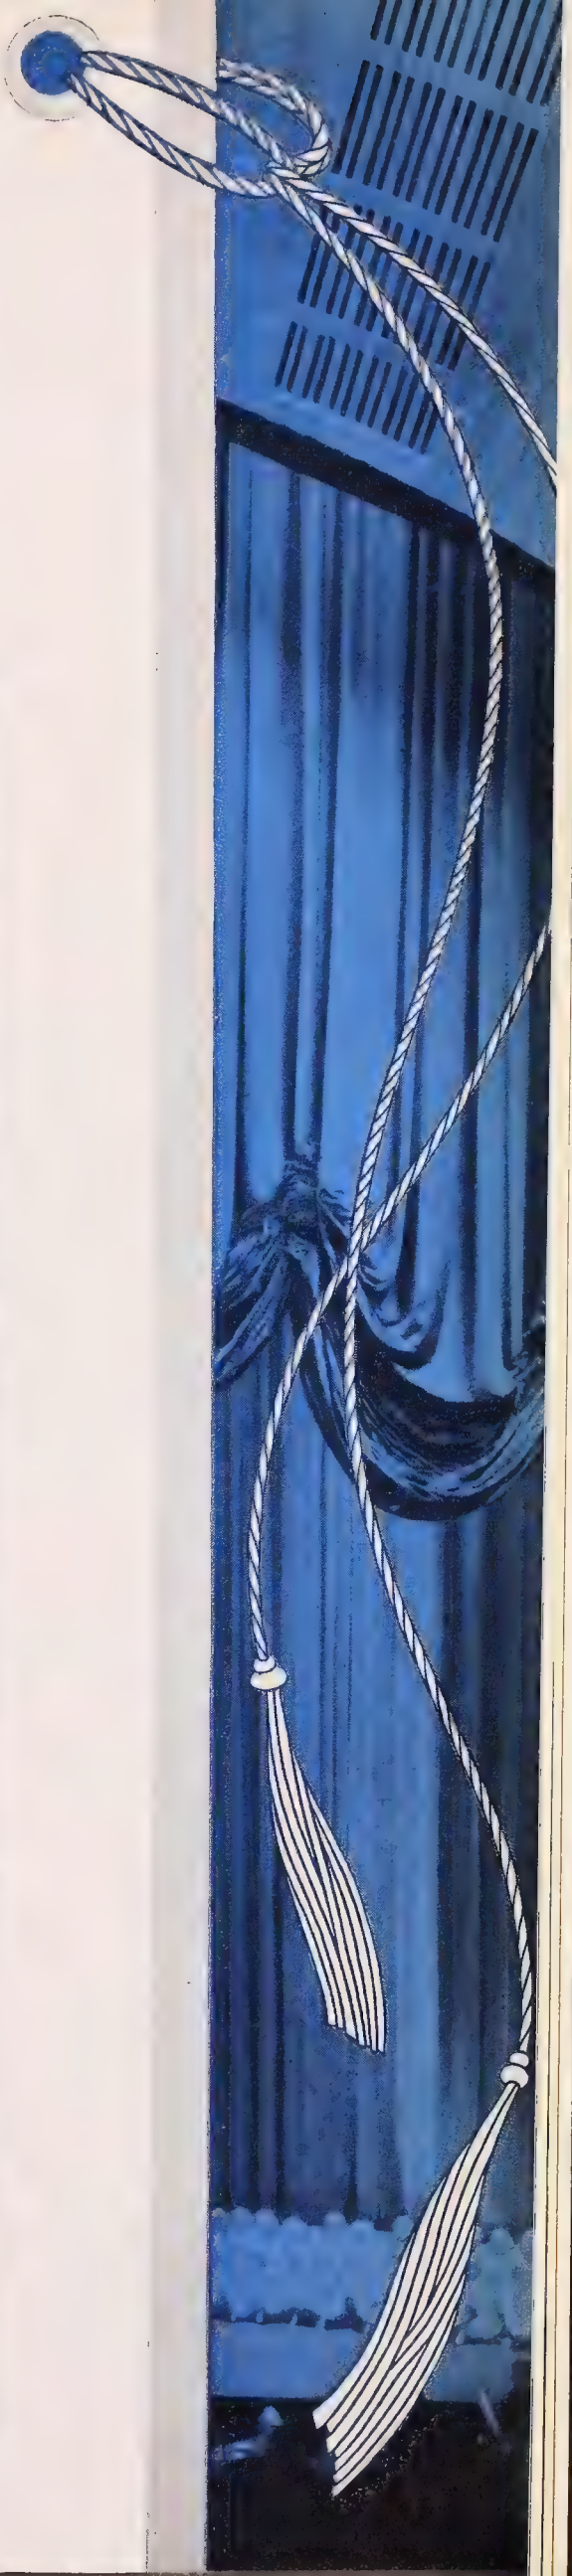
sales, advertising, market conditions —before laying out a plan. In some cases this study required a year or more. As the senior partner, William G. Van Schmus was usually the man who made the detailed inquiries.

It was in this capacity that he stepped into the Music Hall picture. It was just another business to him at first. He just watched, with no preconceived ideas of what should be done.

Out of the early turmoil developed the thought that the Music Hall should be "The Showplace of the Nation," and that is exactly what it has become. It would be no exaggeration to say that it is the Showplace of the World. The French gave it international recognition last summer by inviting its famed precision dancers, the Rockettes, to their Paris Exposition. English trade papers have praised its advertising. Italian opera enthusiasts have classed some of the stage presentations as the finest to be found anywhere. It is one of the sights visitors from all parts of the world must see when they come to New York. Yet, oddly enough, its regular customers outnumber the transients.

The Radio Corporation of America and the National Broadcasting Company take pleasure in congratulating their famous neighbor, Radio City Music Hall, upon its first five years of steady progress and brilliant achievement.



Headquarters of the Radio Corporation of America, the RCA Building in Radio City, N. Y., is also the home of a distinguished member of the RCA family: The National Broadcasting Company. Each year more than 500,000 visitors take the guided tour of the NBC Studios, where originate the radio programs which are the chief source of recreation for untold millions of people.

THE SHOW BEHIND THE SHOW AT THE MUSIC HALL

Vast enough in what the public sees, but vaster still is this theatre, and spectacular as well, in its technical resources and its complex operating scheme

By GEORGE SCHUTZ
Editor, Better Theatres

BY ALL the prevailing laws of showbusiness, the Music Hall of Radio City in Rockefeller Center, New York, is beyond belief. Yet, like the giraffe standing before the hick gentleman who denied its existence, there it is!—with five years of effective operation attesting to its enduring reality. To an extent realized by few people, as shall be demonstrated in paragraphs to follow, this Colossus of the amusement world, having fixed its own entertainment function, is answerable only to its own code. It stands, an individualized institution, on the fringe of showbusiness as under the domination of the motion picture showbusiness is understood today.

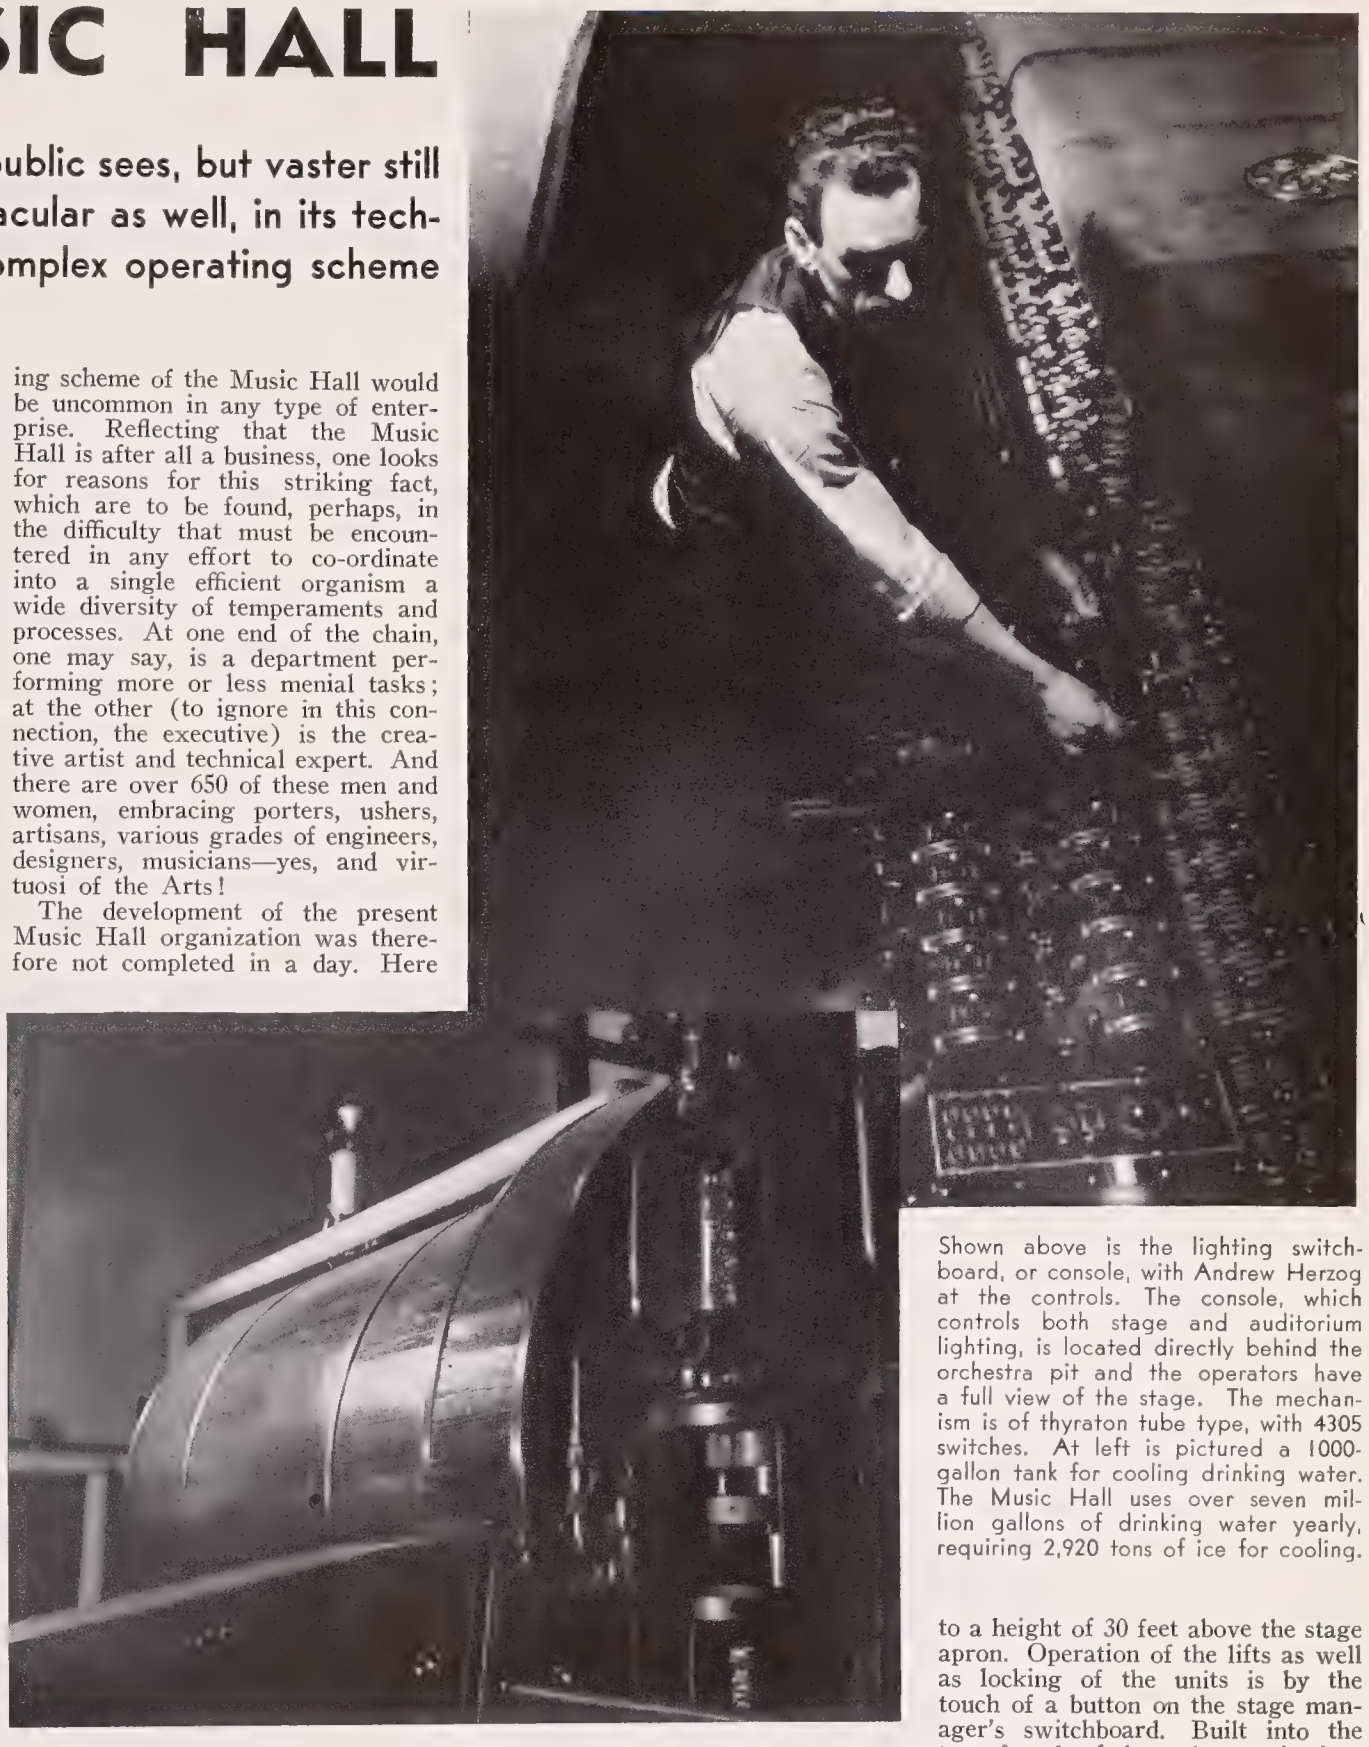
What a heaven for the megalomaniac it is! And unquestionably its sheer magnitude is an attraction to many of its first-time patrons. They, of course, see little of its real magnitude. Quite enough, no doubt, to be convincing—foyers vastly palatial; lounges overly generous in number, dimensions and luxuries; an auditorium rising a half-dozen stories, seating a sizeable town (6,000, more or less); a stage that swallows a cast like a Moloch, with room still to spare in its jowls—quite enough, but only so much skin over bones and tissue, over a complex system of nerves and muscles, human and mechanical, weaving seemingly endlessly through hundreds of rooms, halls, structural interstices, corridors and plant stations. The public doesn't know the half of it!

The operating staff, including creative and managerial as well as all other classes of employes, comprises 654 persons. And the operating scheme of the Music Hall embraces service to employes as well as to the public. Each department has its club, or lounge, quarters. Hospital facilities, except for major operations, are provided, with two bedrooms, a physician calling each day, and three staff nurses constantly in attendance. There is a library, with a staff librarian, regularly supplied with the latest publications, from which employes may draw out books. Seamstresses, cleaners and pressers are provided for the maintenance of costumes and service uniforms. There is a cafeteria at which especially engaged talent as well as employes may eat or from which food may be ordered brought to offices (the executive department has its own kitchen and dining room for occasional luncheons or dinners).

This matter of service to employes is extraordinary enough as a function of a theatre organization, but the emphasis given it in the operating scheme of the Music Hall would be uncommon in any type of enterprise. Reflecting that the Music Hall is after all a business, one looks for reasons for this striking fact, which are to be found, perhaps, in the difficulty that must be encountered in any effort to co-ordinate into a single efficient organism a wide diversity of temperaments and processes. At one end of the chain, one may say, is a department performing more or less menial tasks; at the other (to ignore in this connection, the executive) is the creative artist and technical expert. And there are over 650 of these men and women, embracing porters, ushers, artisans, various grades of engineers, designers, musicians—yes, and virtuosi of the Arts!

The development of the present Music Hall organization was therefore not completed in a day. Here was a task that took time—and direction with a keen sense of fundamentals, direction advised by a natural appreciation of human qualities. Such direction can come from a man who has had great analytical experience, and who also is a warm-hearted sort of person, a formula satisfied at both points by William G. Van Schmus, whom John D. Rockefeller, Jr., brought in 1933 from the field of industrial engineering to be managing director of the Music Hall.

Although comparisons are always dangerous, it must be true that Rockefeller Center's Radio City Music Hall is the only theatre in the world combining the motion picture in its regular entertainment program with lavish stage extravaganza produced by a permanent organization complete in every department. The technical facilities of each of these program divisions are of course uncommon, but those of stage production are really phenomenal.



The stage itself, which is only part of a great mechanical system devised by the late Peter Clark, consists for the most part in three platform units supported by hydraulic lifts. The over-all dimensions of these units, combined, are 70x45 feet, and they may be raised or lowered individually or integrated. The elevators can be operated at a rate of 60 feet per minute, and can lift a platform unit to a height of 30 feet above the stage apron. Operation of the lifts as well as locking of the units is by the touch of a button on the stage manager's switchboard. Built into the top of each of these three units is a sectional revolving stage, providing for revolving spectacles or immediate succession of several scenes.

The orchestra platform, which travels between the pit and a chamber 30 feet below the pit level by means of hydraulic lift equipment, carries a "band-wagon" on which the orchestra may be moved from pit to stage or under the stage and on to an elevator stage unit under its own power, propelled by motors which are supplied by storage batteries.

Rigging is comparably prodigious, some idea of which may be gleaned from the fact that the contour curtain alone has 16 lines.

Shown above is the lighting switchboard, or console, with Andrew Herzog at the controls. The console, which controls both stage and auditorium lighting, is located directly behind the orchestra pit and the operators have a full view of the stage. The mechanism is of thyraton tube type, with 4305 switches. At left is pictured a 1000-gallon tank for cooling drinking water. The Music Hall uses over seven million gallons of drinking water yearly, requiring 2,920 tons of ice for cooling.

generator sets are required to supply the arcs alone in lighting the average stage production, delivering 5400 amperes. The equipment for stage lighting includes Brenkert effect machines and Hall & Connolly high-intensity spots in the spotlight stations adjoining the projection room, and Kliegl footlights, borderlights and spots. Of 150 incandescent spots, each with 2000-watt lamps, 120 are equipped for Selsyn remote gelatin control, giving any of four colors at five different speeds. Each of the eight borderlights contains 27 reds, 27 greens, 27 ambers and 54 blues, at 500 watts. The entire stage lighting system, except for the outfront equipment, is operated through a General Electric thyraton console-type switchboard located in front of the orchestra pit, at the edge of the auditorium floor, which conceals it from the audience. The operators, which number two during the performance, thus have a full view of the stage. Lighting may be pre-set for ten scenes.

The Music Hall has an elaborate RCA sound re-enforcement system used for all stage productions because of the size of the auditorium, which includes three mezzanines, the prom rows of which are from 125 to 150 feet from the stage. Microphones and speakers are distributed throughout the proscenium area. Volume levels for these various locations are controlled, and mixing accomplished, according to cue and intercommunication system prompt-through panels located in a station of the projection gallery. The sound reenforcement system has three 80-watt amplifiers.

NORMAN H. ZOOK

The picture sound system employs a single 80-watt amplifier. The present system embraces all of the new RCA Photophone "high-fidelity" improvements, with two-way horn equipment and soundheads adaptable to push-pull recording. All pictures are cued for fader settings—and if one has any doubts about the profound distinction between this theatre and the exhibition plant of the motion picture industry proper, let him reflect upon the fact that for fader settings, an audience of 2,000 is considered an "empty house!"

The projection room now is 26 feet wide, the original spot space having been walled off because of jurisdictional disputes between the projectionist and stage employe unions. With a throw of 190 feet and a regular screen image 30 feet wide, the Hall & Connolly high-intensity arc lamps (there are four Simplex projectors identically equipped) pull 180 amperes. Other projection room equipment includes Neumade film cabinets, Clayton takeups, Blue Seal film cleaners, Thide changeovers. Arc supply is from one of the 18 motor-generators located in a basement machinery room.

Music Hall screens measure 70 x 40 feet to allow for magnascopic images of spectacular footages of films. All of the screens used since the opening of the theatre have been of Hurley white diffusive type, and the latest, installed a few months ago, has the gradational perforations introduced by this manufacturer last spring.

In the space at our disposal it is quite impossible to deal comprehensively with even the most significant phases of the Music Hall technical provisions, but the picture of immensity and operating uniqueness may be filled out by citing a number of striking facts.

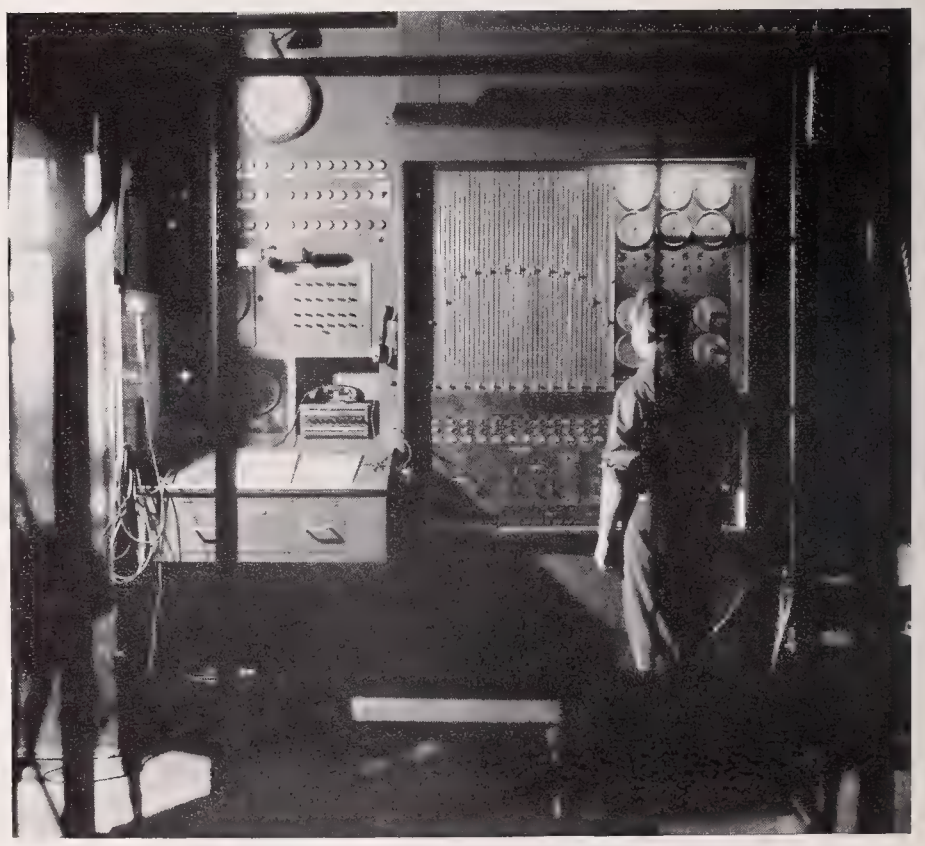
The air-conditioning system, by Carrier, supplies 40 cubic feet of conditioned air per minute per seat.

Soffits of marquees require 8,000 lamps of 40 watts; attraction boards use 1,500, display cases 500 lamps of 50 watts.

Over 50,000 costumes have been made in the Music Hall's costume department, which regularly employs 50 needlewomen.

An example of some requirements of an average stage production: 1,000 spangles, 80 ostrich boas, 40 bunches of hair, 120 silk tassels, 2,000 yards of gold ribbon, 1,000 yards of net, 885 yards of gold lame cloth, 1,700 yards of bone, 600 flowers, 144 spools of thread, 12 gross of hooks and eyes, 20 pounds of pins, 1,200 yards of tape, 225 yards of chiffon—and so on, staggeringly.

It should be mentioned also that in addition to a fully equipped theatre for previewing pictures considered for booking, there is a similar theatre presenting features during parts of every day entirely for the amusement of stage performers and any other employes who may be free during certain hours. Sometimes features not playing the Music Hall are "booked in" exclusively for this purpose.



The cleaning of this vast establishment—maintenance is under the direct supervision of Fred A. Cruise, house manager—requires a crew of 26 porters and 12 charwomen nightly, and seven day porters. The intensive cleaning, which is done by a service company under contract, is carried out during the eight hours just preceding opening of the theatre for the first performance, usually between 10 and 11 a. m.

An interesting arrangement for providing light for the night cleaning crew consists in special circuits into which only the work-lamps employed may be plugged. The regular lighting system is switched off following the last performance. Vacuum cleaning lines extend from a Spencer-Turbine central plant to all sections of the theatre building.

Inspections to determine the necessity of general repairs and replacements of parts of the building and of furnishings are made each day by uniformed employes reporting to Norman H. Zook, maintenance officer. Some repair materials are kept constantly on hand, as for example, auditorium chair and lounge furniture fabrics which might not be readily procurable in the market, some of it having been especially designed. For the most part these furnishings are original installations. Even the auditorium seating, by American with Chase Milano mohair upholstery covering, is the original installation, although more than 30,000,000 persons have attended the Music Hall. Theatre carpeting also, which is of an American Orinetal weave by Karoushian from special designs, have undergone only minor replacements during these five years of operation.

The service staff, which is also under the direction of Mr. Cruise, whose assistants are George Hannaford and J. E. McHale, comprises 106 young men between 18 and 22 years old. This department includes ushers, doormen, pages and toilet-room attendants. Ushers are organized along military lines, with their own officers. Each newly employed usher goes through a two-week course of training before being placed on duty, and drills continue to be a part of his routine. They report directly to Edward Jannings, chief of service.

Thus, then, in a few broad strokes, is the real bigness of Radio City Music Hall. Especially there, in the show behind the show, does it challenge belief. But there it is, not a fantastic dream (as indeed once it was called), but a robust reality with a five-year income of twenty-three million dollars.

Earl Marshall, one of the stage electricians, is shown at the stage manager's control boards for operation of the contour curtain, and the stage and orchestra elevators. Also located here is a microphone for calling performers to the stage, loudspeakers being placed in all dressing rooms.

of the Dep't of Commerce. The dramatizations were presented with the cooperation of the U. S. Office of Education. The broadcast originated in Washington, with Hays' address cut into the program from New York. Also heard on the program was Thomas Armat, inventor of the projector.

Opening the program, Daniel related how Roget glanced through the venetian blinds on the windows of his office as a baker's cart went by. Through the slatted apertures, Roget's eyes caught a picture of the cart at rest in each slit of the blind as it proceeded by jerks, and through each successive opening he saw it in a different phase of motion. Following an investigation of the human eye in relation to moving objects, a little toy called the zootrope was developed, in which hand-drawn pictures on a revolving disc gave the illusion of motion.

Recount Incident of Trotter

In episodic fashion, the program thereafter swept swiftly into a dramatization of the now historic trotting horse betting incident between Governor Leland Stanford of California and James R. Keene, which occurred some 60 years ago. Gov. Stanford had wagered $25,000 that a trotting horse takes all four feet off the ground at one time. Keene had opposed this theory, maintaining if the horse did so, he would be jumping, not trotting. The decision was to be made by camera. An engineering confrere of the Governor, John D. Isaacs and one of the first amateur camera enthusiasts, had placed five cameras along the side of the track on which the race was to be run. Across the track had been placed wires attached to each camera. As the steel wires of the sulky passed over the wires they started electric currents which operated the cameras. The pictures showed all four feet of the horse off the ground at the one time, and Gov. Stanford won the stake.

Led to Motion Pictures

Meanwhile, the results of the experiment came to the attention of a French painter, John Louis Meissonier, who had been criticized by the French Academy for his paintings of horses in motion. Meissonier, during a visit of Gov. Stanford to Paris, obtained the pictures. That the pictures brough him vindication at the Academy is merely incidental. Of importance was his experiment of mounting the photographs of the moving horse in the zootrope, resulting in an actual motion picture.

Followed the story of Thomas A. Edison's unavailing efforts at the development of motion pictures, until the invention of a continuous roll of film by George Eastman. Edison's camera, with the aid of Eastman's film, was a success, but its scope was limited. Edison marketed the product in the form of a penny slot machine. He called it a kinetoscope.

Armat's invention of the projector, which made possible motion pictures as they now are, followed. He related in his interview how he first saw the Edison kinetoscope in Washington in 1894.

"The thought flashed into my mind that it would be a wonderful thing if the tiny pictures could be projected on a screen so that audiences, instead of one person at a time, could see them."

Armat's first attempts to project pictures were with the modified Edison kinetoscope, which had a continuously rolling film. The method was not satisfactory, but subsequent attempts led to his discovery that the pictures should be given an intermittent motion, so that each picture rested on the screen long enough to form a distinct impression. The same principle is still employed.

Amazement Recalled

Armat recalled the sheer unbelief evidenced by the audience when he showed the first moving picture at Koster and Bial's Music Hall in New York. It was a 50-foot strip showing waves dashing against a pier.

Resuming the narration, Daniel told of the production of America's first motion picture drama in 1903, titled "The Great Train Robbery," of how the star system was inaugurated when audiences clamored for the release dates of pictures made by "Little Mary," or Mary Pickford; the filming of "The Birth of a Nation," and the subsequent rise and progress of the industry to the day when the late Sam Warner was induced by a friend to visit the Bell Laboratories in 1926 to look over a new machine that would make the screen talk.

Hays Links Films and Nation

Hays, introduced from New York, said that the rise, progress and service of the picture industry afforded a most striking example of the opportunities under the American system for the development of industry and its immeasurable usefulness.

"Our whole American civilization stands as a monument to business enterprise," he said. "Our progress is measured not by the sum of our possessions, but by the number of those who are able to enjoy them. . .

"It was the business man working with the scientist who brought the motion picture to the point where every day now in this country alone 27,000 miles of film pass through the hands of distribution exchanges and 12,000,000 people see pictures every day. In this, as in all business, the industrial evolution has brought with it an evolution in management—and upon its management the integrity and enterprise and consequence of all business depends. The industry, in step with its responsibility, has developed examples of important and proper management purposes."

Lauds Self-Regulation

The industry has reached its present high pinnacle as an entertainment, art and service medium only by a road of self-regulation, demonstrating that a properly organized and directed system of self-government best serves public and private interests. It is by such a code of self-discipline that the industry has expressed its public responsibility as an entertainment medium of universal appeal to men, women and children, he said.

"There have been ups and downs in the undertaking to raise both the standards of production and the standards of public appreciation, to balance, in the field of higher entertainment, supply with demand. There have been times when the issue of freedom for the screen under a code of self-regulation, created and developed by the organized motion picture industry, has been confused. But carefully and solidly relf-regulation continued to be built with the encouragement and support of the industry itself. Today there is freedom on the screen for every legitimate theme or treatment which drama, literature and life may offer and yet public assurance that the door of the average motion picture opens to clean, inspiring and significant entertainment.

Calls People the Rulers

"Motion picture production is, in a substantial manner, a cooperative endeavor furnishing a fine demonstration of the relation of the public to industry. Not the producer, nor the distributor, nor the exhibitor, can decide the fate of any picture. That is in the hands of the 85,000,000 persons who each week cast their vote at the box-office. Any big business requires not only cash and credit but the creation of the will to buy. By selection and support, the public determines what type of pictures appear on the screen. We need and welcome this kind of cooperation."

Bess Sees Big '38 For Independents

The year 1938 will be the best in the history of the independent broadcasting stations of America, according to Herman Bess, sales manager of WNEW. This year saw a definite trend toward greater prosperity for stations not affiliated with networks, he says, and the coming year will see a further development of this trend.

Local stations, says Bess, have discovered how to serve their localities, giving service to listeners that cannot be rendered by chain stations, and this has won for them recognition from national advertisers. During 1937 there was a large increase in the number of national advertisers using local stations throughout the country, and according to Bess, 1938 will see this number increased.

Air Business Hit New Peak During 1937

By JACK BANNER

The year 1937 was bright for radio, with business hitting an unprecedented peak through the 12-month period for chains, independents and transcription companies; great strides made in television and facsimile development and broadcasting; a strengthening reorganization of the industry association, the N.A.B.; a re-awakening by the industry of its obligation to the public, manifested by heavily augmented schedules of cultural and educational programs, and a happier relationship created between the radio and film industries.

British Film Industry Had Critical Year

Marked by Slackening of Production Finance

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, Dec. 22.—The year just closing probably has been the most critical in the history of the film industry in England. The financial storm broke shortly after the year opened and the industry now may be said to be gathering the pieces and taking stock of the situation. Most competent observers consider the plight of the industry here by no means hopeless and for the most part are looking forward to a more stable development during 1938.

Indicative of the sharp upheaval is the fact that of more than 150 production companies, there are, at the close of the year, not more than two dozen active, and the bankruptcies and cessation of production are matter of record.

It is pointed out, however, that the

Norman Alley at Warwick Tells of Panay Experience

By SHERWIN A. KANE

At 7:05 P. M. last night, just two weeks to the day after he had been picked up on the banks of the Yangtze River near Nanking by the United State patrol boat Oahu after three days of wandering from the scene of the sinking of the Panay, Norman Alley, Universal Newsreel cameraman, entered the Warwick Hotel, ending a 12,500-mile journey with one of the most valuable cargoes ever delivered in this or any other country by one of his craft.

A little less than an hour earlier Alley had stepped from a chartered plane at a well-policed Newark Airport, where his films of the capture of Nanking and the bombing of the Panay were transferred to an armed car and rushed to the Fort Lee laboratories of Consolidated Film, where

All Broadway Houses Doing SRO Business

Records Crack as Crowds Line Sidewalks

Broadway was jammed yesterday with theatre-goers and all theatres boasted of capacity attendance for all hours of the day. It was not an uncommon sight to find standees waiting hours in line on the streets around the Music Hall, the Roxy, State, Paramount, Capitol, Strand and other houses.

Byron F. (Dinty) Moore said the Strand, which opened with "Submarine D-I," was filled to capacity one hour after the house opened. At 11 A. M., the sale of tickets was stopped. At 12:30 P. M., 6,054 admissions were recorded. Indications are that the picture will be held three weeks.

K.C. Men Withdraw Conspiracy Appeal

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 29.—E. Rolsky and other independent theatre operators here have dropped the appeal of their conspiracy suit against Fox Midwest and major distributors. After U. S. District Judge Merrill E. Otis last year held no conspiracy was shown, and promulgated the opinion that inasmuch as pictures are copyrighted articles their owners can sell as much protection as they desire, effort was made to take the case to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"City Girl"

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—"City Girl" is lively melodrama built up to a gripping finish. It is a well moulded piece from Sol Wurtzel at 20th Century-Fox. Because of its portrayal of life made more luxurious through crime or association with criminals, "City Girl," which tells the story of a bright young girl who takes the easiest road, can hardly be recommended for children.

Sops to law and order are provided, but the audience nevertheless is led through much of the film to believe that luxury surrounds crime and that abject poverty sometimes surrounds honesty. In other words, the theme of the story is that crime or dishonesty, although they demand their toll later, are a lot of fun before the price is paid.

The picture's moral aspects may be open to criticism, but the original screenplay by Frances Hyland, Robin Harris and Lester Ziffren, and the direction of Alfred Werker are of high calibre. The cast, headed by Phyllis Brooks, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Wilcox and Douglas Fowley, performs capably. No screen credit is given to Marjorie Main, of "Dead End," "Mannequin," and "Boy of the Streets" fame, who appears again as a suffering mother living in a tenement. Miss Main, a highly capable actress, is in some danger of being "typed."

Miss Brooks, a waitress who lives with her family in a tenement, happens to fall in with a group of racketeers headed by Ricardo Cortez. They fall in love, and Miss Brooks accidentally kills Cortez' former sweetheart. Convicted of murder, Miss Brooks escapes with Cortez' aide. In the meantime, a racket cleanup is ordered and the gang is broken up, the finale showing Miss Brooks being killed by a bullet from Cortez' gun, aimed at her former sweetheart, now a prosecutor.

Running time, 60 minutes. "A."

Looking 'Em Over

"Peter, the First"

(Amkino)

The state-controlled Russian film studios have departed in "Peter, the First" from the usual course of injecting national and political propaganda into their screenplays. Here they have done a historical film on a large scale.

As the title hints, it concerns incidents in the reign of the Czar who was instrumental in lifting Russia from decadence in the 17th century to a powerful European state after the turn of the 18th century with the opening of trade outlets and a merchant fleet. The events are treated in dynamic fashion. The title role is played by Nikolai Simonov and is an outstanding study in the art of acting. The direction of Vladimir Petrov is in the best Soviet style.

The film opens with the defeat of Peter at the hands of the King of Sweden at Narva in 1700. The defeat teaches him that he needs closer cooperation with his people in order to rebuild his country. Minor political officials are ruthlessly made to lend aid and their serfs are invited to join the army. The grand result is the founding of Petersburg. With the city under construction Peter attempts to refine his court with the adoption of sophisticated continental ways. To some extent this gets across. His final triumph is when he takes the mistress of his governor and makes her his Czarina. A son is born to them and the picture closes with his great joy as a father and the similar feeling of his advisers. It is lustily performed and the sequences are driven home with strong drama.

"Sh! The Octopus"

A DAFFY BURLESQUE MYSTERY WITH HUGH HERBERT MAKES AN UPROARIOUSLY FUNNY COMEDY.

Hugh Herbert, Warners' mad and eccentric funster, aided and abetted by Allen Jenkins, another of Warners' ace comics, make this new picture one of the funniest comedies seen in a long time. Strictly burlesqued as a mystery thriller from start to finish, the story is never allowed to take on a serious aspect at any time, and it stays funny throughout. Herbert and Jenkins are about the dizziest pair of detectives the screen has ever offered, and they make the most of their comedy roles with a laugh result that is plenty heavy. Given a deserted lighthouse, an octopus that kills people, a lurking submarine carrying the master mind, trap doors, eerie lights, a hidden death ray, a list of suspects and a few more equally amazing situations, you can imagine what happens. The octopus starts grabbing people and things happen in a hilarious and exciting fashion until the finish of the picture. Mark this one as a pix that will amuse anybody at any time.

Pound Committee Is Given $2,932 Award

Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey yesterday granted an allowance of $2,932 as expenses to the Pounds Bondholders' Protective Committee in the Roxy Theatre reorganization. The Pounds Committee, which acted as proponents of the Roxy plan of reorganization, had asked for $37,394, but Judge Caffey ruled that there was "no sufficient explanation" for the $34,462 balance. No ruling was made on the committee's request for $23,318 as fees.

The opinion questioned payments of $14,780 to Straus & Co., $11,600 secretary's expenses, $6,805 interest payment on a $22,000 note, a proposed reserve of $775 and a $500 payment for attorneys' fees. A "reasonable opportunity" to explain these expenditures was granted to the committee by Judge Caffey.

Overseas Previews

(L'dif-Bercholz)

PARIS, Dec. 20.—This French melodrama, the last film made in France by Danielle Darrieux before her departure for Hollywood, is good general entertainment, in spite of the fact that the story, written by the French dramatist, Pierre Wolff, famous for his pre-war plays, is rather artificial and unconvincing.

The story tells of a beautiful orphan, Lydia, who lives with her grandmother and is studying law. When her grandmother dies, leaving her penniless, she tries to find work but is unsuccessful. Discouraged, she contemplates suicide, but one of her friends shows her an album containing photographs and old papers proving that 21 years before an actress who knew a Jacques Fernay killed herself without his knowledge after being deserted by him and after the death of her baby. The friend suggests to Lydia that she see the man and pretend she is his daughter. Poverty stricken and starving, Lydia goes to the man's house. He, a wealthy historian, married but childless, believes her, and without investigating her story, adopts her. But the truth is discovered by his wife, as Lydia gets her first case. She has to defend a girl being tried for abuse of confidence, and who is in exactly the same position as herself. Lydia speaks so convincingly and touchingly that it seems she is pleading her own case, and Mrs. Fernay, who attends the trial, forgives her and says nothing to her husband. Henri Decoin, Miss Darrieux's husband, who directed, made the best of this somewhat dated story, which does not seem suited to the girl's youthful personality and talent. The dialogue is lacking in interest and much of it, as well as several of the scenes, check the tempo of the film.

"Le Messager" ("The Messenger")

(Pathé Consortium Cinema)

PARIS, Dec. 20.—This is a clever adaptation, by Marcel Achard, of the famous French stage play by Henry Bernstein. Thanks to Achard and to the director, Raymond Rouleau, it has been turned into an excellent film, full of movement and emotional interest.

It is a dramatic story concerning a couple separated by the vicissitudes of life—the man (Nick) working in a deserted spot in Africa, the woman (Marie) alone in Paris. A close friend of Nick and his assistant in Africa returns to Paris, following a serious illness bringing a message from Nick to his wife. Marie, alone for so long, cannot resist the attraction she feels for the "messenger." The inevitable happens, and when the husband returns, the situation becomes even more dramatic, bringing in its wake tragedy and finally reconciliation, when an express, flying through the night, carries two passengers toward a new life.

The role of Nick gives Jean Gabin opportunity and he is, as usual, excellent. Gaby Morlay, who created the role of Marie on the stage, gives one of her best screen performances in this film, and is at her best in a scene in which she converses over the telephone with Gilbert, and in which she shows the mental struggle between her love for her husband and her attraction for his friend. As Gilbert, Jean-Pierre Aumont definitely gives his best performance to date. Direction and technical work are excellent and the photography is remarkably good.

There is an abundance of dialogue. The story cannot be said to comply with the precepts of the American Production Code.

Tyrone Power Is Cast

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29. — Tyrone Power has been given the role of Count Axel de Fersen in "Marie Antoinette" by M-G-M.

Short Subjects

"Wedding Yells"

(Vitaphone)

Ken Murray and Oswald deliver some fair comedy with this one. Their familiar delivery attains moments of hilarity, but the real laughs are provided by the supporting cast. Murray is about to be married. A rival suitor tricks him into an insane asylum so he will be late for his wedding. Murray meets the inmates of the place and Oswald and a lot of comedy, some of it rather obvious, takes place. Eventually Murray gets out and arrives in time for his nuptials. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

'Candid Cameramaniacs'

(M-G-M)

The current craze in cameracraft is pleasantly and constructively satirized here by Pete Smith. He shows the enthusiasts at their screwiest and makes the entire affair a pleasant interlude. The idea has been tastefully produced. It also touches briefly on the historical aspect of photography. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Ears of Experience"

(RKO)

Edgar Kennedy's audience should be delighted with his latest effort. It is one of his best. Kennedy plays the ambitious white-collar worker who is urged on by his talkative wife. He is trying for a promotion and engages a professional listener to hear his troubles. The latter suggests he hire a mansion and put up a wealthy front. He does so, but his father-in-law spoils the whole effect. Florence Lake, William Franey, Richard Lane and Jack Rice assist in the doings. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Lonesome Ghosts"

(Disney-RKO)

A new high in cartoon hilarity should be reached with this Mickey Mouse production. Mickey and his associates, the Goof and Donald Duck, are in the ghost chasing business. A quartet of spooks decide to have some fun and invite them over to a deserted mansion to do their stuff. What ensues is the usual highly imaginative stuff executed with touches that are the work of a genius. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

The Orpheum prices are 15 cents above other houses.

Dedicate RKO Sales Campaign to Depinet

The annual billings and sales drive of RKO will be dedicated this year to Ned E. Depinet, vice-president in charge of distribution. The drive will include the branches of the company in this country and abroad. Walter Branson, midwestern district manager, has been named leader of the drive in this country and Canada, while Ben Cammack, general manager for Latin America, will head the drive of the company's foreign sales branches.

Last year's drive was dedicated to Jules Levy, general sales manager. This year the campaign will start on Jan. 29 and run for 15 weeks, ending on May 13. Among the important pictures the company plans to release during that period will be "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Having Wonderful Time," "Bringing Up Baby," "The Joy of Living," "Radio City Revels," "Vivacious Lady" and "Hawaii Calls." Branson will tour all RKO branches, accompanied by Harry Gittelson, editor of Flash, who will publish the house organ from the field during the tour. This will mark the first time the drive will be world wide.

today with the return of David Sarnoff, RCA president, from Cleveland. Indications are that one-sixth of RCA's holdings will be acquired for $1,000,000 and the option on the remainder will be extended for another year. However, if no agreement is reached by the time of the expiration, it is likely that a part of the expiring option will be exercised and negotiations will be begun later on a new option covering the purchase of the balance of the securities.

Fronkiss May Become Monogram Treasurer

Leon Fronkiss is reported joining Monogram as treasurer Jan. 3. Louis Lifton, publicity and advertising head for the company, yesterday said he knew nothing of the report.

Meuer Cohen Is Dead

DALLAS, Dec. 29.—Meyer Cohen, veteran film man, who for the past few months has been connected with the local exploitation staff of RKO, died yesterday. He was 65 years old. Cohen started in the film business in the states rights field and in 1908 handled territorial rights for a number of features. He was Pacific coast representative for George Kleine and the General Film Co. Later he became Los Angeles branch manager for Louis J. Selznick and Select Pictures During the war he directed publicity for the Pacific Coast Division of War Films, under George Creel. He joined the local RKO office last summer.

slump which struck the industry was largely a production situation. Early in the year, Gaumont British closed its studios suddenly, disbanded the distribution forces and concluded a deal whereby C. M. Woolf's General Distributors took over the G. B. distribution, supplying needed financing. The effect of that move was immediate. Money which before had poured from the financial interests without question suddenly ceased to flow, as backers took stock, and found their investments less than successful in many cases. From that moment, the production slump set in.

Exhibition Strong

Theatre business, however, thanks to the sustained strength of foreign product, chiefly American, was excellent, an example being the 18 per cent dividend paid by Associated British Pictures, the John Maxwell company. Money has not been lacking for theatre expansion. Oscar Deutsch merged his holdings with County Cinemas and emerged with 300 theatres. Union Cinemas and Maxwell's A.B.P. also merged, making Maxwell the leading theatre operator in Europe, controlling 500 houses.

Financial complications also are held responsible for the collapse of the deal whereby Alexander Korda and Samuel Goldwyn were to acquire control of United Artists.

The most vital current factor, which is still not concluded, is the pending Films Act, to replace the legislation which will expire in 1938. Quota percentages, particularly as they conconcern the American interests, are of paramount importance, and following long and inconclusive sessions of the House of Commons Films Act Committee, the matter has been set over until Commons reconvenes in February. Quota pictures unquestionably will cost more, and distributors will have to spend more on them.

American Production Featured

A recent and important development is the move on the part of large American companies like M-G-M, 20th Century-Fox and Warners to develop English production as never before. As for the native production industry, there were 130 films made here in 1937, but it is extremely doubtful that that figure will be approached in 1938. Important in the quota discussions is the likelihood that the reciprocal trade treaty under discussion between the Government of England and that of the United States will have a pronounced effect eventually on film legislation.

Such men as Charles P. Metcalfe, president of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n, believe that the prospects are bright, especially for American product in England, in view of the fact that the employment situation is excellent, and likely to remain so. The same view was expressed by J. C. Graham, managing director for Paramount in England, and Francis L. Harley, English manager for 20th Century-Fox.

problem for policemen. Theatregoers were all over the sidewalk and street, making it virtually impossible at times for pedestrians to move along.

"Navy Blue and Gold" found early lines at the Capitol, which increased during the day. The lobbies, inside and out, were crowded at all hours with the ushers doing the best they could to hold patrons in check.

At the Astor, "The Hurricane" did a sellout business for both matinee and evening shows with numerous standees admitted. The matinee take was $1,057.

Starting tomorrow at 9 A. M., the Criterion will keep open for 43 consecutive hours. The picture will be "Manhattan Merry-Go-Round." This theatre as well as Loew's Mayfair, the Rialto and the Rivoli also garnered top business during the day.

Paramount yesterday reported that "Wells Fargo" was running 20 and 48 per cent ahead of average business in 10 key spots. In the first four days, the Paramount, Toledo; the Alabama, Birmingham; Minnesota, Minneapolis; Penn, Wilkes-Barre; Capitol, Scranton; Paramount, St. Paul; Newman, Kansas City; California, San Diego; Paramount, Des Moines, are among the theatres which have been tallying grosses far above normal takes with each indicating new records may be set before the week is over.

last night for delivery to Movietone News and News of the Day. The film was cut here and will be released to theatres today as the regular midweek issue of both reels.

A Movietone News representative who escorted the films from Alameda following its arrival on the China Clipper was a passenger on the plane chartered by Universal to carry Norman Alley's Panay bombing scenes but was put off the plane at Omaha when uncertain flying conditions made it advisable to lighten the ship's load. The Movietone News escort caught the next plane out of Omaha. News of the Day shares the Mayell film because of a cooperative agreement on China coverage between the two reels.

Paramount received 4,000 feet of film showing the capture and occupation of Nanking at the same hour last night. The film will be cut to about 700 feet and released with the regular midweek issue today.

Panay Showings Protested

Concordia, a clerical society of Lutheran pastors, yesterday "disapproved" the showing of newsreels on the Panay incident and the accompanying newspaper publicity on the ground that they "needlessly arouse national hatred."

was begun the routine work of readying prints for delivery to theatres early today. Alley's estimate of the film he had delivered was that it would total about 6,000 feet, 2,500 of which is on the capture of Nanking and the remainder on the Panay. He had not seen it up to the time of his arrival, as it was in negative, but believes that 3,000 feet or more, sufficient to compose the three-reel special announced by Universal, are of highly dramatic content and in perfect photographic condition.

Has Two Slight Wounds

Over a Scotch-and-soda in the Pine Room of the Warwick, Alley recounted the story of his journey home to reporters. He was wounded in the right leg and left hand during the bombing of the Panay and, after the evacuation of the sinking patrol boat, was forced to hide his films and self in the reeds of the river bank to escape Japanese army patrols, he said. From this vantage point he was able to film the disputed machine-gunning of the doomed Panay from the river and of the ship itself as it settled beneath the Yangtze waters.

After wandering along the river for three days with other survivors, Alley was picked up by the Oahu on Dec. 15; taken under convoy to the protection of the U. S. flagship Augusta at Shanghai, from whence he was transferred to the cruiser Stewart and taken to Manila. He remained under the protection of the Navy throughout his trans-Pacific flight on the China Clipper from that point to Alameda. A chartered plane met him there and after being grounded Tuesday night at Cheyenne, eventually deposited him at Newark Airport after stops en route at Omaha, Chicago and Cleveland.

Homeward Journey Uneventful

Although Universal had insured the film against "inexplicable disappearance" under any circumstances in the amount of $350,000—a clue to its estimated net value to the company—and although Alley and the film were under constant guard throughout the long journey, no significant "incident" occurred after the departure from Shanghai, the cameraman said. However, while aboard the Augusta before departing for Manila, Alley said he believed it noteworthy that the Japanese official spokesman at Shanghai, an acquaintance of his from earlier press conferences there, turned to him after paying his respects to the Panay victims aboard the flagship, and inquired of the cameraman whether he would be coming ashore.

Alley related also that when the Stewart was approximately 500 miles out of Shanghai, off Formosa, Japanese observation planes circled the ship several times.

Pressed for his own opinion of the Panay incident, Alley declared that while he was convinced that the attack was deliberate on the part of young and irresponsible Japanese officers, he was equally certain that it was made without the knowledge of the Japanese high command and was without a military motive.

"Presumably," Alley said, "those who participated in the attack did so on their own initiative and probably for no other reason than to clear the river of foreigners by way of celebrating the capture of Nanking."

He said that his pictures would bear out the assertion that the attack was deliberate, that the identity of the Panay and the Standard Oil ships could not have been mistaken, that a Japanese boarding party was on the Panay in advance of the bombing and that the ship was machine gunned afterwards and its survivors exposed to the fire. Alley praised the calmness of the ship's officers and crews and his fellow passengers during the attack.

With Mrs. Alley, his daughters Norene, 17; Janet, 15, and son, Dexter, 21, he posed for news photographers, holding one of the Panay's life preservers which had been autographed by surviving passengers, one of whom, however, died later of wounds. He plans to leave for Washington tomorrow to confer with Navy Dep't officials and will leave for Hollywood with his family thereafter. His plans for returning to China are indefinite at the moment.

Will Do Narration

From the press conference he went to the recording laboratory of General Service Studio at Astoria to do the narration for the film. It was first previewed there in preliminary form after midnight. Prints had been sent on in advance from the studio to catch midnight sailings for Europe South America and Australia, and one of the first prints to be struck was started for Washington and the State Dep't at once.

Alley was accompanied from the coast by Inspector Andrew Ford of the California State Police and Inspector Elmer Steinmeyer. The latter, however, weighing 240 pounds, together with John McGrath of Universal's Los Angeles office, were dropped at Omaha when hazardous flying weather made a lighter load advisable. David Lipton, Universal publicity manager; John McHenry of Universal Newsreel's San Francisco office, and Anita Jenkins, a friend of the Alleys, completed the journey with the cameraman and his family.

Seeks Game Stay in Fla.

LAKELAND, Fla., Dec. 29.—"Bank Nite" as operated by the Lake here was attacked today by counsel for Harvey Parrish, who asked the Circuit Court in Bartow for an injunction to prevent the holding of this and other drawings. The drawings are lotteries and nuisances, Parrish contends. R. H. Boardman, manager for the theatre, denied that the drawings constitute lotteries. A decision is expected later in the week from Judge H. C. Petteway.

ITOA Defers Action On Games, Giveaways

Action on giveaways yesterday was deferred by the I. T. O. A. until a successor to Nate J. Blumberg has been appointed at RKO, it was stated by a spokesman after a meeting of the exhibitor organization at the Astor. Members of the independent unit are desirous to negotiate with Blumberg's successor in an effort to do away with games and giveaways, but in the event nothing is done members of the I. T. O. A. promise to band together for a mass award.

High film costs were criticized. No action was taken. Another meeting is expected to be held in about two weeks.

at the industry by the A. F. of M. and other labor bodies; the thinning of the cord holding the sword of a threatened Federal probe; and the demand for a censorship of radio crystalized recently by the unfortunate Mae West broadcast. But all in all, the broadcasters will look back with satisfaction to the year 1937, a study of the year's radio news headlines, appearing in this issue, indicates.

Earnings statement of CBS and NBC were greater than for any other period in radio's history. Mutual's billings declined slightly. CBS, in 1937, billed $28,828,000, an increase of 24.4 per cent over 1936, NBC's 1937 billings, with the December total still uncounted, is $35,012,200 with indications that the complete billings for the year will approximate $39,000,000. This compares to the 1936 figures of $34,523,950.

Boom Country-Wide

According to estimates received throughout the country from owners of independent stations, 1937 was the best year in history, and the indications are that they will get even more attention from advertisers in 1938. The transcription companies too enjoyed an excellent year.

NBC added 41 stations to its networks, bringing the total to 143 outlets, and new studios were built or begun in many major cities, with ground to be broken soon at Hollywood for a new plant. Columbia added 21 new stations this year, giving the chain 108 stations, and a new $2,000,000 studio in Hollywood is nearing completion. The year saw Mutual's expansion from a network of 46 stations to one of 76 stations, with billings slightly off. Last year's total was $1,987,572. This year the total is $1,899,000, with the December total estimated.

Great strides were made in television during the year. NBC gave more than 60 demonstrations during the year; Mutual's coast affiliate, Don Lee, has begun daily television service; CBS is now constructing the world's largest television unit. Technically, television improved greatly in the past 12 months, especially in foreign countries.

Hollywood continued to gain as a program source, with the major programs on all three networks emanating from the coast. Paramount attempted a studio program, but abandoned it after a short experiment, but M-G-M and Warners completed tieups with commercial sponsors and are currently broadcasting weekly programs.

The A. F. of M. early this year demanded that radio spend an additional $1,500,000 a year for musicians; the ultimatum resulted in the calling of a special N.A.B. session in June. At the close of this year the situation is almost settled, with the Federation's demands agreed to by the industry. John Elmer again was elected president of the A. F. of M. during the stormy special meeting, with a reorganization of the association planned at the next N.A.B. general session.

Congress a Threat

The industry was uneasy throughout the year as various members of Congress demanded an investigation of radio, most charging monopoly and the threat is undiminished as the year draws to a close.

Various labor organizations, including Equity, A.R.T.A., A.F.M., A.G.R.A.P. and other company unions made deep inroads into radio, with announcers, engineers, sound effects men, production men and talent, now organized and recognized nationally and sectionally.

Death took Anning S. Prall, chairman of the F. C. C., and Frank R. McNinch was named the new chairman. T. A. M. Craven was selected as a member of the commission.

Color Television Is Success, Says Baird

This was the first time color transmission had been achieved, Baird said. While it still requires much development he is convinced, he said, that color television eventually would supersede the black and white pictures of the present day.

Eleven M-G-M Men to Get Profit Share Under Plan

Schenck Outlines Proposed New Contracts In Letter to Stockholders; Asks for Approval at Jan. 25 Meeting

Eleven top M-G-M excutives are to receive a percentage of the company profits, instead of three, as formerly, under the terms of contracts recently approved by the board of directors of Loew's, Inc., subject to the approval of stockholders at a meeting to be held Jan. 25.

The aggregate percentage of the profits will remain the same as under the old profit-sharing plan in which Louis B. Mayer, J. Robert Rubin and the late Irving G. Thalberg were the participants.

Stockholders were informed of the proposed arrangement in letters sent out last night by Nicholas M. Schenck, president. A financial statement of the company covering the fiscal year ending Aug. 31 accompanied the letter.

This statement showed that earnings for the fiscal year have increased to $8.62 per share on the outstanding common, a net of $14,426,062 after all charges, including Federal tax on undistributed profits and minority interests' share in partly owned subsidiaries. For the previous year the total was $11,076,823, before deduction of the Federal undistributed

"In Old Chicago"

SOME films depend upon just one quality for greatness. It may be powerful emotion, a stirring story, personalities, production detail, musical content, excellence of direction or a stunning spectacle which exercises a powerful impact upon human sensibilities.

When a single picture, however, possesses all of the separate qualities which make any film great, then it is foreordained that that picture will be both worthy entertainment and a commercial success. During his career Darryl F. Zanuck has accounted for many exceptional productions and it is hardly to be doubted that press, public and exhibitors will look upon "In Old Chicago" as the high spot of his efforts to date.

Epic in story idea, production quality and the stirring effect of its terrifying spectacle, "In Old Chicago" is no mere biography of a city. Long before the spectacle sequences which everybody knew were coming appeared on the screen "In Old Chicago" had swept a press preview audience under its spell. The prelude to the thrilling episodes is a gripping human interest story of the O'Leary family. The film tells the story of a mother and three sons in a fashion to grip and hold every human sentiment.

One son of the washerwoman, an opportunist, turns to the seamy side of the pioneer city's life. By chicanery, intrigue and double dealing he establishes himself as a figure in the growing community's sordid political life. Meanwhile he enjoys a surprisingly pleasing romance with a picturesque cabaret entertainer of whom he makes a business partner.

The next son, an idealist, chooses law for a profession, but when the older brother decides to make himself a political boss of a wild honky

First Panay Films Shown Around Noon

Newsreels of the bombing of the Panay went on Broadway theatre screens yesterday at noon. Stimulated by unprecedented newsreel advertising by Movietone News and individual theatres, capacity business was recorded in all houses throughout the day.

Movietone News and News of the Day, which shared Eric Mayell's shots of the Panay incident under a pooling agreement on China war coverage between the two, were neck and neck in hitting the Broadway screens. News of the Day went on the screen at the Embassy at 11:48 and, at approximately the same time, Movietone News was showing in the Grand Central Newsreel Theatre.

Universal, coping with a three-reel production from Norman Alley's 6,000 feet of film, failed to reach Broadway screens until night. Paramount,

Man-Power

By Martin Quigley

MR. Nicholas M. Schenck who speaks with a voice of especial authority on the subject of profitable operation in the motion picture industry makes the following declaration:

It is my firm opinion that the determining factor in the success of a motion picture enterprise is the man-power which operates it.

All who know the business of motion pictures and are in a position to realize the peculiar exactions which it imposes upon those who administer its affairs successfully will concur unhesitatingly in this opinion.

Mr. Schenck's declaration comes in explanation of the introduction by Loew's, Inc., of a profit-sharing arrangement which brings into existence an ideal which has long been under discussion in the industry. Under the arrangement a group of executives and producers who occupy key positions in the affairs of the company will have a direct interest in profits to the

"Zola," Muni Win In Poll of Critics

"The Life of Emile Zola" has been chosen by the New York Film Critics as the most distinguished picture of 1937 and, by coincidence, the title role star of the picture, Paul Muni, has been named as having given in that part the best performance of any actor during the year.

Greta Garbo's portrayal of Marguerite Gautier in "Camille" was adjudged the finest performance by an actress during 1937.

A striking feature of the new arrangement which already has been authorized by the board of directors is the substitution of contracts covering a group of 11 executives and producers for previous contracts participated in by only three persons, yet the aggregate percentage of profits to be disbursed remains the same.

Study of the record of the past two decades in the motion picture industry reveals a long series of changes in the relative positions of the leading companies. Almost invariably the rise of an institution has been attended by the enlistment at the time of man-power of outstanding ability. Again, with the changes that have so frequently come about, we find a former top-ranking company lodged down the list in prestige and profits as the result of the loss of the man-power that engineered its former success.

And so the scene has changed, sometimes within the space of from one season to another.

The management of Loew's, Inc., obviously seeks to avoid the changing order of the past and to ordain in its stead arrangements which will hold its vital man-power intact. That this may best be done by means of long-term contracts entailing a direct share in the company's success seems entirely plain.

That the requisite skill and experience is the essential need of the business of motion pictures is a fact that receives constant affirmation. In other industries materials, factories, formulae, patents, trademarks and many other elements give a corporation a measure of permanence and stability. But in motion pictures no similar condition applies; first reliance must inevitably be upon the skill and experience of the directing personnel.

The business of motion pictures, particularly in its production department, involves constantly a multitude of decisions, many of them entailing the expenditure of substantial sums of money and almost all concerned with the intricate and sometimes fantastic stuff of entertainment. Upon the quality and promptness of the judgment depends the screen value of the resultant picture and consequently the profits of the company.

Hence, fortunate indeed is the company which once that it has assembled man-power capable of obtaining the desired results is both able and willing to take steps to insure the continued availability of such man-power and to avoid constantly facing competitive bidding.

This development which naturally has important product implications will be viewed with interest and approval by theatre operators who inevitably become partners in the fortunes of product sources. It is as well that kind of reward to creative effort which becomes generally a healthy stimulus and encouragement.

If, then, as Mr. Schenck says—and none denies—that the determining factor in the success of a motion picture enterprise is the man-power which operates it, he has made at this year-end a notable contribution to the institution over which he presides and one which adds a note of permanency and stability to the industry at large.

tonk district, he chooses his idealist brother to be a candidate for and elected mayor. Idealist and opportunist clash. The mayor, determined to wipe out the cesspool of vice and corruption which is his brother's domain, calls upon the cabaret singer for aid. Rising in opposition the elder brother vows vengeance, tricks the entertainer into marrying him, since the wife cannot testify against her husband. As the brothers stage a wild fistic brawl, Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicks over a lantern and the fire that reduced wooden Chicago to ashes erupts.

The fiery spectacle which features the film compared in force and power with any production achievements in film history. As the mayor is killed and as dynamite is used to check the fury of the flames, the singer and mother are reconciled, and when found by the repentent son all vision a great new Chicago of stone and steel.

Headed by Don Ameche, Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Alice Brady, Brian Donlevy, Tom Brown, Berton Churchill and June Storey, the entire cast turns in commendable performances. The quality of Henry King's direction is both imaginative and practical. It is chock full of showmanship and understanding. Musical specialties sung by Miss Faye and an excellent score add much to the melodramatic and romantic content of this character picture.

Based on a story by Nevin Bush, adapted by Lamar Trotti and Conya Levein, with music and lyrics by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, Lew Pollack and Sidney Mitchell, it does not take the special effects spectacle arranged by Fred Sersen, Ralph Hammeras and Louis Witte and directed by H. Bruce Humberstone to make "In Old Chicago" a picture that should have audiences eager to view it.

Zanuck's reputation as a producer of money making pictures will grow brighter by "In Old Chicago."

The original profit-sharing arrangement had been in effect since 1924, according to Nicholas M. Schenck, president. In his letter to stockholders Schenck points out that the percentage of profits formerly allocated to three officials will be divided among 11 "whose producing and managerial talent or executive ability has, in the opinion of the directors, been principally responsible for the success of M-G-M pictures.

"The proposed contracts provide for compensation based in part upon a percentage of Loew's share of the combined annual net profits of Loew's, Inc., and all subsidiaries, after reserves, interest, taxes, depreciation of the company's properties and after deduction of cumulative dividends on all present or future preferred stock of Loew's, Inc., and after deduction of $2 per annum for each share of outstanding common stock (other than shares issued as a stock dividend) the last representing $2,612,424 per annum on the common stock now outstanding."

Man-Power Stressed

In his letter Schenck states: "It is my firm opinion that the determining factor in the success of a motion picture enterprise is the man-power which operates it. In harmony with that belief I have endeavored as president to obtain the best men available in the industry and to hold them firmly in the company's service."

Details of the financial statement issued with Schenck's letter show that the gross operating revenues of the company for the fiscal year totalled $121,828,606, of which $118,464,900 was represented by theatre receipts and rentals and sales of films and accessories, and the balance by rent and miscellaneous income. For the year ending Aug. 31, 1936, gross operating revenues were $108,780,542.

Total current assets of Loew's, Inc., and wholly owned subsidiaries on Aug. 31 were $52,404,545, as against total current liabilities of $12,107,408. The company's earned surplus on Aug. 31 was $44,354,274.

ANSWERING THE PANAY MAIL!

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer takes this means of acknowledging a flood of thanks from its exhibitor friends. It was a privilege to be able to deliver to each and every one of our newsreel accounts at no extra cost to them the complete pictorial story of the sinking of the U. S. S. PANAY in the regular issue of M-G-M's NEWS OF THE DAY.

which obtained no actual shots of the Panay bombing, held up its reel until late afternoon in order to "cover" its accounts on the incident by buying photographic material to include in its record of the capture of Nanking and return of the Panay victims and survivors to Shanghai. In consequence, the Palace, which had bought the Universal reel, was without Panay film all day, and the Paramount, waiting for its own reel, was without it until late afternoon. The latter house, however, was playing to capacity all day, regardless.

Broadway theatre managers found it difficult to make definite estimates of the actual box-office strength of the reels due to the fact that the leading first run houses have been playing to capacity all week as a result of the brisk holiday trade. Smaller houses, such as the Criterion, Rialto and the newsreel theatres, where capacity business has not been sustained throughout the week, were quick to feel the pulling power of the reels and accompanying advertising and gave credit to them freely.

Capacity Assured

Houses such as the Music Hall, Capitol, Paramount, Loew's State, Strand and Rivoli credited the Panay reels with exceptional drawing power, but pointed out at the same time that they have played to capacity since Sunday.

All New York morning and afternoon papers yesterday carried 800-line ads on the Movietone Panay reel listing a total of 225 theatres at which it was playing. The advertising was placed by 20th Century-Fox and is believed to be the first time that such extensive space has been employed for newsreel advertising. In addition, virtually all Broadway first runs carried Panay display lines in their individual advertising spaces. Marquees and lobbies billed the films everywhere.

Approximately 1,000 prints were struck by Movietone, many of which were on their way out of the city by mid-afternoon. News of the Day ordered about 800 prints. Nearby out of town points had the reels last night, and with Movietone News distribution from the coast beginning Tuesday night, all major cities throughout the country should have reels by today.

Korda's plan to produce a group of pictures for release through other companies was objected to by Samuel Goldwyn, coast advices stated yesterday. Goldwyn, it was said, held out for the same privilege, which the board voted down.

Goldwyn was among those at the Glendale Airport seeing Korda off and the parting was described as "friendly."

The Newsreel Parade

"The Bombing of the U. S. S. Panay"

(Universal)

The story of the bombing of the U. S. Gunboat Panay, as recorded by Norman Alley, Universal cameraman on the ship, becomes an important documentary film by reason of its camera reporting of an occurrence of international consequence in the Sino-Japanese conflict. It is at the same time good theatrical material.

Alley succeed in capturing the devastating effect of the Japanese bombing on the survivors rather more effectively than he did the actual bombing of the ship. Of the attack itself, and incidentally the display of American flags on the Panay is clearly visible in the film, he caught flashes of two Japanese planes, the rushing of sailors to man the guns, and shows them pointing to the sky, the confusion on the decks and the sudden activity when the order came to abandon ship. The scenes of the removal of wounded to the launches, the group hiding in the reeds on the bank of the Yangtze, the dressing of the wounded there, and the long and slow trek over rough country to the nearest town, with the assistance of Chinese soldiers, are effectively pictured by Alley's camera. Then is seen the flotilla carrying the coffins of the dead and the weakened survivors back to Shanghai, where the film closes.

The special reel has been built into a dramatic and suspense-laden narrative in chronological sequence, leading to the actual bombing. It opens with the dash by ship and planes from Shanghai to New York of Alley and his precious film, then goes into scenes of the havoc that was wreaked in Nanking by the advancing Japanese troops. The most harrowing shots of the picture include those showing the dead and dying Chinese soldiers and civilians in the streets of Nanking, a mother and two children wailing frantically beside the body of her husband. From there the narrative picks up the flight of the group of cameramen and reporters to the Panay, the ship steaming down river with its convoy of Standard Oil tankers, the quiet and calm of the Panay cabin, then the sudden alarm as the Japanese struck.

Panay sinking scenes make up the entire reel. The shots are just as dramatic as the world-wide build-up in the press and can stand billing above or alongside the feature. As an audience draw they're better than the Hindenburg because of the tremendous advance publicity.

The documentation of the events starts with the bombing of Nanking. Refugees are seen evacuating the city and making for the Panay. The gunboat moves up the river. A Japanese launch comes alongside and identifies the naval craft. The Panay continues upstream to becomes the target of Japanese airplanes. The bombs exploding around the ship are seen and the damage wrought on the decks is caught. The wounded are dragged to safety and lifted, bloodily, into small boats that will take them ashore. Oil tankers anchored nearby are seen in flames, more evidence of Nipponese marksmanship. On shore the Panay is seen listing and in later clips it settles headlong into the river. The wounded lay on the river bank waiting to be given medical attention at nearby Hoshien. Their wounds staunched, they are placed on the Oahu and taken to Shanghai and the reel closes with a shot of the coffin of a petty officer being lifted aboard the Augusta while the flag flies at half-staff.

(Paramount)

Arthur Menken remained behind in besieged Nanking where, in the ordinary course of events, it might reasonably be expected that something was more likely to happen than aboard a gunboat of a neutral nation. In consequence, Menken was able to give Paramount News some film that would have been sensational in its way if events had not made the Panay the scene of action instead of the fallen Chinese capital. To cover its accounts on the Panay incident, Paramount News has included in this release stills from Wide World pictures obtained by Norman Soong, news photographer who was a passenger on the Panay. This section of the film runs about three minutes. The remainder of the 9½-minute reel consists of Menken's shots of besieged Nanking.

The reel runs in fairly chronological order, beginning with scenes in Nanking and shots of the Panay and some of its passengers. The stills are fitted in to show the destruction of the ship; then the camera picks up the account with the Panay survivors being conveyed to Shanghai, describes the happenings there and then returns to Nanking. The latter scenes are exceptionally forceful, even gruesome. They depict the dead and injured on the streets of the city; the homeless natives bedded in alleyways; the living mourning beside their dead; the wounded for whom there were no more hospital accommodations lying in the streets.

Menken has given Paramount a reel which, without the Panay incident, stands by itself.

Universal Newsreel

Vol. 9, No. 266

(Universal)

This issue probably will stir more excitement among exhibitors than any Universal has turned out in a long time, but this will be due to what it lacks rather than what it contains. No shots of the Panay sinking are included. All of that material is in the company's three-reel special.

A year-end stunt performed by girls on aquaplanes with a Father Time in the picture starts it. The remaining clips are made up of material from Barnegat, N. C., Bonneville, Wash., and elsewhere.

There are scenes of a new airplane wing de-icer, the completion of the Bonneville Dam, workers being fingerprinted in Florida, the Pennsylvania Railroad's electrification progress, a non-skid tire compound demonstrated in Montreal, a pet deer in New Jersey wearing a "Don't Shoot" sign, golfing with black balls on the snow-covered mountains around Crater Lake in Oregon, bathing suited girls playing loop tennis in Venice, Cal., and a painfully funny series of shots of team wrestling in Seattle, where contestants are paired off and each team helps the man on the mat out of his predicament.

Running time, 9 mins. P.

Agreement Made on RKO Option Renewal of RCA's present RKO holdings for $500,000 during the month of January. A second extension of six months to Dec. 31, 1938, on the purchase of another $500,000 of the securities is provided for under the agreement. It was reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY earlier that a one-year extension of the option, which expires today, would be granted in consideration for the payment of $1,000,000 of the purchase price.

The extension was sought by the option holders due to the fact that completion of the RKO reorganization has been delayed beyond earlier expectations.

Canadian Web To Take Many NBC Programs

MONTREAL, Dec. 30.—Pressed by listener demands, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. has taken over a host of NBC commercials and will broadcast them starting Jan. 2. In addition to the American commercials CBC has taken a number of new local commercials to be heard over both its local outlets.

On Wednesday the English station receives "One Man's Family" and "Spotlight Parade" plus locals while CBF will get a French program, "Dans Ma Tasse de The," sponsored by Standard Brands, and "Spotlight Parade." Thursday both stations will have Vallee and Crosby, special announcements having been worked out in French for CBF, and CBM will also take the Maxwell House Showboat. Both stations will take Frank Munn's "Waltz Time" on Friday and on Sunday CBM will air Malcolm LePrade's "Travel Talks" and Jack Benny, while CBF will get "Manhattan Merry-go-Round."

Lawrence Tibbett

That Lawrence Tibbett is one of America's great baritones is no news; that Tibbett has returned to the microphone as the regular star of a series after a long absence from the airways is news, definitely good news. Since the past Wednesday, Tibbett may be heard weekly that evening from 9 to 9:30 P. M. on the Chesterfield cigarette series over CBS.

Tibbett's magnificent baritone voice was heard in an offering from "La Traviata," Gershwin's "I Got Plenty of Nothin'" from "Porgy and Bess," Cole Porter's "In the Still of the Night," and the dramatic narrative from "The Rogue Song," "Song of the Shirt." His was one of the soundest vocal performances to be heard on the air in some time.

The Kostelanetz orchestra of course performed beautifully in supporting Tibbett, and in two specialties, "Once in a While" and "Tiger Rag." Deems Taylor's informal musical comments fit nicely into the production.

Paralysis Drive

President Roosevelt's annual drive against paralysis, the funds of which go to the Warm Springs Foundation, was launched over the air yesterday from 5 to 5:30 P. M. over the microphones of WNEW, WHN, WQXR, WINS and WNYC, the pickups coming from the Waldorf-Astoria, where a rally attended by social, civic and political leaders was in progress. The program was under the supervision of James E. Sauter of Air Features.

Heard in eloquent pleas for a successful drive in this state were George M. Cohan, Basil O'Connor, chairman of the New York campaign; Keith Morgan, chairman of the national committee; Dr. Max Peet of the University of Michigan, and Mrs. Douglas Gibbons, chairman of the state's woman's division. The entertainment was headed by Lucy Monroe, whose warm soprano voice made the hearing of the national anthem even more stirring than it usually is. Walter Cassell sang "Old Man River."

The negotiations for the two-year contracts were conducted by Sumner D. Ouarton, general manager for WMT; Doug Grant, program director; Don Inman, Waterloo commercial head, and the presidents and secretaries of both locals.

Goldsmith Enthuses Over Television Use

SYRACUSE, Dec. 30.—Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, former vice-president of RCA and present technical consultant to the company, told the convention of New York State Science Teachers in the course of an address that "television was in a sense the superlative art of communication," since many of its aspects could be described only in terms of "most." He said it was the most scientific form of communication, the most luxurious form of broadcasting and the most difficult type of communication.

"The approach of television as a home service emphasizes the rapidly growing influence of science upon our existence," he said, "and the time has arrived when everyone should understand at least the fundamental principles of the many technical devices in daily use. Unless we understand the natural laws of this world, and the rules which govern our implements and surroundings, we can hardly hope to live most effectively and comfortably."

Because of the important part science plays in everyday life, an "s" should be added to the "three r's" of elementary education, Dr. Goldsmith said.
